Students Seek Protest Support At Other Schools

Five Schaumburg High School students said they are organizing protest support at other High School Dist. 211 campuses because authorities have reneged on an agreement to meet yesterday and talk over student grievances.

The five also fear they will be expelled for allegedly masterminding a student walkout at Schaumburg High School held Friday.

They charge the school's principal, Carl Weimer, and District Supt. Richard Kolze are giving them "the run-around." So, they are attempting to organize a boycott of the Dist. 211 school lunchrooms.

Alko Elizondo, one of the five, said Supt. Richard Kolze's failure to meet with students Monday to discuss their demands prompted the group's plan to seek support from other schools.

ELIZONDO SAID he and others on the helped disperse a crowd of over 200 students after being told Kolze would meet with them.

"We were available at 8 a.m. Monday for the meeting and were told there would be no meeting until all the kids that are out on suspension get back in school," said Elizondo.

Prin. Carl Weimer told the press and students this past weekend he would arrange a meeting with Kolze since the majority of student demands such as open campus are specifically board policy. However Monday Weimer insisted there must have been some misunderstanding and that he could not confirm a meeting for Kolze.

KOLZE DENIED he was to meet with the students but said he has talked with them on the telephone. "It is the district's first priority to get those back that want in," said Kolze.

Throughout the weekend Kolze and other district administrators joined Schaumburg High School officials in holding individual parent conferences with the 305 students who were suspended following the walkout.

Kolze said at least 100 students on suspension came in with parents during the weekend and were readmitted after the conference.

"Monday the school was processing 12 at once with administrators brought in from the rest of the district," said Kolze.

THE SUPERINTENDENT said he told the representatives he would "have to see" about a meeting with them after all the suspended students have come in for conferences.

"If their parents call in for a conference, I'll be glad to meet with them," said Kolze.

One of the student spokesmen, Trauth, had a conference but was not reinstated. "In view of his direct involvement, he is still on suspension, pending further investigation," said Kolze.

ELIZONDO INSISTS the group will push for a meeting and said he and the others have promised the students they would talk for them and bring back the message from the district.

"We don't want to bring our parents into this. Just getting back in school won't change things. We want to talk to them," he said.

Student demands include: Open campus and study, lower school lunches from 50 to 45 cents, soft drinks in the cafeteria, no suspension of students who participated in walkout, shorter school day, changes in attendance policy, an inside smoking area and no grade requirements for participation in student council.

Parents React: Discipline Them

by JERRY THOMAS

"Discipline them," is the reaction of a majority of the 305 parents whose youngsters, students at Schaumburg High School, were suspended for being involved in a student walkout Friday.

Several of the parents were interviewed Monday as they waited to confer with school officials. Most said they wanted their children back in school, were irritated about being there, but fully supportive of the school's policies.

One man was angry at his son for being involved, mostly because he told him he was just going along with the crowd. The boy was caught outside and was unable to return to class.

"I'm against open campus and want my son to know he is going to obey school rules. That's why I'm home from work and here wait my wife," he said.

A MOTHER SAID she, too, supported school authorities and wanted her son to obey school rules.

However, she could see no harm in allowing the students to have an indoor smoking area. She also wanted the teachers to remember that if the students were to act as young adults, they must be treated as young adults.

"I have very strong views about things that affect me, and I guess my daughter is the same way," said another mother as she discussed her daughter's suspension. "But I don't think kids should tell the schools what to do," she added.

"I understand that she has her beliefs, but I think by walking out of the school she was doing wrong and I do not support her action."

Most students interviewed with their parents were immediately reinstated. Principal Carl Weimer said they were followers, or got locked out of class during the confusion.

"No disciplinary action has been taken against those readmitted to school but if they participate in another walkout, it means expulsion," said Weimer.

WEIMER ADDED that by late Monday all but 40 parent conferences had been held.

"Of those, only five parents said they supported their child's action," said Weimer. "The rest told the school that they were fully behind us."

Moratorium On Building Urged In Area

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-3rd) yesterday called for a moratorium on all construction in the Northwest suburban area until workable plans for flood control can be developed and implemented.

Schlickman, "distracted" and "frustrated" over the flooding problem and the lack of effective means to combat it, made the proposal in a letter to all mayors and village presidents in the Northwest suburbs. The letter was also sent to County Board Pres. George Dunne.

Schlickman's letter said, in part: "I urgently request you and your fellow municipal officials adopt a resolution establishing a ban on all construction within your corporate limits until a comprehensive, area-wide plan for flood control can be developed and implemented."

He added, "The safety, welfare and health of the citizenry demands this action."

Schlickman said he made the request because despite many meetings, conversations and discussions of the flooding problem, there has been no significant change in the situation.

ALTHOUGH THE state representative initially expressed some degree of uncertainty about the possible reaction to his suggestion, at least one area community late yesterday indicated its support of the idea.

Schlickman said R.D. Henninger, village manager of Hanover Park, reported the village is prepared to establish such a moratorium, but they are concerned with existing contractual obligations to developers.

Schlickman said he is positive, however, the police powers of all municipalities provides them with the authority to establish such a ban. He said he plans to meet with the Hanover Park village attorney to discuss the authority of the village.

Youth Want Birth Control Knowledge

Statistics show that the most common problems that youth of Hoffman Estates seek counseling for are birth control information, family counseling, and pregnancy.

Bryan Syer, youth outreach worker, in his report to the youth commission said made personal contact with 103 youths from March 29 to Sept. 18.

Of those contacts, 32 were simply talking or "rapping sessions," as Syer described them.

However, 71 other contacts were made to counsel youths with problems. Requests for birth control information totaled nine; family problems, nine; and pregnancy, eight.

Veneral disease information was requested by five youths and drug problems concerned five. Four youths in each of the following categories sought guidance on dating, abortion, legal matters, and mental or emotional problems.

Syer said 84 of those contacts he made were initiated by the youth, 12 were referred to him by parents and seven referrals were from other sources.

Three of the problem counseling sessions were with youngsters under 12; 23 with those 12-15; 51 with those 16-17; 18

Officials Eye City Medical School Move

A move to the Northwest suburbs by the Chicago Medical School (CMS) is "under discussion," a spokesman said yesterday.

The discussion could result in the world's most extensive medical training center, according to another outside source.

"There's nothing definite," the CMS spokesman said, however, adding, "the announcement of details is six months to a year away."

A source who has dealt with CMS officials said the school is possibly looking for 100 to 150 acres, calling the parcel being sought "a pretty tall order."

CMS has $18.3 million held in escrow by state and federal agencies to build a facility that would educate in "the total gamut of the medical field," he added.

In addition to the training of medical doctors CMS envisions a facility to train medical technicians, nurses, anesthetologists and paramedic professionals of all types.

CMS hopes to become "the MIT of the medical field," the source said. The proposal is reported to be the dream of Dr. A. Nicholas Taylor, president of the school who is out of the country and unavailable for comment.

The move to the Northwest suburbs would not mean abandonment of its existing facilities on Chicago's west side, the source added.

Negotiations are said to be under way that would mean participation in the current CMS facilities by the University of Illinois Medical School in Chicago.

No reliable speculation on a site for the new facility has been made. The spokesman said that local officials from all the Northwest suburban communities would be contacted for discussion.

A meeting with officials from Roselle and Hoffman Estates, reportedly took place in Chicago last spring.

Another possibility mentioned is locating the new school on grounds currently occupied by the Chicago State Hospital at Irving Park Road and Narragansett Avenue in Chicago. CMS may be attracted there because the land could be obtained free.

"Any site they'd buy here (in the Northwest suburbs) would be very expensive," the source said.

This Morning In Brief

The War

Three U. S. pilots released from captivity in North Vietnam left by plane for Nanking, China, en route home via Peking and Moscow, Hanoi reports said. The pilots, Air Force Maj. Edward K. Elias, Navy Lt. Markham L. Gantley and Navy Lt. Norris A. Charles, departed after they were reported to have told President Nixon they did not want to return home with U. S. military escorts. They are due to arrive in New York Thursday.

South Vietnamese forces recaptured a central coast hilltop held by Communist forces and pushed southward toward a government outpost that was overrun a week ago.

The Nation

The House Ways and Means Committee tentatively approved President Nixon's proposal to put a $250 billion limit on federal spending this fiscal year. The President pledged that the U. S. "shall not turn inward an isolationist" as it struggles with other nations to revamp the rules governing trade and currency exchange in the non-Communist world.

Sen. George McGovern denounced the "sharks" and "hogs" of big business, saying that they had opened a "revolving door" connecting regulatory agencies to corporate boardrooms. The chief spokesman for the nation's coal industry charged that McGovern's ban-strip mining proposal could mean blackouts in millions of homes.

The World
The prime ministers of China and Japan pledged to establish diplomatic relations between their two governments, bringing to an end three decades of hatred.

At the United Nations, U. S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers called for tough measures against airplane hijacking and "the export of international terrorism," and then moved swiftly to see that his proposals were acted on in the UN. He proposed a conference to coordinate international action against terrorism.

The border between Uganda and Tanzania remained quiet in the wake of reports the two nations had tentatively agreed to a peace settlement after a week of hostilities.

Despite the opening of political peace talks in England, gunmen carried out successful bomb strikes in one of Belfast's most luxurious hotels and other targets across Northern Ireland.

The State

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott recommended that $1 million in damages that Illinois received in a price-fixing case be spent to fund local drug abuse programs, to set up community lead poisoning treatment centers and to create a telecommunication network for the emergency care of heart attack victims.

Three members of the Illinois agricultural trade delegation had a 75-minute talk in Moscow with Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev. They will meet today with export organizations and with foreign trade officials.

Since the hospital opened in 1960, volunteers have given well over one million hours of service.

Service League President Mrs. Robert Bjork noted that with contributions this past year, the Service League has now given more than $1 million to the hospital.

Of the $1 million given to date, over half has gone for aiding the hospital's building programs. Close to $200,000 has gone for equipment.

Furnishings, draperies, new lighting and furniture account for approximately $100,000. The remainder has gone for patient aid, scholarships and various special projects.

Funds are raised through the operation of the gift, snack and thrift shops, membership dues and other enterprises.

A TOAST TO SUCCESS preceded the clinking of glasses at a small wine-tasting party in Arlington Park Towers last week. Testing the wine, which will be wrapped in brightly-colored paper and tied with fancy ribbon for centerpieces on each table at the Northwest Community Hospital Auxiliary fashion show Thursday were Mrs. Robert Paddock, decorations chairman, and Mrs. R. F. Grisson and Mrs. Robert Willard, tickets and reservations. Mr. Paddock donated the wine for "Innovations '72" to be held in the Jimmy Durante Room of the Towers.

Wine Will Decorate Tables At Hospital Fashion-Lunch

Each table will be decorated with a bottle of wine and each guest will find a small package of gift items at her place when Northwest Community Hospital Auxiliary holds its annual fashion-luncheon Thursday. To be held in the Jimmy Durante Room of Arlington Park Towers, the affair "Innovations '72" opens with cocktails at 11:30; luncheon will follow at 12:30.

Fashions will be from Chas. A. Stevens, but the most talked about innovation of the show will be the doctors and men from the hospital staff modeling fashions from Frank Bros., Woodfield. Doctor models will be Dr. E. J. Jacobs, Dr. Robert Alfani, Dr. Hector Vasquez, Dr. Ralph Casciaro and Dr. Stanley Zydlow. Staff models will be Terry Taylor, director of volunteers, and Joe Pannhausen, a member of the Emergency Cardiac Treatment Unit.

Ticket price is $5.50 and reservations may be made with Mrs. R. F. Grisson, FL 8-0981. Proceeds from the show will be added to the $50,000 pledge which the Auxiliary made to the hospital this year. Monies toward the pledge will also include profits from Boutique Noel to be held Oct. 27.

The fall meeting of the Auxiliary has been planned for Nov. 9 at the Barn in Barrington. Anyone wishing to join the group may call Mrs. Anthony Daley, membership chairman, 392-2318, for further information.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: My mother and I have been having one of those small, good-humored arguments about the "old days." She says eggs can't compare in taste to those of years ago. My age group looks on statements like this with raised eyebrows, but I admit there might be something to this one. Is there? —Ann Monroe

Your mother is right about there being a change, Ann, but what you don't say is whether she thinks the change has been for the better. I do.

Chickens in modern egg ranches do not have access to the feeds which cause strong flavors. Moreover, the eggs are gathered so frequently the shells do not get a chance to absorb odors from the surroundings. This is followed through in the marketing — eggs being kept away from foods with strong odors. It's not a bad idea to follow at home. All of us tend to remember the old days with nostalgia and sometimes forget that new methods are really great with some foods.

Dear Dorothy: I rub my shoes together as I walk and wonder what will take off the black marks from my new beige patent leather shoes. —Margaret P.

Any shoe polish should do it. If there's none around, try a dab of lighter fluid.

Dear Dorothy: My way to bake a pie crust is to roll out the dough and put it on the back of a pie pan. After the edge has been trimmed, prick holes in the dough with a fork. —Lelia McFall

Homemaker's Fair Is More Than A Hobby Day

Homemakers' traditional hobby day will have a new name, "Homemaker's Fair" when it is held Tuesday, Oct. 3, at the First Methodist Church in La Grange.

Basically it is the same affair in that talented members of the 28 participating units, which includes the many units in the northwest suburbs, will be displaying crafts and hobbies. But special activities chairman, Mrs. Raymond Bond of the Mount Prospect Unit, has added some innovations: units may sell items they have made; profits will be kept in the individual units to help defray increased rental and postage costs. Units will also be giving demonstrations.

Mrs. Bond's co-chairman is Mrs. John Nelson, Des Plaines, president of Satellite II Unit. Mrs. Bond has also recruited willing workers in Mrs. Joseph Hodges and Mrs. Jewel Grant, Mount Prospect Unit, to prepare sandwiches which will be sold at lunch.

The afternoon session will include a sing-along and a program, "Junking with Peggy." Peggy Schiene hunts garage sales, auctions, flea markets and antique shops, and her program will include slides of creations too large to bring to the Fair and a "show and tell" of other creations.

The church is located at Cassatt and Madison, La Grange, and the Fair is open to the public from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Regarding your column on tap water. It's probably safe from a bacteria standpoint, but what about all those chemical and industrial wastes. Are these sufficiently removed? Studies have shown less heart trouble in locations where there's hard water and lots of minerals. Perhaps this is because of the calcium, magnesium, salts, iron, aluminum and other metals in the water. Couldn't the person who drinks distilled water get these elements from vitamin pills?

The chemical wastes and other products dumped into the water are all lowered to acceptable limits in municipal water supplies. The complete mineral and chemical content of the water is fairly well regulated by public health regulations. This includes keeping enough chemical in the water to prevent the growth or development of any significant bacteria.

Dear Reader — Yes, you're absolutely right. Many of these chemicals and what we call "trace elements" are important in the body's function. Some of them are necessary for certain enzymes in the body. In many localities this is a good source of iodine which is essential to the body. The only other common sources of iodine are in iodized table salt or in seafood.

The trace metals of importance to the body are not found in vitamin tablets. You can find vitamin tablets that contain iron, but that's about it. So you can't rely on taking a vitamin tablet a day to provide all of the trace metals and chemicals that the body might need. Most of these are also included in the fruits and vegetables that people should be eating. I'd like to emphasize again that city water right out of the tap is probably the safest water source available to us.

Dear Dr. Lamb — At least two years ago I began feeling a numbness at night in my thumbs and two forefingers. Sometimes both. My family doctor sent me to a neurologist who advised X-ray pictures of my neck and head and mentioned a possible pinched nerve. The picture showed nothing and my doctor prescribed nothing. The numbness continues and I think it gradually gets worse. Should I pursue the matter or learn to live with this condition?

Dear Reader — Pursue it. Arthritis of the neck region of the spine or changes in the spine in this area can press on the roots of the nerves that go to the arm. Other structures can also press on the nerves. In some people a muscle may be drawn tightly over the artery, nerve and vein, that goes to that part of the arms or in still other people, an extra rib (cervical rib) will create pressure.

In some people the position in which they sleep makes a difference. If you have the habit of sleeping with your arms above your head, try learning to sleep with them down at your side. With the arms raised, muscular pressure can cause pressure on the nerves which wouldn't show up on an X-ray.

Let Legends Come To Life...

MEXICO CITY — History can hypnotize you in this oldest city in North America.

Walk along wide, tree-fringed Reforma Boulevard and study the great monuments and statues of Mexican heroes. It's sometimes hard to believe that this sophisticated, traffic-bustling Avenue de la Reforma once was an Aztec causeway.

You get a taste of history at the Ballet Folklorico too — where Mexican legends and song come dramatically to life.

Check out Zocalo, Mexico's biggest plaza. In its time it has seen plenty of revolutionary skirmishes, marathon fiestas and coronations.

Looming over the plaza is the massive stone La Catedral, the oldest church in Mexico.

THE ANCIENT cultures of Mexico are displayed and explained to visitors at the majestic Museum of Anthropology, a modern rough-stone building with marble floors. In a great courtyard, a fountain attracts with its cooling mist, and nearby are the museum's rooms that contain artifacts of the Toltec, Aztec, Mayan and other civilizations.

After you've heard a guide explain about the ancient city of Teotihuacan, visit the pyramids of this place of the past, which are 30 miles outside Mexico City.

After a few days in Mexico City, get out of town. We mean that. Get yourself a rental car — which costs about $18 a day. In just about a day's driving you'll be in a part of Mexico that will really charm you.

Less than 200 miles northwest of Mexico City is San Miguel de Allende — a cluster of narrow, cobblestone streets, flower-filled patios, elegant houses and tree-lined plazas that wander down a mountain slope from a height of 6,500 feet.

San Miguel was a wealthy mining village in the 18th Century and the site of revolutionary plots in the 1800s.

Today it is a haven for artists, writers and craftsmen.

There are colonial-style hotels in the central section — some with lovely gardens. The rates are about $19 for two with two meals each. There are also some delightful motel inns such as the Motel La Siesta and the Hotel Instituto Allende.

ONE OF OUR favorite Mexican towns has always been Taxco — the silver city. It's one of the oldest settlements in Mexico. Cortez is credited with discovering its rich silver deposits in 1522, and then founding the town near the mines.

Taxco has changed very little in the Guadalajara's 'Oktoberfest'

The second International Friendship Festival of Guadalajara, Mexico, will be held Oct. 20-29.

Modeled after Munich's Oktoberfest, the celebration will include bullfights, a boxing tournament, a series of international soccer matches, fashion shows, concerts and a film premiere.

One highlight will be a beauty contest featuring stewardesses from the five airlines serving Guadalajara — Aeromexico, Air France, CP Air, Hughes Airwest and Mexicana.

Guadalajara is known for its extensive parks and gardens, modern avenues and colonial buildings and monuments. Its cathedral is one of the few Gothic structures in the country.

The region's craft work is displayed in the Casa de la Artesanias de Jalisco, a state-operated museum and shop near the Guadalajara Hilton. Most of the work is for sale at extremely reasonable prices.

The city, which has a population of 1.5 million, supports a symphony orchestra and many folk dance groups. It also offers many sporting events including bullfights and charreadas or rodeos put on by gentleman riders.

TAXCO, ONE of the oldest settlements in Mexico, has changed very little in the last 200 years. If it weren't for the corner of the Volkswagen showing in the lower right of this picture, one could imagine that the narrow cobblestone street was from another age.

First Ski Holiday Just Around Corner

It's never too early to start planning the first ski holiday of the season and Swissair, the airline of Switzerland, is all ready to help on any type of program.

The big news for skiers this year is the return of the popular one-week packages, based on the low 7/8 GIT airfare introduced last winter.

For as little as $403, you get round trip air transportation from O'Hare to the heart of the Alps (Zurich or Geneva), ground transportation to the resort of your choice, transfers, hotel accommodations, based on twin occupancy, and continental breakfast at your hotel.

A choice of lunch or dinner is also included for skiers choosing two, three or four-star hotels.

The wide selection of Swiss, Austrian, French and German resorts and various hotel categories means that every skier is sure to find a combination right for his proficiency and pocketbook.

TRAVEL LORE

by Clare Wright, TRAVEL EDITOR

SAUSALITO, Calif. — The first time I landed in San Francisco I was so enchanted with that beautiful city it never occurred to me to check out its environs.

Then I discovered Sausalito.

Chic, charming — beautiful, Bohemian Sausalito.

"This town's a little like a resort on the French Riviera," said a friend of ours as we lunched lazily on the patio of elegant Ondine's, a fabulous waterfront restaurant that offers — along with an excellent cuisine — a spectacular view of San Francisco and the Bay.

Getting to Sausalito is a pleasant pastime too. It's eight miles from the Bay City across the Golden Gate Bridge, and you can drive there, ride a bicycle on the new San Francisco bike route — or you can take the Golden Gate Ferry.

This last time we chose the ferry. It was delightful to enjoy that leisurely half-hour trip past Alcatraz and picturesque Angel Island. You pick up the ferry at the Ferry Building at the foot of Market Street and it lands right at downtown Sausalito. The round trip fare is a dollar.

THERE'S SUCH a happy-go-lucky, relaxed kind of holiday atmosphere in Sausalito that you almost forget that people actually live there. You'd have to have a strong ticker for it, though. The pretty white houses are perched high up on almost perpendicular hills — which, of course, adds to the charming scenery of this very different little town.

We'd heard about a fantastic glassblower who inhabits one of the small dens of The Village Fair. Once a warehouse, this hodgepodge of "Old Town" type gift and import shops, galleries, boutiques, wine tastings, craft shops and souvenir corners sprawls all over a steep hillside. In order to browse through this marvelous conglomeration of fascinating little emporiums you must climb three stories up a winding stairway. It may seem like it takes forever because you find shop after shop that you simply can't resist going into.

We finally found the glassblower's corner. There was a sign on his door — "Be right back." We waited more than an hour — spending the time happily wandering in and out of the neighboring boutiques and galleries. But he never returned. We finally gave up and left The Village Fair to stroll further along on Bridgeway.

This waterfront street, by the way, is a promenade as well as a shopping center — and you're apt to bump elbows with famous and near-famous millionaires playboys and a good number of struggling artists and writers who have come to Sausalito for inspiration.

STILL FEELING in a browsing mood, we headed for the Trade Fair, a floating bazaar located on the shoreside of the municipal parking lot. It's on board the former ferryboat, "The Berkeley," which is anchored next to the Golden Gate Ferry Terminal.

Here you find a tremendous selection of showy trinkets and baubles. Sausalito has a potent lure for creative folk and you'll find dedicated and talented metal sculptors, ceramic artists, painters, weavers, candlemakers, photographers, leatherworkers, glassblowers and saddle makers.

I like the names in Sausalito. All the shops and food and drink places seem to have unique ones. Two Turtles, Zack's by the Way, DublinDublin, the Screamshow, Pegasus, Batters & Boards, Peg Leg and Changing Faces.

Then there's the "Bar With No Name" at 753 Bridgeway — part drinking joint, part coffeehouse — and in general a great rendezvous spot for all kinds of interesting people. The inside is attractively oak paneled, and out in back there's a wonderful backyard garden with tables and comfortable chairs. Chess games are big here — or dominoes — or cards — or just quiet conversation.

A great place to have Sunday brunch is Sally Stanford's Valhalla. Somebody told us Jack London used to come in here a lot. Sally, herself, is a reformed ex-mad who got herself elected to the city council — on the third try.

SAUSALITO HAS a somewhat rowdy past — with booze smuggling, gambling, corruption and vice, according to a couple of natives we talked to.

The Spanish explorer, Juan Manuel de Ayala, discovered the place and named it Sausalito, meaning "little willow." Later whaling ships came — then the Chinese — then the Portuguese — and then the smugglers.

Later Jack London came and wrote the "Sea Wolf." William Randolph Hearst is said to have started building a castle there. It all adds to the local color.

CORK CITY is one of the friendliest cities in Ireland and has a history that goes back to the 6th Century, when St. Finbarr founded a church and school on the south bank of the River Lee. The present cathedral, pictured here, was built in 1865, on the site of the ancient St. Finbarr's Cathedral.

"EVERYTHING'S UPSIDE DOWN," squeals Susi as the Blarney Castle guard positions her to kiss the famous stone that promises to insure her the Irish "gift of gab" for all her life. It's a scary view from the 83-foot-high parapet of the castle tower, but hundreds of thousands have braved it through the years.

KILLARNEY — Talk about variety! Since leaving Dublin we've walked in the footsteps of James Joyce, lunched in a witch's house, admired famous racehorses, lolled at a golden seaside, toured the famous Waterford Glass Factory, and enjoyed a marvelous European circus in the quaint Dutch-Spanish-Italian fishing village of Kinsale.

And yes — we even kissed the Blarney Stone. At least the kids did.

The diversity of Irish landscapes continually intrigues us. All in one day you can drive along a placid countryside — then follow a rugged coastline — or catch your breath over steep, spectacular mountain passes such as we saw on the way here from Glengarriff.

Our hotel here is the superb lofty Aghadoe Heights located on the summit of Aghadoe Hill near the ruins of a round tower, ancient church and castle. The panoramic view of the Killarney lakes and mountains from our window is breath-taking.

ago we drove southwest, passing Naas. James Joyce went to school here and wrote about it in "A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man."

Twenty-nine miles from Dublin is the Curragh, a huge plain of 5,000 acres with horse-breeding farms. One of the famous Irish Sweeps is run here.

After promising Billy and Susi they would have a chance to pony trek before we left Ireland, we drove on to Kilkenny, a city steeped in Irish medieval history. The oldest building here is Kyteler's Inn, once owned by Dame Alice Kyteler who, in 1324, managed to escape a witchcraft charge and have her maid, Petronilla, burned at the stake instead.

After lunch at Kyteler's we stopped at the Kilkenny Design Workshops across from the main gate of romantic, 13th-Century Kilkenny Castle. The new designs and products constantly being created here give Ireland firm leadership in this field.

OUR DATE to go through the Waterford Glass Factory was on a Monday, so Sunday we passed through the once-upon-a-time Danish settlement now known worldwide for its exquisite fine crystal — and drove seven miles south to the sea — and Tramore, where Irish families take their holidays.

Next morning we zipped back to Waterford to watch those incredible glass craftsmen work their magical skill to create crystal treasures. If you go to Ireland, don't miss a tour of the Waterford Glass Factory. It must be by appointment, however, and no one under 16 is allowed.

We fell in love with picturesque old world Kinsale, a charming fishing village with narrow winding streets and trim houses climbing up the wooded slopes of Compass Hill.

From Kinsale our route led to Cork City, one of the friendliest of Irish cities. Five miles to the north is the pretty little village of Blarney.

We couldn't pass here without a visit to famous Blarney Castle, where travelers from all over the world have leaned precariously over an 83-foot high battlement parapet hoping to achieve lifelong eloquence by kissing "the stone."

WE WALKED the half-mile path to the massive tower and climbed 103 winding steps to the battlements. Two men were sitting above a stone recess. Looking through the barred base of this we could see the trees way, way below. A little scary, I thought.

It's quite a feat. You lie on your back — then one of the guards holds tightly onto you and urges you to inch down and back until your lips touch the stone.

From Blarney we drove to Macroom. It was a market day and we listened to Irish-speaking countryside women dressed in picturesque hooded cloaks.

Then — onto deep, secluded Glengarriff — past Kenmare (noted for its lace-making) — and to Killarney — land of lakes and legends and jaunting cars.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Here is another Jannerson hand. South is in four spades and West has doubled the one spade opening bid and has opened a trump.

South looks over dummy carefully. It looks as if West will hold all missing high cards and South is faced with the prospect of losing two hearts, a diamond and a club. What feat of magic can make one of these losers disappear?

Actually, no magic is necessary. Just a little bit of luck.

South wins the trump and leads a low diamond toward dummy. West's best play is to hop up with his king. He does just that and leads a second trump.

South wins this in his own hand also and plays a low club. If West clatters up with the ace, South's worries are over.

But West plays low. Dummy's king wins the trick and South is ready with the magic.

He plays out the rest of the diamonds, discarding one of dummy's clubs on the last one. Then he plays his queen of clubs.

West is on lead again and no matter what he does, one of South's heart losers has vanished.

What was the bit of luck we mentioned earlier? If diamonds had broken badly

Let's Resolve Delegate Fight

Long after the November elections have passed and the fate of Sen. George McGovern has been decided by the voters, a shadowy question of who should have participated in the convention which nominated him will linger in Cook County Circuit Court.

On Nov. 20, Chicago Alderman William Singer and his fellow delegates to the Democratic National Convention will be called upon by Circuit Judge Daniel A. Covelli to show cause why they should not be held in contempt for participating in the convention.

They did so with authority of the convention, in the face of a court order by Covelli ordering them to yield their seats to the previously elected delegation made up of Mayor Richard J. Daley and his cohorts.

There is an empty ring to this court proceeding, coming as it does nearly four months after the convention has dissolved. There seems little to be gained by the contempt hearing.

Following Judge Covelli's ruling against the Singer delegation, a panel of federal judges ruled that the seating of the delegation was a matter to be decided by the convention. And the convention voted to recognize the anti-Daley group.

The prime motivation for continuing the contempt action would appear to be a desire for revenge by the unseated Daley delegates.

Whatever action might be taken by Judge Covelli, it cannot result in any changes in the business of a convention no longer in existence.

Were it not for the seriousness of the charge involved, we would urge that the matter be dropped by Judge Covelli. However, it is clearly impossible for any court to back away from a situation in which its authority has been defied.

The necessity for upholding the integrity and authority of the court is clearly defined in the broad latitude afforded judges in punishing those who act in contempt.

The fact remains, however, that Judge Covelli was not so indignant at the action of the Singerites as to put forth a contempt citation himself. He merely informed the Daley attorneys that he would entertain a petition seeking such a citation.

Were the Daley attorneys now to choose to withdraw their petition, the court could gracefully put to rest what seems to be at this point a moot question. But that seems to be too much to hope for from a political machine with a low threshold of tolerance for dissent and a long memory.

Lawyers On Trial

Fighting words were uttered by the newly elected president of the Trial Lawyers Association at its 26th annual convention in St. Louis last month.

J. D. Lee, a 43-year-old attorney from Tennessee, lambasted corporations and the insurance industry for "taking advantage of the consumer." He volunteered the 27,000-member association to "win for the people the protection they deserve" and to "be on their side against the faceless menace of special interests."

"If this time in our history is to be the age of the consumer, then it is also the age of the trial lawyer who, more than anyone, can and will carry the consumer's fight for justice, for fairness, for dignity, for human rights."

On the other hand, according to Virginia Knauer, presidential assistant for consumer affairs, "The trial lawyers squeeze $1 billion each year out of the current auto liability insurance system — about 25 cents out of every dollar you pay for automotive liability insurance. They stand to lose this pot of gold if no-fault insurance is enacted."

Rather than "let's you and him (or her) fight," it would be more encouraging if the lawyers were taking a leaf from another professional group, the dentists, who are doing their darndest to make their occupation obsolete.

But while we may reasonably look forward to the day when nobody needs to have cavities, the same thing unfortunately cannot be said of litigation, of lawyers and "the law's delay."

Positive Reading

Aesop was right. You can cry "wolf" too often.

Another way of saying it is that scare headlines may frighten away the very people who need the information.

This is the finding of a study conducted by University of Michigan journalism professor Robert L. Bishop. He examined reader reactions to a cancer research story under two headlines — encouraging and frightening.

Persons exposed to the encouraging headline were more apt to read the story and to remember more of what they read, he reports.

The modern moral: Campaigns for health, safety and other public services, he suggests, ought to use positive, supportive messages rather than shock techniques.

Bruce Biossat's Column

Response To McGovern 'Lukewarm'

by BRUCE BIOSSAT

Sen. George McGovern, struggling to find the handle, isn't having much better luck with old New Deal themes than he did earlier with his more drastic tax and welfare proposals.

On his current swing through midwestern and eastern states, he was telling a sizable crowd of students at a West Virginia college what social programs he as president would improve or develop in the years ahead. He mentioned Social Security, child development, aid to education, housing for the poor, city transportation. The response, even from pro-McGovern youth, was thin.

A veteran Democratic leader working for McGovern asked me:

"Why isn't this stuff catching on?"

The answer surely isn't simple, and it is crucial to McGovern's uphill battle against President Nixon. For he has been getting very strong advice from men like campaign chairman Lawrence O'Brien and Sen. Hubert Humphrey to do just what he is doing — hammer hard on the old Roosevelt themes which portray the Democratic party as, uniquely, the friend of the poor, the disadvantaged, the elderly, the ill, etc.

Their argument is that McGovern must talk this language to get back into the Democratic mainstream, to recapture straying ethnic-Catholic workers, to win the full allegiance and help of disgruntled Democratic regulars. He must, they say, shake off the label of radical.

But I have heard the West Virginia incident repeated several times on this trip. The response to McGovern's promise of new activism on social programs is consistently lukewarm. If there is applause at all, it tends to be perfunctory.

So what is the answer to the question the West Virginia leader posed?

The non-polling reporter can only draw upon the voter researches of others. They suggest that lions of Americans are turned off from the kind of big government activism symbolized by the old New Deal themes McGovern is currently stressing.

Two of their basic complaints are that the touted social programs generally don't do enough for the people they are supposed to help, and that they cost too much in taxes.

In the spring, Alabama Gov. George Wallace won lusty shouts of approval

Mini-Bike Trail, 'School' Defended

The September 14 letter, "Wake Up to the Mini-Bike Peril," prompts me to write this letter on behalf of youngsters who would like to have a mini-bike trail.

While I agree with all the writers who have complained about the dust, fumes, and the noise of mini-bikes, the youngsters have a two-fold problem:

—They cannot get jobs.

—They cannot pursue their main interest which today seems to be motor-bikes.

Both of the above can be blamed on the liberal mentality which now seems to control almost every facet of our lives. I would imagine that almost everyone has noticed that there is a most evident polarization in the points of view that people have today. If you agree with a person on one issue, it is very probable that you will agree with that person on almost all issues. And vice versa. And of course the liberal versus conservative categories are easily distinguishable and need no explanation. The question arises, how is it that those with the liberal mentality can almost always be found in occupations that tend to control the lives of others, such as in the news media? And if there is a public meeting you can be sure that only those with a liberal inclination will bother to attend, and the conservatives will stay home and watch television.

This is what happened several years ago when Paddock announced that there would be a public meeting to decide what programs would be provided for youngsters at the new million dollar building at Lions Park. A few of my friends and I decided that it would be nice if at least one of the programs would be a discussion group on the merits of the free-enterprise system. At the meeting when this idea was presented we were informed that the plans for building were already decided upon and that the purpose of the meeting was to organize some sort of resistance group that would fight off criticism when the public would finally find out what this plan was. As incredible as this may sound, this is typical of the brazen attitude that liberals now have at public meetings. The plan for the building went something along the line that the youngsters themselves would decide what they would do, and they too were invited to the meeting. Now this may sound quite paranoic, but would you believe it, the youngsters were liberal, too. The results of this plan were quite disastrous as vandals raised quite a bit of havoc.

I venture to say that if more conservatives had been at the planning session to decide what sort of recreation shall we provide for our children, a recreation hall may not have been the result at all, but instead perhaps a year-round ice skating rink, or perhaps even a mini-bike trail. I am sure that not too many of my fellow conservatives will agree with me on this idea of a mini-bike trail, but what I have in mind is more of a supervised school where engine maintenance and repair would be also stressed, and, of course, it should be away from all populated areas. I recall reading Captain Eddie Rickenbacker's autobiography, and how he became deeply involved with automobile engines and racing cars even at an early age, and I think this had much to do in shaping his character. And even in my home (I have four boys aged 12 to 18) I try never to underestimate the ability of my boys, and above all never to stifle any project they may undertake. One boy did own a mini-bike for about a year and it did require some rather major repairs. He rather amazed me with his mechanical ability, and I consider his experience most valuable to him. My oldest boy jumped right into cars at a very early age, and was driving a great big Buick (without my knowledge) when he could hardly see above the dashboard. His interest continued and today at 18 he is earning over $5 an hour as a mechanic, and going to college full time. All four of my boys are gainfully employed, and this too I consider most important in the shaping of a youngster's character.

How I blame the liberal mentality for our lousy job market is quite a lengthy story, parts of which I may have mentioned in previous letters, and which I hope to reemphasize in future letters. But for now, why don't we consider providing the youngsters with a supervised school for mini-bike? There might be a Captain Eddie Rickenbacker among them.

She Blasts Colfax Street Change

Letter to Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner:

I hope you are not seriously thinking of making Colfax Street one-way temporary or permanently. The traffic on Colfax is bad enough now without inviting more traffic on it. And please, please do not put up a left turn signal at Northwest Highway and Hicks Place. It is not that difficult to cross there yet by car or walking. If Northwest Hwy. and Hicks Place had a left turn signal it would be impossible to cross Colfax Street at Mozart or any other street off Colfax. When the drivers make a green light at Northwest Highway and Hicks Place and turn left by the time they get to Mozart they are going the speed limit and have no intentions of stopping for anything. It has been a very bad corner since the removal of the STOP sign at the intersection of Hicks Place, Colfax and Schubert. There have been four accidents in the past year at Mozart and Colfax. Do you really think we need more traffic on Colfax? They are going to widen West Colfax now with future plans of widening East Colfax which will triple our traffic. With Palatine Road going to be four lanes and the Northwest Highway going to be six lanes why must we have a residential street like Colfax with five schools, a park, six churches and the Plaza surrounding it be redesigned for more and faster traffic? I beg you to think of all the people that live on or near Colfax that will be affected by a one-way street instead of a few people that are inconvenienced a few hours a week. Towns belong to people not to the automobile.

Armstrong's 'Honest'

It is a shame that in this day and age that certain groups condemn a man and find him guilty before a crime is committed. I am speaking of course about the so-called "concerned citizens" of Buffalo Grove and Gary Armstrong. When I registered to vote the registrar brought up the subject and referred to a certain mayor recently indicted and stated, "we can't take that chance" and "if he had nothing to hide he would resign." This is typical of certain other countries but not here in America. Mr. Armstrong has proven himself to be an honest and fair man so why would his principles change overnight? He is guilty of nothing and I only hope that Gary does not bow to this rabble-rousing group.

We live in the Highland-Wolf Road area in Wheeling and our problem in previous floodings has been aggravated mainly by cars coming through the flooded areas causing further damage to our property.

This August 25, due to the efforts of

Word A Day

Business Today

by LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) The United States needs natural gas from Alaska's Arctic Slope now, and it is generally agreed that a pipeline to bring it across Canada is ecologically feasible.

Nevertheless, bringing the gas down must await solution of the controversy over how to get Arctic oil out of the Prudhoe Bay region to the United States. This fight is over whether to build the pipeline to Valdez and then bring the oil by tanker to the United States, or to build a more expensive oil pipeline paralleling the proposed gas line and terminating in the Middle West.

Conservationists and ecologists oppose the Alaskan pipeline. The oil companies are against moving the oil alongside the Canadian gas pipeline for financial and political reasons. The Nixon administration so far has favored the Alaskan route, but the conservationists and ecologists who favor the Canadian route for the oil may not be beaten yet.

DELAY IN reaching a decision on the oil route not only threatens to hold up ultimate delivery of the gas, it also poses the specter of bankruptcy for the state of Alaska and various Alaskan businesses and has created serious financial problems for some major oil companies.

The gas industry must wait for a solution to the oil controversy, because so far, no pure gas wells have been found on the Arctic Slope.

The desperate need for the Arctic gas in the United States is not just a matter of the revenue and profits of gas companies. Proved natural gas reserves in the United States are down to a 12-year supply, by far the lowest in history. Gas pipeline companies and gas utilities have negotiated or are negotiating 20-year deals to buy liquefied natural gas from Algeria, Libya, the Middle East and the Soviet Union.

There's a big argument for the Canadian route. Last winter Canadian and American companies discovered vast new quantities of gas and oil in the Arctic islands far north of Prudhoe Bay, and the Canadian government ultimately will force the construction of undersea pipelines to bring this gas and oil into Canada's Northwest Territories and thence southward.

THE MAJOR ecological concern is over the portion of the line to be built on U.S. soil in Alaska. Compared with the oil pipeline, it's a relatively simple problem because gas will move through the 48-inch pipe at temperatures below 32 degrees F. In contrast with the buildup to 150 degrees that flow friction will develop in the oil pipeline. This means the gas pipeline's temperature will be close to that of the frozen tundra it is crossing.

Nevertheless, ecological risks are present and Gas Arctic Northwest Project is spending a lot of money to minimize them.

The gas pipeline from Prudhoe Bay is expected to move 3.5 billion cubic feet of gas daily when fully operational. Its building will require the services of 5,000 workers. It will take two to three years to build and when finished will be operated by several hundred permanent employees, mostly technicians.

American Savings Opens Office In Schaumburg

Arthur G. Erdmann Jr., president of American Savings Association, announced the completion and grand opening of its new building at 1010 Meacham Road in Schaumburg.

American Savings was founded in 1913 in Oak Park, and maintains a second office at 6720 W. Roosevelt Road in that city. Assets of American Savings exceed 15 million dollars.

dustry and of the northwest area to the new office. Erdmann, a former vice president, secretary, and director of Bell Savings and Loan Association, has been president of American Savings for 10 years. He resides in Palatine.

John P. McNamara, vice president, was associated with Bell Savings and Loan Association and the 1st Federal Savings and Loan Association of Chicago, prior to joining American Savings 10 years ago. He is a resident of Arlington Heights.

American Savings is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank System and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., which insures savings up to $20,000.

Not Many Families Have A Budget That Actually Works

Many working families have budgets — but too few families have budgets that work.

To make a budget achieve its financial objectives requires persistence, frequent review, readjustments — and a practical plan, said William A. Reasoner, president and chief executive officer of Kansas City-based Waddell & Reed, Inc. "Families who face up to reality and budget wisely have already overcome one of the two most difficult obstacles which separate them from their financial objectives," he said.

Waddell & Reed is a national financial services complex which manages and sponsors the United Funds, Inc. and United Continental group of mutual funds. United Investors Life Insurance Co., is also part of the Waddell & Reed complex.

"The second most serious obstacle is the temptation to deviate from the budget as months, or years, pass by," Reasoner said. "Stick-to-it-iveness — rejecting the tender trap of unaffordable luxuries — leads to the financial rainbow's end, or a series of ends as objectives are achieved.

"SOME FAMILIES may need the assistance of a professional financial planner in setting up a workable budget, but many will find the development of their own plan a challenging and rewarding experience.

"Nail down all of the income potentials — as accurately as possible — including: take-home wages or salary, bonuses, commissions, loan repayments, interest and dividends, tax refunds, gifts and other possibilities. Everything else in the budget subtracts from the total income," he advised.

"The subtractions start with the fixed cost expenditures — items such as mortgage or rent; insurance premiums for life, auto, homeowners, and other policies; taxes such as federal, state, property and others; installment debts, car, furniture, appliances, department stores and others; savings, general and special purpose; and investments, such as mutual funds.

"Investments — as a hedge against inflation — are an important budget item in working toward the achievement of financial objectives. They should not be considered a flexible cost, subject to trimming or elimination all together."

REASONER EXPLAINS that further subtractions come in the form of flexible costs — expenses over which the family can exercise judgment and control. These include food, household operations, utilities, transportation, family allowances, clothing, medical and dental treatment, recreation, contributions and other miscellaneous expenditures. Control of the expenses in these flexible costs often holds the key to making a budget work, he points out.

"These are the ingredients of the overall family budget. The object is to balance income with expenditures. Those who find income ahead of expenses can now throw the scissors away.

"If budget expenses are more than income, it is time to pick up the scissors and start snipping away at the flexible expenses. With some realistic tailoring, most families can produce a budget that fits — and works," Reasoner concluded.

Reserve Bank Reports Loans

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago recently reported on loans outstanding in Seventh District and bank holdings of U.S. debt in its newsletter, Banking Briefs.

LOANS outstanding at district member banks increased more than 6 per cent during the first half of 1972. Gains ranged from less than 2 per cent in Michigan to over 9 per cent in Illinois and Iowa.

Loans to commercial and industrial borrowers at all member banks rose 7 per cent, despite a 5 per cent decline at Michigan banks. Increases of 13 per cent in loans to nonbank financial institutions and 15 per cent in loans to brokers and dealers on securities contributed to the district gain in total loans.

Almost 80 per cent of the dollar increase in member bank loans was accounted for by the three major types of loans. Business loans accounted for 40 per cent, real estate loans for 26 per cent, and consumer installment loans for 14 per cent.

MEMBER BANKS in this district reduced their government security portfolios by a net of $288 million or 6.2 per cent, between June 30, 1971 and June 28, 1972. In the year ended June 30, U.S. securities held by all commercial banks in the nation declined about $1 billion. The Treasury's survey of commercial bank ownership indicates that the decline was concentrated in intermediate maturities (one to five years). Holdings of both short- and long-term issues rose slightly.

U.S. debt held by private domestic non-bank investors (including individuals, businesses, and associations) also fell approximately $1 billion in the year ended June 30, while the total of all federal securities outstanding rose $29 billion. Who financed this debt? Almost half went into the portfolios of Federal Reserve banks ($8 billion) and U.S. Government accounts ($8 billion). The rest was absorbed by foreign investors.

Estimated holdings of U.S. public debt securities by foreign and international investors rose more than $17 billion. U.S. issues held at Federal Reserve banks in custody for foreign official accounts rose $20 billion in this 12-month period.

5.5 Million In Disaster Loans Applied For Almost 5.5 million dollars in disaster loan applications have been filed with the Small Business Administration since flooding first struck the Chicago area late last month.

Through Friday, according to SBA Regional Director Robert Dwyer, there had been 1,271 home loan applications for $4,677,718 and 22 business loan applications for $535,433.

Thus far, he added, approval has been given 324 of the home loans for $1,021,000 and two of the business loans for $3,300.

Dwyer said 3,477 interviews have been conducted by his staff with flood victims since Aug. 29 when portions of the Chicago area were declared a disaster area and thus became eligible for SBA disaster relief aid.

The director added that the disaster declaration now is applicable to Cook, DuPage, and Kane counties and that it has been amended to cover not only victims of the August flooding, but those of the storms which struck last Sunday and Monday.

The declaration enables home owners and tenants, business people, churches, private schools, and other non-profit organizations in the affected areas to qualify for low-cost, long-term SBA loans to restore or replace damaged property not covered by insurance.

ILLINOIS HOSPITALS OPERATE ON OIL

A modern hospital uses hundreds of things that come from oil: surgeon's gloves and gowns, plastic tubes and syringes, x-ray film, bed sheets, and even the paint on the walls.

But most of all, hospitals use energy. In the operating room, the intensive care ward . . . wherever patients are treated.

75% of all our energy comes from oil and natural gas (including 40% of our electricity).

But today, we're using these petroleum fuels faster than we are finding them. That's why America faces an Energy Gap.

We're your local oil companies. Working to bridge the growing Energy Gap. Because it's as sure as a surgeon's hands . . . a country that runs on oil can't afford to run short.

We feel like 100 MILLION DOLLARS ...and so should you!

When you stop and think of it, one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000.00) is a lot of money. It's your money. You have entrusted us to manage it.

An institution which attains this level in assets acquires a new status in the financial world. Frankly, we like the feeling—and you should, too.

On our side, it means a rarely attained achievement. It means a highly professional competence. It means giving our customers a variety of financially sound and flexible savings plans and paying the highest rates allowed by law. It means providing our customers with sure, dependable loans. It means protecting our savers' dollars, not only with the insurance of a Federal agency but with our own financial strength and integrity.

On your part, it means significant accomplishment. As a mutual institution chartered by the Federal Government, we are owned—not by officers, directors, employees, or stockholders—but by you who make use of our facilities and services. This is what you have accomplished in the 18-plus years since Arlington Federal Savings was founded in March, 1953:

- You have made $200,000,000 available through your savings to families seeking to achieve ambitions for home ownership or home renovation. This is a stout fund enabling thousands of northwest suburban families to obtain the financing needed to build, buy, or remodel their residences. It has contributed vastly to the economic strength of the area.

- You have added $22,000,000 to your resources—the earnings you have received for depositing your savings with us and making them available for home lending.

- You have encouraged the physical development of the Association along adopted Williamsburg colonial lines rather than in the direction of a modern "antiseptic" building. This is really your financial home; we have simply tried to make it as you have indicated you like it.

The best evidence that you endorse what has been done is our extraordinary record of growth, a record that within just two decades has placed us within the top 10 per cent of the nation's 5,550 savings and loan associations. Particularly convincing is your response to our April 1971 announcement of expansion plans:

- A 22 per cent increase in savings assets during 1971, the largest percentile gain in over a decade.

- The surpassing of the 1971 record in the first seven months of 1972, a savings pace which, if maintained, will produce an incredible 40 per cent increase for the whole year.

"I've always been treated royal." The 21,000 persons who registered during the six-week Open House ending July 15 paid their compliments in words. Of all the congratulatory expressions, the one we cherish most is a handwritten note from an Iron Mountain (Mich.) lady, a former local resident, who wrote:

"Words can't begin to say how beautiful the bank now is (we forgive her for calling us a bank). It sure is something to be proud of and I'm very glad to be a depositor. I took several of your brochures to show my friends and relatives up here and all they could say was they have never seen anything quite like it or so huge or beautiful. As long as I've been banking I've always been treated royal and I expect to keep banking at Arlington Heights Federal for quite some time."

We are particularly grateful for the comment about "royal" treatment. We think the architecture has something to do with it; our employees frequently comment how easy it is to be warm and friendly in such surroundings. Customers too get into the spirit when they enter the building.

In addition, of course, we have emphasized in our staff relations programs that in a business like ours where one dollar bill is quite like another, friendly service is the distinguishing characteristic among savings institutions.

We have striven to give our customers every advantage that the laws governing financial institutions and sound, prudent management allow; our savings programs pay the highest allowable rates of return and our home mortgage loans combine advantageous features not everywhere available to the borrower. Beyond these competitive features is the special reputation we have acquired for treating our customers "royal."

If you are not presently one of the 31,500 savings customers, now is an appropriate time to make use of our convenient, friendly services and facilities. The New Account Form on this page together with your passbook or certificate from another savings institution is all you need to become a member of the growing Arlington Federal Savings family—$100,000,000 strong.

Semi-Pros Love Their Game

THE SEMI-PRO football player is a different breed from his big-time counterparts in the NFL — and not just from the obvious standpoint of ability.

Many pros stay in the game primarily or strictly for financial reasons — and not just the stars. On the other hand, the semi-pro performer — like the high school and college brand — keeps suiting up simply because he loves football.

There's no way he's going to get rich or even eke out a subsistence in his minor league. A semi-pro gets gratis "walking-around" money for his services, but that's about it.

Yet, something keeps luring him back to the gridiron. Somehow he still hasn't lost his thirst for contact, his drive to compete or his wish for camaraderie and a common goal with a group of teammates.

Mount Prospect resident Joe Wolfe knows about these feelings. Until this year you could substitute his name for the above pronouns and that would describe how he felt about football.

That is, until this past summer. At the age of 30, after an eventful and rewarding career, Wolfe finally called it quits recently.

He put in seven years of distinguished service in semi-pro ball, the last six with the Lake County Rifles who are now stationed in Mundelein. Prior to that he was an important contributor to the last Rose Bowl team at the U. of Illinois in 1963 (they could use him now) and starred at Chicago's Fenwick High School.

Wolfe still loves the game and only last year was an all-league performer for the second time for the Rifles. And he did not have any injury problems. Why, then, is he hanging up the spikes at an age when many players are in their prime?

"It strictly business reasons," Joe explains. "I just don't have the time any more. I own four service stations and just bought another. Three of them are in Chicago."

This is obviously time-consuming and besides, Joe and a couple of friends are remodeling his attractive house in the southeast section of Mount Prospect.

"It was getting so I couldn't back practice any more," he said. "It's not that I can't do it physically, but I have to conserve my time."

Rifles and other semi-pro performers work full-time jobs, then put in a lot of extra time — more for those who live farther away — in order to keep playing. This again emphasizes their love for the game. But it can get to be too much for a person in Wolfe's position.

"When I started with the Rifles," he remembers, "I just owned one station and everything worked out great. But now, I don't have time for anything but my business. I don't really need the money from it, but for some reason I want to keep expanding."

He heaped superlatives on two new Rifles coaches, head man Jesse Vail and Bill Duchon who this year moved to the Lake County staff after making the Joliet Chargers a national semi-pro powerhouse for years. "I can't say enough about those two," raved Wolfe. "They have made the Rifles what they are today."

Lake County finally suffered its first loss last Saturday night, but had won eight straight prior to that, five of them in league play. The Rifles still lead the Central States Football League by a game.

He said the coaches "tried to talk me out of retiring, but they understood why I had to. They are so good this year that they don't really need me. I wouldn't have left unless I was sure they had a good replacement for me."

After a star-studded high school career, Wolfe played three years for Pete Elliott at Illinois and teamed up with Dick Butkus and Jim Grabowski to help bring the Illini a Big Ten title and Rose Bowl victory (47-7 over Washington). He is still good friends with both Butkus and Grabowski.

Joe had known both of them through high school when all three were honored at all-state banquets three years in a row. Wolfe played both ways at Fenwick, then became one of the smallest offensive linemen (5-10, 210) both in the Big Ten and the Central States League. But his fierce desire overcame his size throughout his memorable career.

Still, it did keep him from making the Chicago Bears squad last year when he was invited for a tryout.

Going back to his college days, he said, "I always knew I had to desire to play somewhere but I was realistic enough to know I would never be drafted because of my size. But I wasn't worried — even though I had gotten married as a freshman in college — because I had a finance degree. I started after college as manager of the credit division at a large clothing store in Milwaukee, then came down here and started playing ball again."

Even though Wolfe knows the Rifles don't receive nearly the publicity many other semi-pro clubs get — "they're too close to the Bears," he says — he certainly has no regrets about the latter part of his career.

"I had more prestige with the Rifles than most NFL players ever get who sit on the bench or are on the taxi squad," he points out. "I think it's better to be a large spoke in a small wheel than the other way around. It's a more friendly situation with the Rifles and they're in a fine league — the best semi-pro league, possibly, in the country."

"The league has lasted because it has refused entries from too far away as has kept teams in close proximity."

As for now, he loves this area and is very happy that his nine-year-old son Billy has a chance to play football in the fine Mount Prospect Midgott program. "He's real small just like I always was but he was all-league his first year," says proud Papa.

"It is beyond belief what football experience can do for a kid. Besides, I can still see myself on the field when I watch my son play."

Wolfe is gone but not forgotten at the places where he starred. Perhaps one of the most important things he accomplished was to prove that there's still a place for the little man in football — if he wants to play badly enough.

Hersey Overall Champ At Crystal Lake

Fremd Tops Invite; Palatine 2nd At Bloom

by LARRY EVERHART
Cross Country Editor

The fact that the Mid-Suburban League is one of the top cross country conferences in the state (many say the best other than the West Suburban) was again demonstrated Saturday morning at five different scattered invitational meets.

Fremd was a winner to stay undefeated in all meets, Palatine kept performing well with a runner-up spot, Hersey took a title for all levels in a unique scoring meet, Forest View and Prospect had a good day, and only Rolling Meadows was not among top finishers in its own invite.

Here's the roundup of all weekend meets involving MSL schools.

FREMDS WINS AT ROCKFORD
The way Fremd keeps dominating the Forest City Invitational at Rockford every year, it's a wonder the Vikings keep getting invitations.

They enjoyed Saturday's version of the meet as much as ever, never being seriously contested in racking up another varsity title. Although there were 20 teams entered, Fremd had an amazingly low total of 45 to second-place Naperville's 57.

Conant also made the journey and finished a respectable sixth.

Two touted names in state harrier circles, Paul Sowell of Rockford Guilford and Jim Buell of Mount Morris were first and second with 14:13 and 14:14. Fremd grabbed the next two places with Steve Inbody and Jamie Olson.

Other Vikes helping out were Chuck Ruppenthal with 11th, Mike Rohrer with 13th, Ken Geheb with 14th, John Miller with 20th and Jeff Stitt with 23rd.

"Our spread was under 25 seconds for our first five runners," said Fremd coach Ron Menely, "and I was happy about that because it was 1:10 last Monday."

Conant was led by Bob Everly with 21st place, Steve Wattson had 24th, Ken McDill 28th, John Bond 38th, Dave Mansolf 42nd, Rick Jensen 43rd and Ron Golubski 49th.

Fremd's sophomores also won the team trophy with an even more astonishing total of 29 against second-place Rockford Guilford's 53 and third-place Conant's 88.

The powerful soph Vikes were led by Dave Scott's second place and Jim Galis' third, while Dave Elderdin took fourth for Conant.

The 2.93-mile course is hilly but was in good condition Saturday.

Fremd will be on the road twice this week, against Elk Grove and Prospect Tuesday and against Hersey (the other undefeated team in the MSL) and Schaumburg Thursday. Conant will host Forest View and Wheeling Tuesday and will entertain Palatine and Elk Grove Thursday.

PIRATES IMPRESSIVE AT BLOOM

Continuing to respond well to a rugged schedule, Palatine's cross country team placed a strong second in the 23-team Bloom Invitational Saturday.

Only powerful Maine East had a better total than coach Joe Johnson's crew, by 18 points. The Pirates were a comfortable 23 points ahead of third-place Lane Tech.

Maine East was the fourth team Palatine has already contested among the top five in the state (according to figures of the Timely Times). The others were LaGrange, York and Fremd. The Pirates have lost to all, but put up good battles in each case.

The Bloom affair had some unusual circumstances, as Johnson described: "The runners had to jump over a wooden fence and chain. Some of them felt, but none of ours. But it was dangerous because it was raining. It always rains at that meet."

Gary Marshak of Maine East won the race in 15:29 while Scott Williams was Palatine's top man with 15:54 for eighth. Paul Kearns was 10th, one second behind. Bill O'Neill came in 18th, Dave Tehle 24th and Steve Peterson 35th for the Pirates.

On the sophomore level, Palatine was seventh among 20 teams with Bob Guthrie leading the Pirates.

Palatine hosts Arlington and Hersey in a big league double dual Tuesday, and takes on Elk Grove and Conant Thursday.

HERSEY TAKES OVERALL TROPHY

Hersey continued to demonstrate Saturday that its overall cross country program in less than two years has become one of the best in the area.

The Huskies earned the overall first-place trophy in the 15-team Crystal Lake Invitational with the best composite performance by all levels. The meet is similar to the Maine West Center Meet (which was a week ago Saturday), having separate races for each class (all freshmen together, sophomores together, etc.).

Leading the charge was Hersey's star-studded group of sophomores with first place in their division. They were led by Jay McCarthy's 18:45, just 11 seconds behind highly-touted Woodstock runner Tony Magdaleno.

Others also having a hand in the soph title were Ron Stephani with 17:13 for fourth place, Dave Jones with 17:23 for seventh, Henry Regard with 18:18 for 17th and Hal Stenbridge with 18:21 for 19th.

Coach Larry Travis said the most remarkable thing about the triumph was that his boys were not going all-out to win, saving something for a very important league schedule this week — especially since the Crystal Lake course is so hilly and can take a lot out of a runner's legs for a couple of days.

Hersey's juniors were the next-best group with second place, just two points behind winning Benet Academy. Tom Burridge led with 17:05 for fourth place, Chris Cooney had 17:54 for 10th and Tom Mogee 11th with 17:56.

The seniors finished fifth behind John Jones' 10th (18:57) and Dan Leider's 11th (17:02) while the freshmen were sixth with Dave Vipond's 13th (18:52).

In overall standings, Benet Academy was second and Woodstock third.

Hersey this week will face its toughest dual-meet competition all year with a pair of doubleheaders. On Tuesday, The Huskies (4-0 in the Mid-Suburban League) must meet a pair of 3-1 teams, Palatine and Arlington. They take on the only other unbeaten team thus far, Fremd, Thursday.

"This meet (Crystal Lake) helped our confidence," said Travis. "If we're going to do anything, we've got to do it this week. These next two meets will tell whether we've got it or not."

FALCONS, KNIGHTS DO WELL

The Mid-Suburban League was well-represented at the Waukegan Invitational cross country meet Saturday as Forest View finished fourth and improving Prospect fifth among 18 teams in the varsity competition.

Deerfield was the winner, Hinsdale South second and Maine North third in front of the two area teams.

The strongest individual performance was by Forest View's ace junior Jim Wise, who took third place overall. Rich Nilsson was 11th, Tony Hees 15th, Larry Keen 31st, Steve Goerschler 64th and Mike Wieser 65th for the Falcons with John Jansen also running.

Prospect was paced by Mike Tyre with 13th place and Don Burger with 16th ahead of teammates Rich Reithal (28th), Mike Skelton (29th) and Tom Nemeec (46th).

Bill Mohrmann, Forest View coach, remarked that he was "pleased, but the conditions were unbelievable. The water was knee-deep in some places. Wise lost a shoe in the mud, stopped and tried to get it, then had to run the rest of the way with just one shoe. If that hadn't happened he might have won the race."

Prospect's sophomore team, led by Keith Spacapan's third place overall and Brian Pomrenke's seventh, won the team title on their level.

The Falcons take on Wheeling and Conant Tuesday and Arlington and Rolling Meadows Thursday, each time on the road, while the Knights will run against Fremd and Elk Grove Tuesday and will host Wheeling and Glenbard North Thursday.

MUSTANGS FOURTH AT HOME
Rolling Meadows finished fourth in its own five-team cross country invitational Saturday morning in a meet won by Elgin.

Coach Bob Rees' varsity pack stayed close together. Rick Jensen led with 15:36 for 12th place, John Kreutzer was 16th with 15:50, Jerry Porters 18th with 16:05, Craig Dahlquist 21st with 16:19 and Mike Suerth 22nd with 16:21. Winning time in the race was 14:51 over a 2.75-mile course.

Highlights of the day for the Mustangs were provided by the sophomore and freshman teams. The sophos tied for the team title with Lake Park and the frosh were outright winners. Steve Lehman won the freshman race in 11:42 on a short course and Jim Huddleston was runner-up among second-year men with 16:13.

In varsity B action, Maine North was the winner and Rolling Meadows finished fifth.

The Mustangs challenge Schaumburg and Glenbard North Tuesday and entertain Arlington and Forest View Thursday.

Herald Captures Media Tournney

Just as shocking as the Mets' meteoric climb to the World Series title, the Herald softball team struck suddenly last week in the first annual Thillens Metro Media 16-Inch Tournament.

Taking up the challenge with 12 other newspapers, radio and television stations in the Chicagoland area, The Herald knocked off three of the Chicago papers — Today, Sun-Times and Daily News — and carted home the three-foot championship trophy from Chicago's Thillens Stadium.

The Herald team, playing for the first time ever in organized (umpires, official scorers, etc.) contests, topped Today, 13-10, on Thursday and then came back on Friday to sweep a doubleheader — 9-7 over the Sun-Times and 9-6 over the Daily News.

Going against Mike Royko and the boys' downtown, Paddock Publications jumped out to a 2-0 lead and never relinquished it. Four more in the third with the help of a triple by Stan Depkon and doubles by Jim Salvetti and Steve Witte helped widen the bulge.

Paddock pushed across singletons in the fourth on a Dick Westgard single, in the sixth on a Salvetti single and in the seventh on a Roy Kemps single.

Only an errored fly ball off Royko's bat in the bottom of the seventh with three on and two out made it less lopsided. After that trio raced home, third baseman Barry Sigale left the Daily News' Pulitzer Prize winning columnist stranded with a game ending play. He tossed out the next batter from his knees.

Sigale was 8-for-11 in the three-game set for a team leading .727 batting average. Right behind were Salvetti with eight hits and Depkon and Witte with six each.

The first game of the doubleheader pitted Paddock against the Metro League champion Sun-Times. The winners slapped S-T with five in the first with the help of doubles by Sigale and Paul Logan.

A single by Depkon knocked in the sixth run, but the Times roared back to take a 7-6 lead heading into the bottom of the sixth. Trailing for the only time in the tourney, Paddock came back with three. Carl Schmidt's clutch double knocked in two and Salvetti singled in one.

Another five-run first got Paddock off to a fast start against Today. The big inning featured five straight singles after two outs. A three-run homer by Depkon paced the six-run fourth. Two more runs in the sixth iced the opening victory.

This ended a perfect 3-0 season for the first-year Herald team.

83-Yard Dazzlers

Anyone for an 84-yard offensive play from scrimmage?

A run of that distance would scratch three players from the MSL record book: Rich Olson of Forest View who scampered 83 yards against Elk Grove in 1969, Steve Bruce of Fremd who dashed that same stretch against the Falcons in 1970, and Wheeling's Bert Newman, who zipped 83 yards against Arlington in 1971.

An aerial play of 84 yards would eclipse the current loop pass distance record — an 83-yard TD lob from Terry Ormsbee to Tom Sayre on behalf of the Cardinals in 1969.

Ski Show Coming To Arlington Park

Chicago will once again be among the major cities playing host to the International Ski Show from October 26 through October 29 at the Arlington Park Exposition Center in Arlington Heights.

Billed as the "1972 Ski Show/Exposition," it will attempt to answer each and every sking question for the beginner through the expert skier. What to buy, what to wear, where to ski, how to get there and where to stay will be answered in detail with enough variety for the most demanding skier.

"The Ski School," sponsored and directed by Ski Magazine, will feature lectures by John Perryman on the performance of ski equipment; extensive demonstrations by manufacturers of GLM equipment (Graduated Length Method of ski instruction); live cross country demonstrations by Nordic ski experts; and informational programs on skiwear and NASTAR racing.

Skiing Magazine will once again conduct its annual "Skiing Equipment Information Center" with author-lecturer Gordon Lipe revealing the newest thinking on ski equipment compatibility. Doug Pfeiffer, skiing editor, will narrate a new film on ski equipment selection and maintenance. The newest equipment of all kinds will be on display for consumer examination and discussion.

Equipment displays will show every major brand of skis, boots and bindings, with factory experts available to offer on-the-spot guidance, also on the scene will be representatives and exhibits from 200 resorts located around the ski world.

"Ski Cinema '72" will feature former Olympic gold medal winner Sten Eriksson, in person, presenting his newest film lecture, "Ski Finesse." Sylvain Saudan's new "steep mountain" film thriller and Willy Bogner's Skivision, showing some of the most dramatic and exciting skiing scenes ever filmed.

The "Winter Garden," with a motif that will make you think you're at a fancy chalet in the high Alps, will provide a place to rest, chat and have a brew or two.

The "Great Swap and Used Ski Sale" will once again offer bargains and a chance to buy or sell outgrown ski equipment and clothing.

A special attraction at this year's show will be a Ski-Circus, presented on the popular Ski-Dek. Aerobatics, stunts, ballet and humor will be combined into an act guaranteed to be a sheer joy to watch.

Anything and everything anyone ever wanted to know about skiing will be available for those just beginning for those "into it" and for those oldtimers who have been at it since barboles.

Harper Golfers Tie, Win

Following a strange season opener, Harper College finally gave first-year head coach Roger Bechtold a victory, two in fact.

The Hawk golfers played to a 325-325 standoff with visiting Joliet on Wednesday at Palatine Hills. However, they bounced back on Thursday to handle two Skyway Conference foes. Harper had 309 over the Glenview course as Elgin shot 327 and Oakton 337.

"We shot fairly well," said Bechtold of the two performances that left his team 2-0-1 on the season.

Mike Sutton was the top shooter in the opener with a 75 over the wet Harper home layout. His three-over-par total was the only score that was below 80 for the hosts. Scott McMillion (81), John Hansen (84) and Steve Leggett (85) rounded out the top four.

"Sutton really shot tremendously," said Bechtold. "He was below par (figuratively) in the conference match. So I think we can get our scores even further down."

While Sutton was struggling to an 80, McMillion — playing a course he grew up on — blazed to a brilliant even par 70. His score was all the more impressive because of the soaked conditions of the course.

McMillion was easily the top scorer in the conference. However, three teams — including Lake County — failed to open their seasons because of flooding.

Rounding out the Harper scoring were Hansen (78), Dan Hahn (86) and Sutton.

The best performance registered by either Harper opponent was by Elgin's Mike Falk with a 75. The other Spartan scores were Jim McBride (83), John Boland (85) and John Hartwick (98). Oakton's scores were like this: John Murnane (78), Bill Richardson (79), Jim Weser (85) and John Hujer (94).

The Hawks take on always powerful College of DuPage on Tuesday at 1:30 on the latter's course.

Hoffman Estates Football Facts

by AL REZNIK

Shutouts were the order of the day in Hoffman Estates Athletic Association Pop Warner football play, the six winners rolling up 157 points to zero for their opposition. The seventh contest ended in a scoreless tie.

Most one-sided games were the Browns' 54-0 triumph over winless Hanover Park, and the home-back Falcons' 23-0 white-washing over Schaumburg — both in the Wildcat league.

Coupled with the 6-0 battle between the league-leading Chiefs and the resurgent Giants, the Wildcat standings tightened as the Chiefs' lead over the Falcons and Browns dropped to a half-game.

Among the Pee Wees, the Saints and Bears remained unbent and unscored upon in two league games, each atop their respective divisions. The Saints handed the Cowboys their second straight shutout loss, 25-0, while the Bears dropped the Vikings to .500 at one and one via a 18-0 victory.

In the league's other two games, the Packers bounced back and into the win column, 19-0 over the winless Steelers, while the Chargers made it a win and a loss with an 8-0 win over the Lions, the latter's first defeat.

The Chiefs-Giants battle was a rock-em-sock-em struggle from start to finish, the underdog Giants rising to the occasion, and, in fact, having the game's only apparent score nullified by a penalty. The Chiefs came closest to paydirt late in the final period only to lose the ball on a fumble on the Giants' 13.

Both coaches, Bob Broadus of the Chiefs and Lou DeLillo of the Giants, credited their squads with playing tough, "extremely alert" football, defense being the order of the day from both sides of the field.

DeLillo credited Mike Manfrin with a "superb" game, while his Larry Georgian at least twice punted the Giants out of danger with booming kicks. As the Giants coach put it, "Our defense kept us in there," the statistics apparently bearing out his words as the Chiefs outgained the Giants 187 yards to 70.

Broadus cited Bob Slania for his all-around play. He rushed 12 times for 51 yards and was credited with nine tackles and five assists.

The Chiefs play Schaumburg this week, while the Giants must take on the high-scoring Browns.

Jack Scialabba's Browns showed their 21-0 win over the Falcons a week ago was no fluke as they romped over Hanover Park 54-0.

As he was against the Falcons, Ray Powell was Mr. Big on offense for the Browns. All he did last Saturday was score five touchdowns, two on runs of 56 and 10 yards, one on a 64-yard punt return, one on a 20-yard pass from Keith Elbel and the fifth on a 50-yard pass interception.

Elbel scored a six-pointer on a 16-yard run, while Brian Ward scored twice on a 37-yard scamper and a two-yard plunge.

Gene Mapes scored four extra points, while Elbel and Bob Ryan each scored one.

On defense, Mike Case and Carry Knitter each blocked a punt, while Ward recovered a Hanover Park fumble.

Scialabba also credited defenders Kevin Hubbard, Mike Zwolenski, David Hart, Rob Cebulski and Paul Bersh with outstanding play, while Hanover Dolphins' Coach Harry Vostburg cited Kevin Dahman, Danny Peterson and Bob Schumacher with outstanding efforts in a losing cause.

It was basically all over on the first offensive play in the Falcons-Schaumburg contest, as the Falcons' Marty Pugh and Hugh Hannon hooked up on a 47-yard touchdown pass to send Al Reznik's defending league champions merrily on their way.

Pugh had what Reznik called a "brilliant" afternoon for the winners. He scored twice on bursts of 29 and 12 yards, ramblined for 110 yards in 10 carries and completed three passes for 51 more yards. He also blocked a punt and was involved in eight tackles.

The Squires never came close to scoring against the rock-ribbed Falcons defense. Assistant Coaches Tim Hannon and Lou Sylvain had their defenders "up" for this game as they held Schaumburg to 32 yards in 31 rushing attempts and allowed them but two pass completions for another 12 yards.

The Falcons, meanwhile, ran around and through the Schaumburg defenders for 231 yards on the ground and those 91 aerial yards.

Seven different Falcons carried the ball, and four different Falcons scored touchdowns while two others accounted for extra points.

End Hugh Hannon grabbed three passes for the winners, the TD catch among them. And the scabbard safety also intercepted a pass dishing in for another six-pointer, only to have it nullified by a penalty.

Joining Hannon and Pugh in the scoring derby were halfback Mike Daly on an 11-yard burst and quarterback Mitch Reznik on a one-yard sneak. Extra points went to halfback Rich Donn, two, and quarterback Jim Murphy.

Daly joined Hannon in the interception category while accounting for 10 unassisted tackles and four assists. Reznik had six solos and five assists for runtrap honors, while middle linebacker Steve Hillman had eight unassisted tackles and recovered two fumbles. Scott Nemzek also recovered a fumble for the Falcons.

Schaumburg Coach John Miller, whose team now is one and two, cited defenders John Jacobson and Rich Pottor for outstanding defensive play and Brett Anderson, Mike Chink and Bill Rahberg for top-notch offensive play.

The Falcons play Hanover Park this week.

The Bears featured a balanced ball-control offense and a hard-charging defense for the 18-0 win over the Vikings. Bret Mueller scored all three Bears touchdowns, giving him 40 points in two games as the league's leading point-producer.

Bears Coach Frank Vlasaty spoke glowingly of his running offense, led by Mueller. Terry McCoy, Jim Cornell and Gary Kemnitz. He added that the passing of quarterback Frank Vlasaty was enough to "mix it up." Yet, the coach said, the key to the victory was the fine defensive play of Dave Mulcahy, Mike Miller, Mark Sawinski, Bob Weitzel and defensive captain Mike Lentz. The Vikings were held to 55 yards for the afternoon.

Vikes Coach Dennis Curtin praised his defense, citing linebackers and defensive backs Jerry Rimmer, Robby Swanson, Jerry Erpilo, Craig Solvie and Steve Hague for a fine job.

Hawks Keep On Winning

Harper College's cross country team started its season on the right foot and kept an 18-meet (duals) winning streak alive by taking a double dual Saturday at Joliet. The Hawks of Bob Nolan edged the hosts 24-30 and beat Lake County 24-31.

In so doing, they kept intact their record of having won every dual they have entered since Oct. 13, 1970.

The course was a long four miles and like just about every other meet in the area in recent weeks, this one was hampered by conditions due to excessive recent rain. "It was a farm field, real muddy and sloppy and very slow to run on," said Nolan.

He added, "We got to the meet a little late and didn't have much of a warmup, so our times were pretty strung out. But we won and that's the main thing. We have some guys who aren't used to running four miles yet and they should come around later."

Bill Bates, a former Forest View runner, paced the Hawks and was second overall with 22:47. Following were Mike DeLaBuerre with 23:05, Ron Hankel (a Prospect grad) with 23:17, Tom Klinker (another former Knight) with 25:07 and Brian Riemann with 28:32.

Little Barbs Play A Big Role

Two stories are told about a former University of Missouri running back named Paul Christman who was noted for his weapon of infuriating opposing players by making sarcastic little remarks to them.

Once, when Missouri was playing Kansas State, Kansas State had a great shot putter on its team by the name of Elmer Hackney. At one point in the game, KSU had the ball on Missouri's three-yard line with first and goal. Hackney plunged into the line once, twice, three times, and finally edged across the goal line on his fourth try and fell exhausted on the ground. This prompted Christman to run over him.

to the gasping Hackney and teasingly say, "Tch! Tch! I must stop reading those newspapers. I'd heard who strong you were, Mr. Hackney, and now just look at yourself!"

Another time, when Missouri was playing Iowa, Christman had been bounced around all day by a huge Hawkeye guard. After a particularly crunching tackle, Christman painfully rolled over, looked up at the defender and sadly asked, "My friend, why don't you stop and rest on your laurels?"

There was always room for a good laugh when Paul Christman played football.

Area Gridders Coaches Receive Harper Invite

It isn't often that you can see a college game free. However, that's Harper Community College's offer, as head coach John Elliazik explains:

"There's a standing invitation for any coach or assistant and their varsity players to see our games. All they have to do is mention the high school district and they'll be passed."

Four more home games, coming on the next four Saturdays, should give future Harper athletes a good look at the college's style of play. All games begin at 7:30 p.m.

The four different high school sites and opponents are as follows:

- Sept. 30 — Iowa Central at Arlington.
- Oct. 7 — Northeastern at Elk Grove.
- Oct. 14 — Concordia (Wis.) at Prospect.
- Oct. 21 — Illinois Valley at Rolling Meadows.

50 Per Cent Ahead Of Last Year

New Construction Mushrooming At An 'Incredible' Pace

by CAROL RIYNE

New homes, apartments, offices and industrial plants are going up all over Elk Grove Village as construction this year is almost 50 per cent higher than for a similar period last year.

"There is an incredible amount of construction activity in the village as contractors attempt to make up for the bad building season this year," Village Mgr. Charles Willis said.

"Arlington Heights Road and Rte. 72 has been a beehive of activity in recent weeks, and new office buildings and land preparation for future buildings is going on all the time," he said.

Village Building Com. Tom Rettenbacher reported this month that the most impressive increase in construction was in residential building where the value of homes and apartments being built this year rose 2 1/2 times over the first eight months of last year. He said so far this year 258 permits have been issued with a value of $7.64 million compared with 193 permits with a value of $3.05 million the first eight months of 1971.

THE TREMENDOUS increase in construction value in residential building was a result of new apartment buildings rising in the village, Rettenbacher said.

Rettenbacher said industrial construction has been picking up but, in general, he has been issuing more building permits for smaller buildings. So far this year 45 permits for $6.17 million have been granted compared with 43 permits for $6.30 million from January through August 1971.

"We were in a construction doldrum last year, but building has really been picking up recently," Rettenbacher said. "The Centex Industrial Park is the busiest area for business construction, and the area south of Nerge Road is bustling with new homes."

Willis said, "The new houses at Nerge Road and Rte. 53 are rising where not more than four months ago it was farmland. Elk Grove Village has had a steady development of residential properties, and construction is moving along as fast as weather permits."

BOTH WILLIS and Rettenbacher noted that Elk Grove Village, in comparison to other towns, has fared well in attracting industry to its industrial parks. Willis said besides new plant construction, there has been a lot of expansion and remodeling of existing buildings.

Besides new buildings and homes, road improvements have been a major item on the village construction scene this summer. The 1.4-mile stretch of Arlington Heights Road to the Salt Creek bridge was opened to through traffic Labor Day weekend, and road crews currently are working to complete the remaining landscaping and finishing touches by the Oct. 15 deadline for the project.

The Arlington Heights Road project included widening the road from two to four lanes and building a new bridge at the creek.

The final stretch of 190 from Nordic Road north to Biesterfeld Road in Elk Grove Village also was opened earlier this month. With the completion of the last 4.4-mile section, motorists can travel uninterrupted from the Chicago Loop to Beloit, Wis.

Moratorium On Building Urged In Area

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-3rd) yesterday called for a moratorium on all construction in the Northwest suburban area until workable plans for flood control can be developed and implemented.

Schlickman, "distraught" and "frustrated" over the flooding problem and the lack of effective means to combat it, made the proposal in a letter to all mayors and village presidents in the Northwest suburbs. The letter was also sent to County Board Pres. George Dunne.

Schlickman's letter said, in part: "I urgently request you and your fellow municipal officials adopt a resolution establishing a ban on all construction within your corporate limits until a comprehensive, area-wide plan for flood control can be developed and implemented."

He added, "The safety, welfare and health of the citizenry demands this action."

Schlickman said he made the request because despite many meetings, conversations and discussions of the flooding problem, there has been no significant change in the situation.

ALTHOUGH THE state representative initially expressed some degree of uncertainty about the possible reaction to his suggestion, at least one area community late yesterday indicated its support of the idea.

Schlickman said R.D. Henninger, village manager of Hanover Park, reported the village is prepared to establish such a moratorium, but they are concerned with existing contractual obligations to developers.

Schlickman said he is positive, however, the police powers of all municipalities provides them with the authority to establish such a ban. He said he plans to meet with the Hanover Park village attorney to discuss the authority of the village.

Schlickman said if Hanover Park adopts such a resolution, it could have a "domino effect," provoking other Northwest suburban communities to follow suit.

Industrial construction activity is picking up in Elk Grove Village as more companies are attracted to Centex Industrial Park.

Park District Steering Panel Sets First Meet

The Elk Grove Park District steering committee will hold its first public hearing at 8 p.m. Thursday in Lions Park Community Center, 180 Kennedy Blvd.

The committee was formed in July to create an ad hoc committee to consider plans for future park district facilities and developments.

Jack McCormick, chairman of the steering committee, said letters have been sent to 200 local organizations, asking for representatives to attend the meeting to provide his group with information. He asked any village residents, interested in new park district programs and facilities, to attend.

McCormick said the steering committee has prepared a questionnaire for village residents to determine their attitudes and interests in the park district. McCormick said persons attending the hearing will be asked for their advice on possible changes in the questionnaire and distribution techniques.

WHEN RESULTS OF the questionnaire are obtained, the steering committee will form the ad hoc committee to develop long-range plans for the park district.

Edward Hauser, president of the Elk Grove Park District Board, at the July meeting when the steering committee was formed, stressed that the park district would follow any decisions and recommendations the ad hoc committee made.

In 1971 the park district failed to pass two referendums. The board interpreted these failures as meaning the park district was not fully aware of the community's needs and desires. The board then decided to establish the ad hoc committee.

No date for the establishment of the ad hoc committee has been set.

Three Escape Unhurt In Fire

Donald Hepp, 40, was reported in fair condition Monday in the intensive care unit at Alexian Brothers Medical Center after he suffered burns on the face and hands in a fire that gutted his home at 30 Smethwick La., Elk Grove Village.

Hepp's daughter, Donna, 15, was treated and released with burns on the hands, and his son, Alan, 12, escaped uninjured in a fire late Sunday night which was believed started in the family room.

Some 35 Elk Grove Village firemen and seven pieces of equipment responded to the fire, which did $35,000 damage to the building and contents of the home. Chief Allen Hulet said late yesterday the cause of the fire was still undetermined.

Firemen said Hepp told them he discovered the fire after he smelled smoke and went downstairs to investigate. Hepp said he tried to put out the fire, but realized it was impossible and called for his two children who were in their bedrooms upstairs.

'United Against Litter' Drive Coming To Village

"United Against Litter" is coming to Elk Grove Village Saturday.

"United Against Litter" is a volunteer program of United Air Line employees, from the executive offices on Algonquin and Linneman roads, in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, that will clean areas in the Northwest suburbs.

Anna Brenmark, a United employee, said the volunteers will clean forest preserve property along Arlington Heights Road. She said the group will start at about 9 a.m. Saturday at Arlington Heights Road and Elk Grove Boulevard, across from the high school, and will work north to Higgins Road.

Mrs. Brenmark said anyone interested in helping the group is welcome. Persons wanting to help are asked to be at the high school at 9 a.m.

The group, "United Against Litter," has already worked in Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

IN MOUNT Prospect, the group cleaned the Commonwealth-Edison Co. easement north of Dempster Street, between Busse and Linneman roads.

In Des Plaines, they cleaned an area along the Soo Line Rwy. tracks between Oakton Avenue and Mount Prospect Road. Mrs. Brenmark said the group plans to return to Des Plaines Oct. 16 and finish cleaning the Soo Line track area from Mount Prospect Road to Touhy Avenue.

Last Saturday, "United Against Litter" cleaned parks in Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Brenmark said the group also distributes literature in the communities they clean up, explaining how residents can establish a recycling drive and giving the location of present recycling centers.

This Morning In Brief

The War

Three U. S. pilots released from captivity in North Vietnam left by plane for Nanking, China, en route home via Peking and Moscow, Hanoi reports said. The pilots, Air Force Maj. Edward K. Elias, Navy Lt. Markham L. Gantley and Navy Lt. Norris A. Charles, departed after they were reported to have told President Nixon they did not want to return home with U. S. military escorts. They are due to arrive in New York Thursday.

South Vietnamese forces recaptured a central coast hilltop held by Communist forces and pushed southward toward a government outpost that was overrun a week ago.

The Nation

The House Ways and Means Committee tentatively approved President Nixon's proposal to put a $250 billion limit on federal spending this fiscal year. The President pledged that the U. S. "shall not turn inward an isolationist" as it struggles with other nations to revamp the rules governing trade and currency exchange in the non-Communist world.

Sen. George McGovern denounced the "sharks" and "bogs" of big business, saying that they had opened a "revolving door" connecting regulatory agencies to corporate boardrooms. The chief spokesman for the nation's coal industry charged that McGovern's ban-strip mining proposal could mean blackouts in millions of homes.

The World

The prime ministers of China and Japan pledged to establish diplomatic relations between their two governments, bringing to an end three decades of hatred.

At the United Nations, U. S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers called for tough measures against airplane hijacking and "the export of international terrorism," and then moved swiftly to see that his proposals were acted on in the UN. He proposed a conference to coordinate international action against terrorism.

The border between Uganda and Tanzania remained quiet in the wake of reports the two nations had tentatively agreed to a peace settlement after a week of hostilities.

Despite the opening of political peace talks in England, gunmen carried out successful bomb strikes in one of Belfast's most luxurious hotels and other targets across Northern Ireland.

The State

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott recommended that $1 million in damages that Illinois received in a price-fixing case be spent to fund local drug abuse programs, to set up community lead poisoning treatment centers and to create a telecommunication network for the emergency care of heart attack victims.

Three members of the Illinois agricultural trade delegation had a 75-minute talk in Moscow with Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev. They will meet today with export organizations and with foreign trade officials.

Students Seek Protest Support At Other Schools

Five Schaumburg High School students said they are organizing protest support at other High School Dist. 211 campuses because authorities have reneged on an agreement to meet yesterday and talk over student grievances.

The five also fear they will be expelled for allegedly masterminding a student walkout at Schaumburg High School held Friday.

They charge the school's principal, Carl Welmer, and District Supt. Richard Kolze are giving them "the run-around." So, they are attempting to organize a boycott of the Dist. 211 school lunchrooms.

Mike Elizondo, one of the five, said Supt. Richard Kolze's failure to meet with students Monday to discuss their demands prompted the group's plan to seek support from other schools.

ELIZONDO SAID he and others on the helped disperse a crowd of over 200 students after being told Kolze would meet with them.

"We were available at 8 a.m. Monday for the meeting and were told there would be no meeting until all the kids that are out on suspension get back in school," said Elizondo.

"Welmer said he'll try to expel us," said Bale, adding "we tried to keep our part of the deal, we want them to keep theirs."

Prin. Carl Welmer told the press and students this past weekend he would arrange a meeting with Kolze since the majority of student demands such as open campus are specifically board policy. However Monday Welmer insisted there must have been some misunderstanding and that he could not confirm a meeting for Kolze.

KOLZE DENIED he was to meet with the students but said he has talked with them on the telephone. "It is the district's first priority to get those back that want in," said Kolze.

Throughout the weekend Kolze and other district administrators joined Schaumburg High School officials in holding individual parent conferences with the 305 students who were suspended following the walkout.

Kolze said at least 100 students on suspension came in with parents during the weekend and were readmitted after the conference.

"Monday the school was processing 12 at once with administrators brought in from the rest of the district," said Kolze.

THE SUPERINTENDENT said he told the representatives he would "have to see" about a meeting with them after all the suspended students have come in for conferences.

"If their parents call in for a conference, I'll be glad to meet with them," said Kolze.

One of the student spokesmen, Trauth, had a conference but was not reinstated.

"In view of his direct involvement, he is still on suspension, pending further investigation," said Kolze.

ELIZONDO INSISTS the group will push for a meeting and said he and the others have promised the students they would talk for them and bring back the message from the district.

"We don't want to bring our parents into this. Just getting back in school won't change things. We want to talk to them," he said.

The protest walkout initially involved some 500 students.

Student demands include: Open campus and study, lower school lunches from 50 to 45 cents, soft drinks in the cafeteria, no suspension of students who participated in walkout, shorter school day, changes in attendance policy, an inside smoking area and no grade requirements for participation in student council.

BACK TO NORMAL, the mood was "easy" on the Schaumburg High School campus Monday after last week's student walkout in protest for an open campus. Over 250 students and their parents were shuttled through the school for suspension conferences, but class went on as usual for the rest of the 2,200-student body.

ACLU Submits Construction Plan.

Call For 750 Area Low-Income Units

by ROGER CAPETTINI

The American Civil Liberties Union submitted a plan yesterday calling for the construction of 750 units of low-income housing in the three-county Chicago suburban area.

The plan, revealed at a press conference in ACLU offices in Chicago yesterday, came in the form of a proposed judgment order in a court case currently before U.S. District Court Judge Richard Austin. No specific sites for the housing were proposed.

A hearing is scheduled for the proposal in Judge Austin's court Oct. 24.

In its proposal, the ACLU suggests providing an incentive to suburban municipalities to enter voluntarily into agreements to provide housing within their corporate limits.

If such housing is planned voluntarily by the municipality within 180 days of the order, as proposed, it could be limited to 2 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

The proposal includes provisions wherein the Chicago Housing Authority would be forced to "do everything necessary to provide the units," in the suburbs if the local municipalities do not take action within the six-month period.

IF THE HOUSING is planned by the CHA for the individual suburbs, the number of low-income dwelling units could equal 4 per cent of the total number of apartment and single-family residences existing.

Carl Lezak, director of the Illinois Division of the ACLU said at the press conference he does not consider that provision constitutes a threat to the suburbs. "It's not a threat — it's a reward if they

(the suburbs) take it positively," he said.

The proposed order calls for the 750 units to be constructed in white areas of Cook (outside the City of Chicago) DuPage and Lake counties in a 6 to 2 to 1 ratio respectively. If ordered by Judge Austin, the plan would not affect the 1,500 units already ordered to be built within the City of Chicago.

In a memorandum filed with the proposal, the ACLU said the "inclusion of suburban areas in the plan is necessary to minimize the risk that the operation of the 1969 court order (establishing the 1,500 units for Chicago) will result in increased flight to the suburbs."

The ACLU said if that "flight" should take place on a large scale, it would produce resegregation and negate the objectives of the 1969 order.

THE ORDER WOULD require that 75 per cent of the low-income units be constructed in white areas.

According to the ACLU plan, no low-income project could be constructed which would include dwelling units for more than 120 persons. Additionally, it prohibits the construction of any new low-income units if that construction would mean low-income units would total more than 15 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

A census tract is an area set aside by the U.S. Census Bureau which may include one or more, or portions of, several municipalities.

The limit for any municipality or unincorporated areas of a township would be set by the proposed order at 4 per cent.

The proposed order also would obligate the CHA to try to agree with other local housing authorities that they will provide the units outside the City of Chicago, making 50 per cent of the units available to the CHA's tenants and applicants. Lezak said preference would be given to local residents.

Officials Eye City Medical School Move

A move to the Northwest suburbs by the Chicago Medical School (CMS) is "under discussion," a spokesman said yesterday.

The discussion could result in the world's most extensive medical training center, according to another outside source.

"There's nothing definite," the CMS spokesman said, however, adding, "the announcement of details is six months to a year away."

A source who has dealt with CMS officials said the school is possibly looking for 100 to 150 acres, calling the parcel being sought "a pretty tall order."

CMS has $18.3 million held in escrow by state and federal agencies to build a facility that would educate in "the total gamut of the medical field," he added.

In addition to the training of medical doctors CMS envisions a facility to train medical technicians, nurses, anaesthesiologist and paramedic professionals of all types.

CMS hopes to become "the MIT of the medical field," the source said. The proposal is reported to be the dream of Dr. A. Nicholas Taylor, president of the school who is out of the country and unavailable for comment.

The move to the Northwest suburbs would not mean abandonment of its existing facilities on Chicago's west side, the source added.

Negotiations are said to be under way that would mean participation in the current CMS facilities by the University of Illinois Medical School in Chicago.

No reliable speculation on a site for the new facility has been made. The spokesman said that local officials from all the Northwest suburban communities would be contacted for discussion.

A meeting with officials from Roselle and Hoffman Estates, reportedly took place in Chicago last spring.

Another possibility mentioned is locating the new school on grounds currently occupied by the Chicago State Hospital at Irving Park Road and Narragansett Avenue in Chicago. CMS may be attracted there because the land could be obtained free.

"Any site they'd buy here (in the Northwest suburbs) would be very expensive," the source said.

Heights Road. State officials have said the project should be completed sometime this fall.

A major addition to Alexian Brothers Medical Center on Biefield Road is expected to get under way as soon as the new parking lot to the east of the hospital is finished. The expansion program, which will more than double the size of the original facility, will include the Pavilion for Community Health and Ambulatory Care Center to house emergency and outpatient departments.

In addition to the current housing developments and apartment buildings under construction, a mammoth subdivision on 267 acres near Devon Avenue and Rte. 53 and west of Rte. 53 by Biefield Road is currently being planned. The proposed single-family homes, quadrangles and high-rise apartment buildings would house more than 13,000 persons. The developers and village officials and trustees have been meeting informally on the plans with the idea the property eventually will be annexed to the village.

WILLIS SAID all of the present construction and future construction means a continued growth in the tax base of the village.

"A growing community and an increase in the tax base will produce other changes: more purchasing power for the village, more people and more diverse interests in the community, more people to service, more children in schools, and more library and hospital users," Willis said.

"As inflation continues, increases in assessed valuation because of new construction will lessen the shock so that the full brunt of inflation will not be felt here."

2 Ampex Employees Charged With Theft

Two employees of Ampex Corp. have been freed on $1,000 bond each after they were charged in connection with the theft of $750 worth of tape recorders and equipment from the Ampex plant, 2201 Estes Ave., Elk Grove Village.

Elk Grove Village police said John

Kledzik, 43, and Donald Baczek, 25, both of Chicago, were arrested Friday and charged with theft of tape recorders, speakers, receivers, microphones and cassette recording tape.

A hearing was set for Oct. 18 on the charges.

Police Chief To Speak

Elk Grove Village Police Chief Harry Jenkins will be the speaker at this week's Elk Grove Village Rotary Club meeting, 12:15 p.m., Thursday, at the Maitre D' Restaurant, 111 E. Higgins, Elk Grove Village.

Homeowners: Don't Let Them Get Too High

Wet Summer Keeps Villages Busy Enforcing Weed Curbs

A wet, rainy summer has left Wheeling and Buffalo Grove with a bumper crop of weeds, drawing complaints from many hay fever sufferers and concerned homeowners.

Officials in both villages have been busy during the past few months enforcing weed control ordinances designed to combat the problem.

In Wheeling, weeds are not supposed to exceed eight inches in height. If they are higher, the village building department is supposed to notify the owner that his weeds must be cut. After five days, the village supposedly contracts an outside agency to cut the weeds at $25 an hour. The property owner then is billed for the services.

THE BUFFALO GROVE ordinance prohibits grass higher than six inches and weeds higher than 12 inches. Village police enforce the rule, notifying delinquent property owners and giving them seven days to mow. If the owner doesn't take care of the problem, the public works department will do the job, charging $25 per acre and $15 for anything less than an acre.

Buffalo Grove Public Works Director Bill Davis said one reason for the high cost of mowing weeds is residents who litter vacant property. Davis said many companies no longer will cut weeds because the debris can ruin expensive equipment.

The most common complaints about weeds from Wheeling residents are from hay fever sufferers and residents who are concerned about rodents living in the undergrowth.

Some complaints also come from drivers who say they cannot see oncoming traffic because of high weeds, and homeowners who find the overgrown weeds unsightly.

THE WHEELING Plan Commission discussed the weed problem at a recent meeting. It noted that some people take care of their property while others allow their weeds to grow out of hand and throw garbage onto property bordering main streets.

The plan commission members discussed the possibility of publicly commending those people who maintain their property, in an effort to make other residents aware of the problem.

Buffalo Grove uses a preventive measure to aid in weed control. Each spring, the public works department sends a letter to local property owners, outlining the requirements of the weed control ordinance and suggesting the owner cut his weeds at least three times during the season.

Davis said Buffalo Grove residents usually are cooperative but often delay dealing with their weed problems until they are told they must.

According to a member of the Wheeling Building Department, there are approximately 100 calls about weeds during the growing season. Several letters are mailed each week to violators of the weed ordinance.

The problem is most severe in the residential areas, where owners of vacant lots tend to allow the weeds to grow out of hand. In the industrial areas, most property owners are quite conscientious about cutting their weeds, officials say.

HIGH WEED GROWTH is a common sight these days in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. Although both villages have weed ordinances, the wet, rainy weather has stimulated weed growth and slowed down the weed cutting schedule. This lush patch of assorted weeds on Milwaukee Avenue, just south of Dundee Road, is more than three feet high in the center.

Make Appointment For Blood Drive

Buffalo Grove residents planning to participate in the Red Cross blood drive tomorrow should make appointments.

The drive, sponsored by the Achim chapter of the B'nai B'rith Lodge 2761 and Aura women's chapter of B'nai B'rith, offers group and individual blood protection programs.

The group assurance program guarantees that if 25 per cent of a group's membership donates one pint of blood each, all members and their families, including parents and in-laws who don't reside with them, will be protected for one year.

In addition, if more than 25 per cent of the membership donates blood, the number of pints of blood over the group's quota is put into a special "account" for the club's use.

An individual may donate a pint of blood and protect his entire family for a year under the individual assurance program.

Anyone interested in donating blood should call Fred Share of Hoffman Estates, 358-6897, or Mrs. Richard Meretsky of Buffalo Grove, 541-2773, for an appointment. Appointments aren't required, but will reduce waiting time.

Individuals participating in the drive should refrain from drinking any alcoholic beverages for at least 12 hours, and from eating fatty foods at least three hours before appointments.

Chamber Eyes 'Spirited' Projects Here

The Wheeling Chamber of Commerce is presently working on several projects designed to develop a community spirit in Wheeling.

A community directory is now being designed by chamber members with the theme, "Wheeling Has a Lot to Offer." The directory will include a profile of the community schools, shopping areas, civic organizations, government and history.

Dick Calfa, president of the chamber, said although plans for the directory are still tentative, he expects it will be approximately 60 pages, with pictures and maps.

Calfa said the project has been under way for about three months and the brochures would be ready before the end of the year.

WHEN COMPLETED, the booklets will be distributed in a variety of ways. Calfa said he expects real estate offices to buy them, and said other organizations might buy some for distribution. The books are expected to cost between 50 and 60 cents each.

The format of the directory was based on other brochures the chamber members reviewed. Calfa said while most such booklets were financed by advertising, the Wheeling brochure would not be an ad book. He said businesses would only be listed in an index in the back.

The Chamber of Commerce has also established a community calendar to help organizations plan dates for their fund raising and community events. Calfa explained that the chamber has offered to keep track of the dates of all community events so organizations can find out if any other group has planned something for the same day.

People interested in using the community calendar should call the chamber office, 537-7400.

Village Bus 'Good Idea': Survey

According to a personal survey conducted by Trustee Bill Hein, Wheeling residents think the coming village bus is "a darn good idea."

Hein said he talked to about 50 residents and found all were enthusiastic about the bus service, scheduled to begin in December.

The village has plans to lease a bus painted in the village colors from Ritzenthaler-Central West Bus Lines. The lease will run for two years at $15,000 a year and will cover the cost of the bus and driver.

The bus will make scheduled runs through the village subdivisions and condominium projects and into the business district. The village will maintain the bus and will use money from the fares to support its operation.

Hein said he also has surveyed some of the businessmen in the community to determine if they would be interested in buying advertising on the bus. He said the businessmen responded well to the idea.

The advertising also would help support the operation of the bus, as well as promoting business in Wheeling.

19 Students Seek 4 Offices

Rally Skips Name Calling

by RICH HONACK

In an election year that has given us two national political conventions, charges of illegal spending and spying, promises and denials, James Fenimore Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove offers hope.

A political rally was held there Thursday afternoon. There were no charges of illegal seating of delegates, no lengthy speeches, no name-calling — for that matter, it wasn't normal for a political rally.

The candidates at this rally were running for the student council of their school. There were 19 students running for four offices.

THE RALLY, or mini-convention, lasted 45 minutes, with each candidate making a speech and Cooper principal Larry Weaver acting as chairman. Weaver never had to ask for order throughout the rally.

The delegation was made up of the student body and their parents. There were no expensive banners, bands or plaques at this convention.

The candidates for the office of treasurer spoke first and promised to do their best to keep the books of the student council balanced and up to date. They also promised to keep the money safe.

Pat Robinson won the financial post on the council.

The secretarial candidates were next to speak. They spoke of the ability to serve their fellow classmates and the ability to do the job in the proper manner.

Mary Jo Sloan won the position of student council secretary.

THE VICE PRESIDENCY was a little more contested. The candidates, of which there were eight, began to make speeches that talked more about leadership. One student said he couldn't promise that gum chewing would be allowed in school but would work for the students in trying to compromise the issue.

Another said she would try to be a mediator between the faculty and the students.

Ray Langel of Arlington Heights did the best job of convincing the student body delegation of his qualities for the office. He won.

Finally, the candidates for president came forward to make their speeches. Everyone settled back and expected long narratives on qualifications and promises, as the students have seen presidential candidates do.

But this time it was different.

The three speakers completed their tasks in a total time of four minutes. Diane Keirle, Bob Sprick and Dianne Emmel were the candidates for the school's highest office.

MISS EMMEL'S speech won over her classmates' confidence, as she walked away with the most votes. She started off her speech on a women's lib note by saying, "Most of you are probably saying, 'Oh no, a girl.' Well let me assure you I am just as qualified as anyone for the job of president."

She said she had the "leadership, willingness, dependability and responsibility to hold the job." Her only promise was to try to get the "rec night" program restarted at Cooper Junior High.

Following the rally, all students returned to their respective classrooms and voted for the candidates of their choice. In the meantime more than 100 parents attended a coffee hour sponsored by the Cooper PTA, to await the vote count.

When the election was finished and the winners announced, parents and students went home together and the political spotlight was turned out for another year.

Wouldn't it be nice if all elections were as uncomplicated as junior high student councils?

Three U. S. pilots released from captivity in North Vietnam left by plane for Nanking, China, en route home via Peking and Moscow, Hanoi reports said. The pilots, Air Force Maj. Edward K. Elias, Navy Lt. Markham L. Gartley and Navy Lt. Norris A. Charles, departed after they were reported to have told President Nixon they did not want to return home with U. S. military escorts. They are due to arrive in New York Thursday.

South Vietnamese forces recaptured a central coast hilltop held by Communist forces and pushed southward toward a government outpost that was overrun a week ago.

The Nation

The House Ways and Means Committee tentatively approved President Nixon's proposal to put a $250 billion limit on federal spending this fiscal year. The President pledged that the U. S. "shall not turn inward an isolationist" as it struggles with other nations to revamp the rules governing trade and currency exchange in the non-Communist world.

Sen. George McGovern denounced the "sharks" and "hogs" of big business, saying that they had opened a "revolving door" connecting regulatory agencies to corporate boardrooms. The chief spokesman for the nation's coal industry charged that McGovern's day-strip mining proposal could mean blackouts in millions of homes.

The World

The prime ministers of China and Japan pledged to establish diplomatic relations between their two governments, bringing to an end three decades of hatred.

At the United Nations, U. S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers called for tough measures against airplane hijacking and "the export of international terrorism," and then moved swiftly to see that his proposals were acted on in the UN. He proposed a conference to coordinate international action against terrorism.

The border between Uganda and Tanzania remained quiet in the wake of reports the two nations had tentatively agreed to a peace settlement after a week of hostilities.

Despite the opening of political peace talks in England, gunmen carried out successful bomb strikes in one of Belfast's most luxurious hotels and other targets across Northern Ireland.

The State

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott recommended that $1 million in damages that Illinois received in a price-fixing case be spent to fund local drug abuse programs, to set up community lead poisoning treatment centers and to create a telecommunication network for the emergency care of heart attack victims.

Chicago Police Superintendent James Conlisk testified he has changed his mind and now believes police made an adequate investigation into the Dec. 4, 1969, weapons raid in which two Black Panthers were killed.

WATER COLLECTS ON the John Muir School site on Drake Terrace in Prospect Heights after a heavy rain. The site is the subject of a lawsuit filed against Prospect Heights Dist. 23 by owners of the Pleasant Run development in Wheeling. Owners Owners in the past have suggested building a retention basin on the Muir site because, they say, water collects there anyway. The case has been continued until Friday.

ACLU Submits Construction Plan

Call For 750 Area Low-Income Units

by ROGER CAPETTINI

The American Civil Liberties Union submitted a plan yesterday calling for the construction of 750 units of low-income housing in the three-county Chicago suburban area.

The plan, revealed at a press conference in ACLU offices in Chicago yesterday, came in the form of a proposed judgment order in a court case currently before U.S. District Court Judge Richard Austin. No specific sites for the housing were proposed.

A hearing is scheduled for the proposal in Judge Austin's court Oct. 24.

In its proposal, the ACLU suggests providing an incentive to suburban municipalities to enter voluntarily into agreements to provide housing within their corporate limits.

If such housing is planned voluntarily by the municipality within 180 days of the order, as proposed, it could be limited to 2 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

The proposal includes provisions wherein the Chicago Housing Authority would be forced to "do everything necessary to provide the units," in the suburbs if the local municipalities do not take action within the six-month period.

IF THE HOUSING is planned by the CHA for the individual suburbs, the number of low-income dwelling units could equal 4 per cent of the total number of apartment and single-family residences existing.

Carl Lezak, director of the Illinois Division of the ACLU said at the press conference he does not consider that provision constitutes a threat to the suburbs. "It's not a threat — it's a reward if they (the suburbs) take it positively," he said.

The proposed order calls for the 750 units to be constructed in white areas of Cook (outside the City of Chicago) DuPage and Lake counties in a 6 to 2 to 1 ratio respectively. If ordered by Judge Austin, the plan would not affect the 1,500 units already ordered to be built within the City of Chicago.

In a memorandum filed with the proposal, the ACLU said the "inclusion of suburban areas in the plan is necessary to minimize the risk that the operation of the 1969 court order (establishing the 1,500 units for Chicago) will result in increased 'flight to the suburbs.'"

The ACLU said if that "flight" should take place on a large scale, it would produce resegregation and negate the objectives of the 1969 order.

THE ORDER WOULD require that 75 per cent of the low-income units be constructed in white areas.

According to the ACLU plan, no low-income project could be constructed which would include dwelling units for more than 120 persons. Additionally, it prohibits the construction of any new low-income units if that construction would mean low-income units would total more than 15 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

A census tract is an area set aside by the U.S. Census Bureau which may include one or more, or portions of, several municipalities.

The limit for any municipality or unincorporated areas of a township would be set by the proposed order at 4 per cent.

The proposed order also would obligate the CHA to try to agree with other local housing authorities that they will provide the units outside the City of Chicago, making 50 per cent of the units available to the CHA's tenants and applicants. Lezak said preference would be given to local residents.

Candidates Agree To Role In Forum

Six candidates for state office have agreed to participate in a forum and discussion with Buffalo Grove area residents Sunday, Oct. 8.

The Democratic and Republican candidates for state senator and state representative from the 1st district are scheduled to take part in the meeting at 8 p.m. in the Fireside Room of the Kingswood Methodist Church, 401 W. Dundee Rd.

Slated to attend are state senatorial candidates Ann Matasar, Democrat, and Bradley Glass, Republican. Candidates for the legislature are Harold Katz and Donald Norman, Democrats, and Brian Duff and John E. Porter, Republicans.

Each candidate will be given three to five minutes to speak and then all will answer questions from the audience.

A community effort, the meeting is sponsored jointly by the Kingswood Methodist Church and Congregation Beth Judea.

One of the organizers of the event, Betty Spence, said she thinks the forum will mark the first time candidates for state office have come to Buffalo Grove to campaign.

"We've never been a political spot before," Mrs. Spence said, "It's about time candidates recognized us."

Mrs. Spence said the forum was organized to give local residents a chance to meet the people who will be making decisions that will directly affect them.

"The local candidates are the ones who will be voting on local issues and they're the ones you never get to see," she said.

Coffee will be served following the forum and residents will have a chance to talk with the candidates informally.

Moratorium On Building Urged In Area

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-3rd) yesterday called for a moratorium on all construction in the Northwest suburban area until workable plans for flood control can be developed and implemented.

Schlickman, "distraught" and "frustrated" over the flooding problem and the lack of effective means to combat it, made the proposal in a letter to all mayors and village presidents in the Northwest suburbs. The letter was also sent to County Board Pres. George Dunne.

Schlickman's letter said, in part: "I urgently request you and your fellow municipal officials adopt a resolution establishing a ban on all construction within your corporate limits until a comprehensive, area-wide plan for flood control can be developed and implemented."

He added, "The safety, welfare and health of the citizenry demands this action."

Schlickman said he made the request because despite many meetings, conversations and discussions of the flooding problem, there has been no significant change in the situation.

ALTHOUGH THE state representative initially expressed some degree of uncertainty about the possible reaction to his suggestion, at least one area community late yesterday indicated its support of the idea.

Schlickman said R.D. Henninger, village manager of Hanover Park, reported the village is prepared to establish such a moratorium, but they are concerned with existing contractual obligations to developers.

Schlickman said he is positive, however, the police powers of all municipalities provides them with the authority to establish such a ban. He said he plans to meet with the Hanover Park village attorney to discuss the authority of the village.

Schlickman said if Hanover Park adopts such a resolution, it could have a "domino effect," provoking other Northwest suburban communities to follow suit.

Radio Dispatch System Is Being Completed In Area

A central dispatch radio system that may involve the Buffalo Grove police department is being completed in Arlington Heights. The Illinois Law Enforcement Commission Friday approved a $50,533 supplemental grant for the system, which initially includes Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village.

The system, under which dispatching for all three police departments will be done from one central location, will probably be in operation by the middle of October, according to Elk Grove Village Police Chief Harry Jenkins, project director. The location chosen is the Arlington Heights Police Station.

Radio equipment for the project was scheduled to be completely installed by last Friday, and testing of the equipment will start today.

CENTRAL DISPATCHING is designed to speed up police response to a citizen call for help somewhere in the community other than the police station. Under the program, the three police departments will use a radio frequency by themselves and officers will have portable radios enabling them to keep in contact with the dispatcher even while in large buildings.

In addition, each community involved with the program will continue to maintain an information desk at each station to handle non-emergency calls and citizens who come to the station.

The grant from the ILEC will be combined with $33,100 for personnel and construction costs by the three communities. This makes a total supplemental grant of $103,633. Originally, a grant of $805,401 ($314,581 in federal funds) was acquired for the project. Most of the money was needed for the radio equipment.

Jenkins said that Buffalo Grove officials are seeking a grant from the ILEC so they can join the program.

Contacted Friday, Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh said he was in the process of filling out an application for the grant. He said some $24,000 is needed by the Buffalo Grove department for radio equipment.

According to Walsh, Buffalo Grove was originally included in the central dispatch plans but former Police Chief Harold Smith decided to withdraw from the program. Walsh replaced Smith as chief Aug. 15.

Sen. George McGovern denounced the "sharks" and "hogs" of big business, saying that they had opened a "revolving door" connecting regulatory agencies to corporate boardrooms. . . The chief spokesman for the nation's coal industry charged that McGovern's ban-strip mining proposal could mean blackouts in millions of homes.

It Was Ol' Time Politics—Humdinger Of A Bash

by DAVID MAHSMAN

It was a humdinger of a bash — just like the good ol' days.

In spite of the emergence of media campaigns and Madison Avenue candidates, some of the best times in the politics of yesteryear can still be found. This weekend, Wayne and Sally Kehe, 223 W. Slade St., Palatine, threw a bratwurst and beer bash to raise funds for presidential hopeful George McGovern.

Regardless of your politics, the outdoor party brings back memories of how campaigns used to be run — especially in rural areas. It was a real picnic.

The beer was cold, the bratwurst great, prepared over a huge pile of glowing coals. Carrying your food through the crowd, you had to dodge the kids playing chase around a large evergreen. In the background and protruding into the foreground, a band was playing — a rock band, not the older variety.

Between 50 and 100 people were in the Kehe's yard, next to their large two-story home with attached coachhouse, at any one time. They came and went. And the people looked as different as day and night. Some were dressed in bluejeans and workshirts, others were very chic in painted nails, gold jewelry and pantsuits.

The mosquitos were there, too, but no one seemed to care. What kind of a picnic would it be without one sort of six-legged pest or another?

MOST OF THE LOCAL Democratic candidates were there, as well, smiling and shaking hands. Political literature was flowing as freely as the beer, and McGovern T-shirts, sweatshirts, buttons and posters were available for a price.

Suddenly the band stopped playing, and the small-group discussions ceased. It was time for a speech, even though one wasn't in the plans. And what a speech it was.

Roy LaLonde, retired realtor and former politico took to the soapbox and gave 'em hell.

He began by telling of voting for Cal Coolidge in 1924, "the biggest mistake I ever made." He proceeded to boost hopes for underdog McGovern's victory by relating his days as a precinct committeeman when Harry Truman pulled a surprise upset over Thomas Dewey in 1948.

LaLonde's voice rose to a crescendo, climaxing his speech by saying he is for McGovern with all his heart and giving his blessing to the young people in the crowd. Quoting Oliver Wendell Holmes, he gave this advice:

"Believe in something, have a great deal of enthusiasm and work for it."

The crowd loved it. McGovern couldn't have done any better, and probably couldn't have approached LaLonde's enthusiasm.

It was a real barnburner.

Township Vote Turned Down By Palatine Auditors

Palatine Township's Board of Auditors rejected a proposed referendum last night that would have allowed voters to decide the future of the township government in the November election.

As a result of the board's action, a possible referendum will not be placed on the Nov. 7 general election ballot. But the proposal may be slated for a ballot next year when township officials are up for election.

Township Atty. Roger Bjorvik told the board that three other townships facing similar petitions had reached the same conclusions on advice of their attorneys. Maine and Niles townships have not taken formal action yet, but opinions entered by attorneys for each body followed the general pattern submitted by Bjorvik at a Sept. 13 special meeting with the Palatine board.

The Illinois legislature has made no provision for distributing the functions currently performed by the township, an issue that has become a stumbling block to the acceptance of the petitions.

A BILL THAT would shift most of the township functions to the county has stalled in the legislature, but action on the bill is expected sometime this year.

Residents To Receive Flood Loan Guidelines

Palatine residents will soon be receiving information on loan assistance for damages incurred in the recent floods.

The Village of Palatine is sending a copy of eligibility guidelines issued by the Small Business Administration (SBA) for victims of the Aug. 25 and Sept. 17 downpours to residents and businesses.

Application forms for disaster loans from the SBA are available at village hall, 54 S. Brockway St., or at the various SBA offices. Applications are to be filed directly with the SBA.

The original provision in the Illinois Constitution allows voters to dissolve township governments if there is a definite body that would take over its duties. Currently, no such law exists.

The resolution passed unanimously by the board concluded that, "The referendum cannot be granted at this time due to the unconstitutionality of the statute providing for the dissolution of townships, and is therefore denied."

Over 2,000 signatures were gathered by the Palatine League of Women Voters to get the referendum on the ballot. No definite action by the league was made following last night's decision.

Letters from Ann Scollay, who headed the league's petition drive, were coldly received last night by township officials. The letters requested detailed information about the number of residents receiving general assistance in certain areas of the township and specific voter registration figures in the past year.

"THIS IS A MATTER that should have been taken into consideration before the petitions were circulated," Howard I. Olsen, supervisor said. The information would be used in a study by the league to determine which agencies could take over the township's functions if it is abolished.

He questioned the value of digging out the information when the township does not have the specific data in its files.

"It is not the league's responsibility to determine where these things should go, but that's what it's for," Mrs. Scollay responded.

Olsen is planning to attend a weekend to consult with Donald Moore, a member of the Illinois House Committee on Counties and Townships to consider the township's position when a subcommittee meets in Elgin.

The Palatine referendum proposal was the first in the State of Illinois. Until a 1970 constitutional revision, voters could not directly abolish township government.

Moratorium On Building Urged In Area

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-3rd) yesterday called for a moratorium on all construction in the Northwest suburban area until workable plans for flood control can be developed and implemented.

Schlickman, "distracted" and "frustrated" over the flooding problem and the lack of effective means to combat it, made the proposal in a letter to all mayors and village presidents in the Northwest suburbs. The letter was also sent to County Board Pres. George Dunne.

Schlickman's letter said, in part: "I urgently request you and your fellow municipal officials adopt a resolution establishing a ban on all construction within your corporate limits until a comprehensive, area-wide plan for flood control can be developed and implemented."

He added, "The safety, welfare and health of the citizenry demands this action."

Schlickman said he made the request because despite many meetings, conversations and discussions of the flooding problem, there has been no significant change in the situation.

ALTHOUGH THE state representative initially expressed some degree of uncertainty about the possible reaction to his suggestion, at least one area community late yesterday indicated its support of the idea.

Schlickman said R.D. Henninger, village manager of Hanover Park, reported the village is prepared to establish such a moratorium, but they are concerned with existing contractual obligations to developers.

Schlickman said he is positive, however, the police powers of all municipalities provides them with the authority to establish such a ban. He said he plans to meet with the Hanover Park village attorney to discuss the authority of the village.

Schlickman said if Hanover Park adopts such a resolution, it could have a "domino effect" provoking other Northwest suburban communities to follow suit.

ACLU Plan Calls For 750 Low-Income Housing Units

by ROGER CAPELLINI

The American Civil Liberties Union submitted a plan yesterday calling for the construction of 750 units of low-income housing in the three-county Chicago suburban area.

The plan, revealed at a press conference in ACLU offices in Chicago yesterday, came in the form of a proposed judgment order in a court case currently before U.S. District Court Judge Richard Austin. No specific sites for the housing were proposed.

A hearing is scheduled for the proposal in Judge Austin's court Oct. 24.

In its proposal, the ACLU suggests providing an incentive to suburban municipalities to enter voluntarily into agreements to provide housing within their corporate limits.

If such housing is planned voluntarily by the municipality within 180 days of the order, as proposed, it could be limited to 2 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

The proposal includes provisions wherein the Chicago Housing Authority would be forced to "do everything necessary to provide the units," in the suburbs if the local municipalities do not take action within the six-month period.

IF THE HOUSING is planned by the CHA for the individual suburbs, the number of low-income dwelling units could equal 4 per cent of the total number of apartment and single-family residences existing.

Carl Lezak, director of the Illinois Division of the ACLU said at the press conference he does not consider that provision constitutes a threat to the suburbs. "It's not a threat — it's a reward if they (the suburbs) take it positively," he said.

The proposed order calls for the 750 units to be constructed in white areas of Cook (outside the City of Chicago) DuPage and Lake counties in a 6 to 2 to 1 ratio respectively. If ordered by Judge Austin, the plan would not affect the 1,500 units already ordered to be built within the City of Chicago.

In a memorandum filed with the proposal, the ACLU said the "inclusion of suburban areas in the plan is necessary to minimize the risk that the operation of the 1969 court order (establishing the 1,500 units for Chicago) will result in increased 'flight to the suburbs.'"

The ACLU said if that "flight" should take place on a large scale, it would produce resegregation and negate the objectives of the 1969 order.

THE ORDER WOULD require that 75 per cent of the low-income units be constructed in white areas.

According to the ACLU plan, no low-income project could be constructed which would include dwelling units for more than 120 persons. Additionally, it prohibits the construction of any new low-income units if that construction would mean low-income units would total more than 15 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

A census tract is an area set aside by the U.S. Census Bureau which may include one or more, or portions of, several municipalities.

The limit for any municipality or unincorporated areas of a township would be set by the proposed order at 4 per cent.

The proposed order also would obligate the CHA to try to agree with other local housing authorities that they will provide the units outside the City of Chicago, making 50 per cent of the units available to the CHA's tenants and applicants. Lezak said preference would be given to local residents.

THIS CAR-TRUCK crash on Roselle Road near Harper College resulted in at least two injuries yesterday morning. Details of the accident were not available from the Cook County police as of last night. Police and security forces from Harper College, Palatine and the county aided at the scene.

Plans Being Formed Today

Representatives from 19 suburban communities will meet at 8 p.m. today in the Elk Grove Village Hall to make plans for the Northwest suburbs' participation in the nationwide "Bike-A-Thon" for the American Cancer Society Oct. 29.

Thomas Carollo, past president of the Elk Grove Village Jaycees, said members of each community's Jaycee organization or Chamber of Commerce will receive an information packet on organizing and conducting the Bike-A-thon in their community.

In a Bike-A-thon, participants arrange for sponsors who will pay them a certain amount of money for each mile they ride. All money collected will be donated to the cancer society.

Carollo said no definite bike routes had been made. He said the various communities might be divided into two or three areas with each area having a route or each community might have its own small route plus one large overall route for the entire area.

To promote the Bike-A-thon, the Partridge Family is planning a series of network television commercials.

Carollo said arrangements may be made for sports celebrities and local television stars to appear at the Randhurst and Woodfield shopping centers on Oct. 28 to encourage both participants and sponsors to join the Bike-A-thon.

Teachers Submit Salary Proposal To School Board

Teacher negotiators in High School Dist. 211 last night offered a salary proposal to the board of education that would freeze the base pay for teachers and provide increases for those with experience in the district.

In making the offer, the Dist. 211 Education Association took the advice of Board Pres. Robert Creek, who indicated at the last bargaining session that he did not think the base pay for beginning teachers needed to be increased this year.

The teachers' new proposal, however, would cost the district more than twice the amount the board has said it wants to spend in additional teacher salaries.

THE NEW PROPOSAL would leave the base pay at $8,300, the same as the 1971-72 salary schedule, but would increase the raises due for teachers for additional education or experience by one-half per cent. The top pay in the proposal would be $18,560, compared to $17,538 on the 1971-72 salary scale.

Last week the board negotiators said they did not want to increase the cost of teacher salaries more than $115,000 over what is presently budgeted. The teachers' new proposal, according to Carl Flaks, chief teacher negotiator, would cost the district $289,000 over the budget.

Flaks said the proposal was drawn up with the idea of rewarding teachers who have spent years in the district, and added the association officials could not stay within the $115,000 offered by the board.

"Based on the feedback we've been getting in our meetings with the faculty there simply isn't any hope for a package based on your offer," he said.

Board members had said they would take the additional cost of salaries out of the working cash fund, which now has more than $400,000 in it. They had said, however, they would not use more than $115,000 out of the fund because they wanted to provide money for contingencies.

THE WORKING CASH fund is built up by a school district through a special tax levy. The money in the fund may be used to make interest free loans to the education and building funds, which are used to operate the district.

The district's 471 teachers returned to work one month ago without a salary contract. They are now being paid on the 1971-72 salary scale, with those who were in the district last year receiving the five per cent increase provided in that scale.

Negotiators for the board said they will study the teachers' proposal. The next bargaining session was scheduled for Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the district's administration building, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

SHS Students Seek Protest Support

Five Schaumburg High School students said they are organizing protest support at other High School Dist. 211 campuses because authorities have reneged on an agreement to meet yesterday and talk over student grievances.

The five also fear they will be expelled for allegedly masterminding a student walkout at Schaumburg High School held Friday.

They charge the school's principal, Carl Weimer, and District Supt. Richard Kolze are giving them "the run-around." So, they are attempting to organize a boycott of the Dist. 211 school lunchrooms.

Mike Elizondo, one of the five, said Supt. Richard Kolze's failure to meet with students Monday to discuss their demands prompted the group's plan to seek support from other schools.

ELIZONDO SAID he and others on the helped disperse a crowd of over 200 students after being told Kolze would meet with them.

"We were available at 8 a.m. Monday for the meeting and were told there would be no meeting until all the kids that are out on suspension get back in school," said Elizondo.

Prin. Carl Weimer told the press and students this past weekend he would arrange a meeting with Kolze since the majority of student demands such as open campus are specifically board policy. However Monday Weimer insisted there must have been some misunderstanding and that he could not confirm a meeting for Kolze.

KOLZE DENIED he was to meet with the students but said he has talked with them on the telephone. "It is the district's first priority to get those back that want in," said Kolze.

Throughout the weekend Kolze and other district administrators joined Schaumburg High School officials in holding individual parent conferences with the 305 students who were suspended following the walkout.

Kolze said at least 100 students on suspension came in with parents during the weekend and were readmitted after the conference.

"Monday the school was processing 12 at once with administrators brought in from the rest of the district," said Kolze.

THE SUPERINTENDENT said he told the representatives he would "have to see" about a meeting with them after all the suspended students have come in for conferences.

"If their parents call in for a conference, I'll be glad to meet with them," said Kolze.

One of the student spokesmen, Trauth, had a conference but was not reinstated.

"In view of his direct involvement, he is still on suspension, pending further investigation," said Kolze.

ELIZONDO INSISTS the group will push for a meeting and said he and the others have promised the students they would talk for them and bring back the message from the district.

"We don't want to bring our parents into this. Just getting back in school won't change things. We want to talk to them," he said.

The protest walkout initially involved some 500 students.

Student demands include: Open campus and study, lower school lunches from 50 to 45 cents, soft drinks in the cafeteria, no suspension of students who participated in walkout, shorter school day, changes in attendance policy, an inside smoking area and no grade requirements for participation in student council.

Mayors Plan Key Meetings On Low-Income Housing

Twelve suburban mayors will begin meetings next month to convince officials of some 250 Chicago suburbs to join a voluntary plan for low and moderate-income housing.

The group hopes to have a detailed voluntary housing plan for the suburbs within two years.

The mayors, including Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert, will meet for the last time Thursday before talking to officials of other municipalities Teichert said the mayors would practice the presentation they will present to other officials.

The group, representing Cook, Kane, DuPage, Lake, Will and McHenry counties, have been working on the project since December under the auspices of the Housing Coalition of the Leadership Council for Metropolitan Open Communities. The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) has been supplying technical help to the group.

Jack Pahl, former Elk Grove Village mayor and NIPC commissioner who originated the idea for the housing program, said both he and Harry Gottlieb, program director, would be available to help with any presentations. Gottlieb began his duties as coordinator for the program on Sept. 1. He has experience in financing FHA moderate-income housing projects, Pahl said.

The idea behind the housing program is for suburbs to work out a voluntary housing program before it is forced upon them by the courts, Pahl said. A lawsuit has been filed by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) that would require the distribution of 60,000 low-income housing units on a "fair-share" basis. The suit is now before U.S. District Court Judge Richard Austin.

Palatine Township's Board of Auditors rejected a proposed referendum last night that would have allowed voters to decide the future of the township government in the November election.

As a result of the board's action, a possible referendum will not be placed on the Nov. 7 general election ballot. But the proposal may be slated for a ballot next year when township officials are up for election.

Township Atty. Roger Bjorvik told the board that three other townships facing similar petitions had reached the same conclusions on advice of their attorneys. Maine and Niles townships have not taken formal action yet, but opinions entered by attorneys for each body followed the general pattern submitted by Bjorvik at a Sept. 13 special meeting with the Palatine board.

The Illinois legislature has made no provision for distributing the functions currently performed by the township, an issue that has become a stumbling block to the acceptance of the petitions.

A BILL THAT would shift most of the township functions to the county has stalled in the legislature, but action on the bill is expected sometime this year.

The original provision in the Illinois Constitution allows voters to dissolve township governments if there is a definite body that would take over its duties. Currently, no such law exists.

The resolution passed unanimously by the board concluded that, "The referendum cannot be granted at this time due to the unconstitutionality of the statute providing for the dissolution of townships, and is therefore denied."

Over 2,000 signatures were gathered by the Palatine League of Women Voters to get the referendum on the ballot. No definite action by the league was made following last night's decision.

Letters from Ann Scollay, who headed the league's petition drive, were coldly received last night by township officials. The letters requested detailed information about the number of residents receiving general assistance in certain areas of the township and specific voter registration figures in the past year.

"THIS IS A MATTER that should have been taken into consideration before the petitions were circulated," Howard I. Olsen, supervisor said. The information would be used in a study by the league to determine which agencies could take over the township's functions if it is abolished.

He questioned the value of digging out the information when the township does not have the specific data in its files.

"It is not the league's responsibility to determine where these things should go, but that's what it's for," Mrs. Scollay responded.

Olsen is planning to attend a weekend to consult with Donald Moore, a member of the Illinois House Committee on Counties and Townships to consider the township's position when a subcommittee meets in Elgin.

The Palatine referendum proposal was the first in the State of Illinois. Until a 1970 constitutional revision, voters could not directly abolish township government.

Public Works Crews Geared For Flooding

Public works crews in Rolling Meadows were placed on stand-by emergency status yesterday by Public Works Supt. John Hennessy as the National Weather Service warned of more rain and the threat of flash flooding in the northwest suburbs.

Hennessy said the stand-by emergency status means that off duty crews will be on call at all times in the event that flooding situations arise. He said the procedure is used so that crews may begin working on any problems immediately "before things get too serious."

"Any rain that occurs now would be runoff," Hennessy said, "so any rain is dangerous." He said Salt Creek waters have not receded from the high level caused by recent rains, indicating another storm could trigger the creek to overflow.

As preventative flood measures, Hennessy said crews were continuing to clean up debris along city streets and sidewalks that might clog sewer lines and interfere with the flow of water in the event of a storm.

He said the department also "has put pressure" on contractors to keep construction sites free of debris to prevent obstruction of the sewers.

Hennessy also said a minor power failure occurred early yesterday as a result of Sunday night rains. Included in the affected area was the city hall, but Hennessy said the problem was minor and all power was restored within an hour.

Trout Fishing Derby Slated

Don't put your rod and reel away yet. The Rolling Meadows Park District has announced a trout fishing derby the weekend of Oct. 6 through Oct. 9.

The park district is stocking the pool at 3900 Owl Dr. with approximately 500 one-pound rainbow trout.

The pool will be open for fishing from 6 to 10 p.m. on Friday, 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday and 7 a.m. until the fish are gone on Oct. 9.

A half hour of fishing will cost $1 and there will be a two fish limit. Bait will be available at the complex.

GLOOMY WEATHER DIDN'T dampen the spirits of youngsters from the Clearbrook Center for retarded children who attended a picnic held in their behalf by the Rolling Meadows Jaycees. The afternoon picnic followed installation of a new swing set donated to the center by the Mount Prospect Junior Women's Club.

New Patrolmen To Be Announced Shortly

The appointment of five new patrolmen to the Rolling Meadows police force will be announced shortly, according to fire and police commissioner Rudy Balek.

Balek said yesterday the nine remaining eligible men are now undergoing physical exams, the last of a series of tests required of the prospective patrolmen. Pending the results of the exams, Balek expects the board to reach a decision "within a day or so."

The nine men were selected by a process of elimination from an original group of 34. Beginning in May, each took part in a series of tests, including a written exam, a physical agility test, an oral interview, a lie detector screening, and a background check. After each test, those who failed to achieve required standards were eliminated.

The five selected will begin an eight-week training program at the Arlington Heights Police Officer Training Academy in October.

Moratorium On Building Urged In Area

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-3rd) yesterday called for a moratorium on all construction in the Northwest suburban area until workable plans for flood control can be developed and implemented.

Schlickman, "distracted" and "frustrated" over the flooding problem and the lack of effective means to combat it, made the proposal in a letter to all mayors and village presidents in the Northwest suburbs. The letter was also sent to County Board Pres. George Dunne.

Schlickman's letter said, in part: "I urgently request you and your fellow municipal officials adopt a resolution establishing a ban on all construction within your corporate limits until a comprehensive, area-wide plan for flood control can be developed and implemented."

He added, "The safety, welfare and health of the citizenry demands this action."

Schlickman said he made the request because despite many meetings, conversations and discussions of the flooding problem, there has been no significant change in the situation.

ALTHOUGH THE state representative initially expressed some degree of uncertainty about the possible reaction to his suggestion, at least one area community late yesterday indicated its support of the idea.

Schlickman said R.D. Henninger, village manager of Hanover Park, reported the village is prepared to establish such a moratorium, but they are concerned with existing contractual obligations to developers.

Schlickman said he is positive, however, the police powers of all municipalities provides them with the authority to establish such a ban. He said he plans to meet with the Hanover Park village attorney to discuss the authority of the village.

Schlickman said if Hanover Park adopts such a resolution, it could have a "domino effect," provoking other Northwest suburban communities to follow suit.

Annexation Proposal To Be Heard Tonight

The Rolling Meadows city council tonight will hear a proposal to annex several acres of land north of the Plum Grove Countryside subdivision for the purpose of building single-family homes.

The property, between Plum Grove Road and California Ave., is owned by Alexander Henry of Rolling Meadows. Henry is seeking permission to build seven or eight single-family residences on the site.

The council is also expected to approve a resolution designating the use of a portion of the motor fuel tax funds to cover costs of the state's planned inventory of streets.

The inventory program asks municipalities to survey the physical condition of their streets to determine whether they may qualify for state improvement aid.

Tonight's meeting begins at 8:30 p.m.

This Morning In Brief

The War

Three U. S. pilots released from captivity in North Vietnam left by plane for Nanking, China, en route home via Peking and Moscow, Hanoi reports said. The pilots, Air Force Maj. Edward K. Elias, Navy Lt. Markham L. Gantley and Navy Lt. Norris A. Charles, departed after they were reported to have told President Nixon they did not want to return home with U. S. military escorts. They are due to arrive in New York Thursday.

South Vietnamese forces recaptured a central coast hilltop held by Communist forces and pushed southward toward a government outpost that was overrun a week ago.

The Nation

The House Ways and Means Committee tentatively approved President Nixon's proposal to put a $250 billion limit on federal spending this fiscal year. The President pledged that the U. S. "shall not turn inward an isolationist" as it struggles with other nations to revamp the rules governing trade and currency exchange in the non-Communist world.

Sen. George McGovern denounced the "sharks" and "bogs" of big business, saying that they had opened a "revolving door" connecting regulatory agencies to corporate boardrooms. The chief spokesman for the nation's coal industry charged that McGovern's ban-strip mining proposal could mean blackouts in millions of homes.

The World

The prime ministers of China and Japan pledged to establish diplomatic relations between their two governments, bringing to an end three decades of hatred.

At the United Nations, U. S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers called for tough measures against airplane hijacking and "the export of international terrorism," and then moved swiftly to see that his proposals were acted on in the UN. He proposed a conference to coordinate international action against terrorism.

Despite the opening of political peace talks in England, gunmen carried out successful bomb strikes in one of Belfast's most luxurious hotels and other targets across Northern Ireland.

ACLU Plan Calls For 750 Low-Income Housing Units

by ROGER CAPEITINI

The American Civil Liberties Union submitted a plan yesterday calling for the construction of 750 units of low-income housing in the three-county Chicago suburban area.

The plan, revealed at a press conference in ACLU offices in Chicago yesterday, came in the form of a proposed judgment order in a court case currently before U.S. District Court Judge Richard Austin. No specific sites for the housing were proposed.

A hearing is scheduled for the proposal in Judge Austin's court Oct. 21.

In its proposal, the ACLU suggests providing an incentive to suburban municipalities to enter voluntarily into agreements to provide housing within their corporate limits.

If such housing is planned voluntarily by the municipality within 180 days of the order, as proposed, it could be limited to 2 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

The proposal includes provisions wherein the Chicago Housing Authority would be forced to "do everything necessary to provide the units," in the suburbs if the local municipalities do not take action within the six-month period.

IF THE HOUSING is planned by the CHA for the individual suburbs, the number of low-income dwelling units could equal 4 per cent of the total number of apartment and single-family residences existing.

Carl Lezak, director of the Illinois Division of the ACLU said at the press conference he does not consider that provision constitutes a threat to the suburbs. "It's not a threat — it's a reward if they (the suburbs) take it positively," he said.

The proposed order calls for the 750 units to be constructed in white areas of Cook (outside the City of Chicago) DuPage and Lake counties in a 6 to 2 to 1 ratio respectively. If ordered by Judge Austin, the plan would not affect the 1,500 units already ordered to be built within the City of Chicago.

In a memorandum filed with the proposal, the ACLU said the "inclusion of suburban areas in the plan is necessary to minimize the risk that the operation of the 1969 court order (establishing the 1,500 units for Chicago) will result in increased 'flight to the suburbs.'"

The ACLU said if that "flight" should take place on a large scale, it would produce resegregation and negate the objectives of the 1969 order.

THE ORDER WOULD require that 75 per cent of the low-income units be constructed in white areas.

According to the ACLU plan, no low-income project could be constructed which would include dwelling units for more than 120 persons. Additionally, it prohibits the construction of any new low-income units if that construction would mean low-income units would total more than 15 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

A census tract is an area set aside by the U.S. Census Bureau which may include one or more, or portions of, several municipalities.

The limit for any municipality or unincorporated areas of a township would be set by the proposed order at 4 per cent.

The proposed order also would obligate the CHA to try to agree with other local housing authorities that they will provide the units outside the City of Chicago, making 50 per cent of the units available to the CHA's tenants and applicants. Lezak said preference would be given to local residents.

Electrical Fire Reported Here

A small electrical fire broke out last night in a two-story frame house at 222 S. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine. No one was injured.

Damage to the building, rented by the David H. George family, was confined to parts of the second floor and attic.

Mrs. George said she had replaced a fuse in the fuse box about five minutes earlier because the lights in an upstairs bedroom had gone out.

She said the lights went back on after she replaced the fuse, which she said she had done numerous times in the six years the family has lived in the house.

The house is owned by Dr. Leo Pevsner of Palatine. George is a former president of the Palatine Jaycees and has been active in civic affairs.

3 Begin Service Tours

Three Rolling Meadows men have begun tours of duty in the armed forces.

Marine Lance Cpl. Charles E. Gallagher, son of Mrs. Russell Johnson, 3102 Owl Dr., has begun basic electronics training at the Marine Corps base in Twentynine Palms, Calif.

Navy P.O. 3/C. Randall E. Hagman has reported for duty at the U.S. Naval Communication Station on Guam.

Navy P.O. 3/C. Martin C. Goulding has sailed for a two-month deployment in the North Atlantic aboard the USS Little Rock.

THIS CAR-TRUCK crash on Roselle Road near Harper College resulted in at least two injuries yesterday morning. Details of the accident were not available from the Cook County police as of last night. Police and security forces from Harper College, Palatine and the county aided at the scene.

Mayors Plan Key Housing Meetings

Twelve suburban mayors will begin meetings next month to convince officials of some 250 Chicago suburbs to join a voluntary plan for low and moderate-income housing.

The group hopes to have a detailed voluntary housing plan for the suburbs within two years.

The mayors, including Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert, will meet for the last time Thursday before talking to officials of other municipalities. Teichert said the mayors would practice the presentation they will present to other officials.

The group, representing Cook, Kane, DuPage, Lake, Will and McHenry counties, have been working on the project since December under the auspices of the Housing Coalition of the Leadership Council for Metropolitan Open Communities. The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) has been supplying technical help to the group.

Jack Pahl, former Elk Grove Village mayor and NIPC commissioner who originated the idea for the housing program, said both he and Harry Gottlieb, program director, would be available to help with any presentations. Gottlieb began his duties as coordinator for the program on Sept. 1. He has experience in financing FHA moderate-income housing projects, Pahl said.

The idea behind the housing program is for suburbs to work out a voluntary housing program before it is forced upon them by the courts, Pahl said. A lawsuit has been filed by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) that would require the distribution of 60,000 low-income housing units on a "fair-share" basis. The suit is now before U.S. District Court Judge Richard Austin.

Treats For Clearbrook Kids

Youngsters from the Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows Clearbrook Center for Retarded Children got a double treat Saturday.

In the morning they saw set up for them a new six-foot, $400 swing set donated by the Mount Prospect Junior Women's Club. And in the afternoon they were the guests at a picnic sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Jaycees.

The picnic was held after the Jaycees completed installation of the swing set. The set was paid for with money contributed by the Women's Club to the David Stepak memorial fund, which was established by the center in memory of one of the center's students, a four-year-old boy who died last spring.

The picnic was the first of a proposed annual events to be sponsored for the children by the Jaycees, spokesman Melvin Van Sky Jr. said. Food and games for the picnic were donated by stores in the area, he said.

"The weather was poor, but it was a lot of fun," Van Sky said. "It was very worthwhile and that's why I hope we can continue to do this kind of thing annually," he added.

The Clearbrook Center sponsors a day school for retarded children from the area as well as a workshop for retarded young adults.

'Bike-a-Thon' Plans Being Formed Today

Representatives from 19 suburban communities will meet at 8 p.m. today in the Elk Grove Village Hall to make plans for the Northwest suburbs' participation in the nationwide "Bike-A-Thon" for the American Cancer Society Oct. 29.

Thomas Carollo, past president of the Elk Grove Village Jaycees, said members of each community's Jaycee organization or Chamber of Commerce will receive an information packet on organizing and conducting the Bike-A-thon in their community.

In a Bike-a-thon, participants arrange for sponsors who will pay them a certain amount of money for each mile they ride. All money collected will be donated to the cancer society.

Carollo said no definite bike routes had been made. He said the various communities might be divided into two or three areas with each area having a route or each community might have its own small route plus one large overall route for the entire area.

To promote the Bike-a-thon, the Partridge Family is planning a series of network television commercials.

Carollo said arrangements may be made for sports celebrities and local television stars to appear at the Randhurst and Woodfield shopping centers on Oct. 28 to encourage both participants and sponsors to join the Bike-a-thon. committee, Doug Lefebvre, Mark Bale, Taron Enbysk and Tom Trauth cooperated with school authorities Friday and

Community Church Paper Drive Saturday

The youth group of the church will accept papers at the church located on the corner of Kirchhoff and Meadow. Persons who can not get their papers to the church should call CL 5-5510 to have them picked up.

Cub Scouts To Hold Wiener Roast Friday

Cub Scout Pack 96 invites parents and sons 8, 9 and 10 years old to a wiener roast at Kimball Hill Park in Rolling Meadows Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Applications will be available for membership. Families should bring their own sticks, marshmallows and hot dogs. In case of rain, the meeting will be held in the basement of Trinity Lutheran Church.

SHS Students Seek Protest Support

Five Schaumburg High School students said they are organizing protest support at other High School Dist. 211 campuses because authorities have reneged on an agreement to meet yesterday and talk over student grievances.

The five also fear they will be expelled for allegedly masterminding a student walkout at Schaumburg High School held Friday. They charge the school's principal, Carl Weimer, and District Supt. Richard Kolze are giving them "the run-around."

So, they are attempting to organize a boycott of the Dist. 211 school lunchrooms.

Mike Elizondo, one of the five, said Supt. Richard Kolze's failure to meet with students Monday to discuss their demands prompted the group's plan to seek support from other schools.

ELIZONDO SAID he and others on the helped disperse a crowd of over 200 students after being told Kolze would meet with them.

"We were available at 8 a.m. Monday for the meeting and were told there would be no meeting until all the kids that are out on suspension get back in school," said Elizondo.

"Weimer said he'll try to expel us," said Bale, adding "we tried to keep our part of the deal, we want them to keep theirs."

Prin. Carl Weimer told the press and students this past weekend he would arrange a meeting with Kolze since the majority of student demands such as open campus are specifically board policy. However Monday Weimer insisted there must have been some misunderstanding and that he could not confirm a meeting for Kolze.

KOLZE DENIED he was to meet with the students but said he has talked with them on the telephone. "It is the district's first priority to get those back that want in," said Kolze.

Throughout the weekend Kolze and other district administrators joined Schaumburg High School officials in holding individual parent conferences with the 305 students who were suspended following the walkout.

Kolze said at least 100 students on suspension came in with parents during the weekend and were readmitted after the conference.

"Monday the school was processing 12 at once with administrators brought in from the rest of the district," said Kolze.

THE SUPERINTENDENT said he told the representatives he would "have to see" about a meeting with them after all the suspended students have come in for conferences.

"If their parents call in for a conference, I'll be glad to meet with them," said Kolze.

One of the student spokesmen, Trauth, had a conference but was not reinstated.

"In view of his direct involvement, he is still on suspension, pending further investigation," said Kolze.

ELIZONDO INSISTS the group will push for a meeting and said he and the others have promised the students they would talk for them and bring back the message from the district.

"We don't want to bring our parents into this. Just getting back in school won't change things. We want to talk to them," he said.

The protest walkout initially involved some 500 students.

Student demands include: Open campus and study, lower school lunches from 50 to 45 cents, soft drinks in the cafeteria, no suspension of students who participated in walkout, shorter school day, changes in attendance policy, an inside smoking area and no grade requirements for participation in student council.

Parents React: Discipline Them

by JERRY THOMAS

"Discipline them," is the reaction of a majority of the 305 parents whose youngsters, students at Schaumburg High School, were suspended for being involved in a student walkout Friday.

Several of the parents were interviewed Monday as they waited to confer with school officials. Most said they wanted their children back in school, were irritated about being there, but fully supportive of the school's policies.

One man was angry at his son for being involved, mostly because he told him he was just going along with the crowd. The boy was caught outside and was unable to return to class.

"I'm against open campus and want my son to know he is going to obey school rules. That's why I'm home from work and here wait my wife," he said.

A MOTHER SAID she, too, supported school authorities and wanted her son to obey school rules.

However, she could see no harm in allowing the students to have an indoor smoking area. She also wanted the teachers to remember that if the students were to act as young adults, they must be treated as young adults.

"I have very strong views about things that affect me, and I guess my daughter is the same way," said another mother as she discussed her daughter's suspension. "But I don't think kids should tell the schools what to do," she added.

"I understand that she has her beliefs, but I think by walking out of the school she was doing wrong and I do not support her action."

Most students interviewed with their parents were immediately reinstated. Principal Carl Weimer said they were followers, or got locked out of class during the confusion.

"No disciplinary action has been taken against those readmitted to school but if they participate in another walkout, it means expulsion," said Weimer.

WEIMER ADDED that by late Monday all but 40 parent conferences had been held.

"Of those, only five parents said they supported their child's action," said Weimer. "The rest told the school that they were fully behind us."

BACK TO NORMAL, the mood was "easy" on the Schaumburg High School campus Monday after last week's student walkout in protest for an open campus. Over 250 students and their parents were shuffled through the school for suspension conferences, but class went on as usual for the rest of the 2,200-student body.

Emergency Flood Session Slated By The Village

The Mount Prospect Village Board will meet tonight in special session to consider an emergency flood control program, which may include a three-month moratorium on building in the village.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert called for the special meeting last week after at least four major rainstorms in a six-week period brought flooding problems to the foreground of discussions both on the citizen and governmental levels. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the council chambers of the Municipal Building, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

An immediate result of Teichert's announcement of a possible moratorium on building has been a sharp increase in the number of building applications. Buell Dutton said yesterday, Dutton is the director of building and zoning for the village.

DUTTON SAID many people have rushed in their building applications in order to beat the moratorium should it be put into effect tonight. "I am processing the applications as fast as I can," Dutton said.

An indirect result of Teichert's announcement was that the village board delayed until Nov. 21 a decision on a rezoning proposal for River and Camp McDonald roads. Planned unit development zoning is being sought for the site by officials of the Brickman Midwest Corp.

The final reading of the ordinance for the Brickman development was scheduled for Sept. 19, but was continued when it was realized that objectors to the plan had not been notified the matter would come up. A spokesman for Brickman Midwest then asked that the matter be put over to November rather than Oct. 3, when it normally would have been rescheduled.

Other major projects that could be affected by a building moratorium are planned unit developments on Busse Road at the south end of the village and on the northwest corner of River and Foundry roads.

AMONG OTHER flood control suggestions made by Teichert in a memorandum to the village board were:

—An immediate survey, to take 30 days and cost $2,000, similar to the one conducted after flooding in 1967.

—A continuation of meetings with Arlington Heights and Des Plaines officials concerning cooperative flood control programs and the inclusion of officials from the State of Illinois and the Metropolitan Sanitary District in such talks.

—An allocation of $20,000 for consulting engineer services in relating past data and new survey data as to potential water-holding areas such as retention and detention basins in the village.

Teichert said there are enough funds already allocated in the $35,000 retention basin section of the budget to cover the survey and engineer costs.

Mayors Plan Key Meetings On Low-Income Housing

Twelve suburban mayors will begin meetings next month to convince officials of some 250 Chicago suburbs to join a voluntary plan for low and moderate-income housing.

The group hopes to have a detailed voluntary housing plan for the suburbs within two years.

The mayors, including Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert, will meet for the first time Thursday before talking to officials of other municipalities. Teichert said the mayors would practice the presentation they will present to other officials.

The group, representing Cook, Kane, DuPage, Lake, Will and McHenry counties, have been working on the project since December under the auspices of the Housing Coalition of the Leadership Council for Metropolitan Open Communities. The Northeastern Illinois Planning RIVER TRAILS Junior High School students look board their school bus in the morning. With Pat Kase driving, they aren't likely to get too rambunctious, however. Mrs. Kase soon lets it be known that she means business.

Plans Under Way For Oktoberfest

Plans are now being made for the first Oktoberfest Arts Festival in Prospect Heights Oct. 15.

The festival, which will be in the shopping center parking lot at Camp McDonald and Elmhurst roads, is being sponsored by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) and the Prospect Heights Beautification Committee. Artists can display their work from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Besides art and antique exhibits, candidates for the Illinois General Assembly will speak at 2 p.m. "We'll ask them questions dealing with Prospect Heights, concerning things like incorporation and flooding," said Jack Gilligan, PHIA president.

THE FESTIVAL will follow the Prospect Heights Fire Department's annual parade. The parade, featuring floats and Miss Fire Prevention, will begin at 12:30 a.m. To be eligible for the title of Miss Fire Prevention, a candidate must be in the sixth through eighth grade and live within the Prospect Heights Fire District. The fire department will hold its annual firemen's dance Oct. 14.

Proceeds from the festival will go to the beautification committee and the PHIA for "community needs," according to Pat Kerwin, of the PHIA. "We want to give local artists an opportunity to display their work and to sponsor an event for community participation," said Mrs. Kerwin. "We're hoping to make the festival an annual event if we get a good response from residents."

Artists and antique dealers can apply for a space at the festival by calling Mrs. Kerwin at 337-0203. Exhibit fee is $2.

Blonde Bus Driver Can Keep Kids Under Control

by MARY HOULIHAN
"Help, I'm getting bombed by sunflowers!"
—anonymous junior high bus rider
Pat Kase, 33, looks the antithesis of the conventional bus driver. Blonde hair piled high on her head, dressed in sporty white bell bottoms and soft blue puffed sleeves blouse, everything about her spells femininity. It's hard to believe that she wheels a bus full of 60 junior high students to and from the River Trails Junior High School in Mount Prospect twice a day.

That is, until you travel her bus route with her.

"Stop! You will stop or you will not get on the bus at all!" a deep voice booms from out of nowhere as the first group of seventh and eighth-graders scramble up the bus steps at the first stop on our trip. The kids stop dead in their tracks and quiet down immediately. You look around to see where the voice is coming from, only to realize that it belongs to Mrs. Kase.

"AS THE KIDS BARREL down the aisle, she yells back, "Fill up the back first, and remember, only three in a seat!" The kids follow the directions to the letter and order is restored. Soon, everyone settles down and the conversation begins.

"Did you see the way your sister looks at me?" one boy asks his seat companion, his face contorted in abhorring grimace. "Yeah, I saw the way she looks at you. What about it?" the other answers menacingly.

"Help! I'm getting bombed by sunflowers," a voice from the back of the bus exclaims. And from another, "I forgot my milk money. No what am I going to do?"

Though the students' comments are amusing to their mothers, especially during the first few weeks of school, are even funnier, according to Mrs. Kase.

"The mothers are a panic," she laughs. "their little darlings are going off to school in a great big bus. The first few days, the mothers stand at the stop with the kids. They ask what time the kids will be home. The kids want to crawl in a hole when their mothers start waving good-bye to them."

Mrs. Kase says the kids are usually a little rowdier in the afternoon (they're still waking up in the morning), but are still pretty well-behaved. The principal of the school has a lot to do with maintaining order, she says.

"I think the principal at River Trails sits on them and that makes my job easier," she says.

THOUGH SHE HAS been driving a bus for Dist. 26 for five years, her job has not always been so easy.

"The first morning I drove I was too nice," she says. "But in the afternoon one of the teachers rode the bus with the kids and read the rules to them. Consequently, they realized they had to settle down." She tries to keep things on kind of a teacher-student basis. "They respect me for what I do now," she says.

Mrs. Kase drives one of nine buses owned and operated by Dist. 26. The buses travel to the elementary schools as well as the junior high. Parents pay $20 a year for the service. However, only children who live less than 1½ miles from their school have to pay. All others ride free, according to Janet Hick, secretary for the school district.

And contrary to what most people would think, the majority of the drivers in Dist. 26 are women. There is only one male driver, Mrs. Hock said. Most of the women are about Mrs. Kase's age and all are housewives who live in the district.

Perhaps one of the major reasons why there are so many women is the convenience of the job. "It fits into my kids' schedules and the vacation also fits in well," Mrs. Kase said. Her kids also like the idea. "They think it's great," she said.

Jaycee Wives Plan GI Yule Packages

The Prospect Area Jaycee Wives are planning to send Christmas packages to local servicemen now stationed in Southeast Asia.

Anyone who knows of such a serviceman from Prospect Heights or the newly annexed portion of Mount Prospect can submit his name to the project by calling Gloria Jaworski at 537-9227 or Kathy Huber at 392-3911. The packages, which will contain items including paperback books and cards, must be sent by Oct. 15.

They are due to arrive in New York Thursday.

The Nation

The House Ways and Means Committee tentatively approved President Nixon's proposal to put a $250 billion limit on federal spending this fiscal year. The President pledged that the U. S. Sen. George McGovern denounced the "sharks" and "hogs" of big business, saying that they had opened a "revolving door" connecting regulatory agencies to corporate boardrooms. The chief spokesman for the nation's coal industry charged that McGovern's coal-strip mining proposal could mean blackouts in millions of homes.

The World

The prime ministers of China and Japan pledged to establish diplomatic relations between their two governments, bringing to an end three decades of hatred.

At the United Nations, U. S. Secretary of State William P. Miss Mount Prospect of 1967, Sophia Andoniadis, is appearing this month at "The Barn" dinner playhouse in St. Louis. She plays one of the lead roles, Julie Gillis, in "The Tender Trap."

Last weekend Sophia's family, Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Andoniadis of 709 N. Fairview Ave. and Andrea and Julie, drove down to see the show. Sophia's brother, George, who now lives in New York, was there for the family reunion, too.

Sophia became active in dramatics at Prospect High School. Following her graduation in 1967, she attended the school of speech at Northwestern University in Evanston. She now lives in New York City.

She and George have been involved with some of the same productions in New York — she in the dramatic end and George in the musical end. George has also written much of the music used by the Prospect High School stage band in jazz band competitions.

Moratorium On Building Urged In Area

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-3rd) yesterday called for a moratorium on all construction in the Northwest suburban area until workable plans for flood control can be developed and implemented.

Schlickman, "distracted" and "frustrated" over the flooding problem and the lack of effective means to combat it, made the proposal in a letter to all mayors and village presidents in the Northwest suburbs. The letter was also sent to County Board Pres. George Dunne.

Schlickman's letter said, in part: "I urgently request you and your fellow municipal officials adopt a resolution establishing a ban on all construction within your corporate limits until a comprehensive, area-wide plan for flood control can be developed and implemented."

He added, "The safety, welfare and health of the citizenry demands this action."

Schlickman said he made the request because despite many meetings, conversations and discussions of the flooding problem, there has been no significant change in the situation.

ALTHOUGH THE state representative initially expressed some degree of uncertainty about the possible reaction to his suggestion, at least one area community late yesterday indicated its support of the idea.

Schlickman said R.D. Henninger, village manager of Hanover Park, reported the village is prepared to establish such a moratorium, but they are concerned with existing contractual obligations to developers.

Schlickman said he is positive, however, the police powers of all municipalities provides them with the authority to establish such a ban. He said he plans to meet with the Hanover Park village attorney to discuss the authority of the village.

Schlickman said if Hanover Park adopts such a resolution, it could have a "domino effect," provoking other Northwest suburban communities to follow suit.

ACLU Plan Calls For 750 Low-Income Housing Units

by ROGER CAPETTINI

The American Civil Liberties Union submitted a plan yesterday calling for the construction of 750 units of low-income housing in the three-county Chicago suburban area.

The plan, revealed at a press conference in ACLU offices in Chicago yesterday, came in the form of a proposed judgment order in a court case currently before U.S. District Court Judge Richard Austin. No specific sites for the housing were proposed.

A hearing is scheduled for the proposal in Judge Austin's court Oct. 24.

In its proposal, the ACLU suggests providing an incentive to suburban municipalities to enter voluntarily into agreements to provide housing within their corporate limits.

If such housing is planned voluntarily by the municipality within 180 days of the order, as proposed, it could be limited to 2 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences. The proposal includes provisions wherein the Chicago Housing Authority would be forced to "do everything necessary to provide the units," in the suburbs if the local municipalities do not take action within the six-month period.

IF THE HOUSING is planned by the CHA for the individual suburbs, the number of low-income dwelling units could equal 4 per cent of the total number of apartment and single-family residences existing.

Carl Lezak, director of the Illinois Division of the ACLU said at the press conference he does not consider that provision constitutes a threat to the suburbs. "It's not a threat — it's a reward if they (the suburbs) take it positively," he said.

The proposed order calls for the 750 units to be constructed in white areas of Cook (outside the City of Chicago) DuPage and Lake counties in a 6 to 2 to 1 ratio respectively. If ordered by Judge Austin, the plan would not affect the 1,500 units already ordered to be built within the City of Chicago.

In a memorandum filed with the proposal, the ACLU said the "inclusion of suburban areas in the plan is necessary to minimize the risk that the operation of the 1969 court order (establishing the 1,500 units for Chicago) will result in increased 'flight to the suburbs.'"

The ACLU said if that "flight" should take place on a large scale, it would produce resegregation and negate the objectives of the 1969 order.

THE ORDER WOULD require that 75 per cent of the low-income units be constructed in white areas.

According to the ACLU plan, no low-income project could be constructed which would include dwelling units for more than 120 persons. Additionally, it prohibits the construction of any new low-income units if that construction would mean low-income units would total more than 15 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

A census tract is an area set aside by the U.S. Census Bureau which may include one or more, or portions of, several municipalities.

The limit for any municipality or unincorporated areas of a township would be set by the proposed order at 4 per cent.

The proposed order also would obligate the CHA to try to agree with other local housing authorities that they will provide the units outside the City of Chicago, making 50 per cent of the units available to the CHA's tenants and applicants. Lezak said preference would be given to local residents.

Construction On New Weller Creek Bridge Has Begun

Construction of a new bridge over Weller Creek at William Street in Mount Prospect began yesterday. Work is expected to last about two months.

Mount Prospect Village Eng. Leonard H. Dicke said yesterday the John Burns Construction Co. of Orland Park has begun digging foundations for the bridge abutments. John Burns was awarded the contract last month for $84,844, a sum which one village trustee called "a bargain." The consulting engineer's cost estimate for the project had been $99,870.

The bridge is the third in a series of five Weller Creek bridges planned by the village board several years ago.

Currently there are bridges at So. Gwin Avenue and George Street under this program. Funds for the bridges come from the village's share of the Illinois Motor Fuel Tax fund rebate to municipalities.

Last December and January the proposed William Street bridge became the subject of controversy when about 50 residents of the creek area and William Street signed petitions asking the village board not to build the bridge. At that time, the residents said they feared the increase in traffic on their street that they felt the bridge would bring. However, at the time the village board awarded the contract for the bridge, none of these objections appeared before the board to complain.

Busenhart—Proprietor Of District

by MARY HOULIHAN

J. C. Busenhart, assistant superintendent for business affairs in Mount Prospect Dist. 57 is a quiet man, but one shouldn't let his manner deceive.

Though he says little, Busenhart gets things done. Proof of this came during the flooding that has plagued the area during the last several weeks.

On the night of Friday, Aug. 25, a torrent of rain hit the Mount Prospect area, flooding homes and rendering many streets impassable. During the storm, the administration building at Dist. 57 was flooded with more than three feet of water, damaging virtually all the materials in the district's central supply office.

Busenhart was on a vacation in Carbondale, Ill., when he read about the flood in a Carbondale newspaper on Monday morning. He immediately returned home to direct the cleanup campaign.

BUT AS EVERYONE in the Northwest suburbs soon realized, Friday night's storm was only the beginning. In the two weeks that followed, it rained in the suburbs almost every day. And again, basements were flooded in several of the Dist. 57 schools. Sunset Park School, 601 W. Lonnquist Blvd., was the hardest hit, filling with water three times in two weeks.

Despite the floods, school was never closed. On evenings when the rain looked as if it might trigger flooding problems, Busenhart got up after receiving a late night emergency call to start on the dirty

$17,000 Signal Controller To Be Delivered

A $17,000 traffic signal controller, needed to complete the renovation of the Central Road-Northwest Highway intersection in Mount Prospect, is expected to be delivered Friday and in operation about a week later.

The project was originally scheduled to have been completed in early July, but a 90-day delay was caused when the contractor, G. A. Rafel Co., failed to order the controller until the middle of June.

New traffic light standards and islands have been installed at the intersection but no work has been done since June. Once the controller is in and tested, the intersection work will be finished.

The project is being funded partially with federal funds under a TOPICS grant (Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety).

Board Member Michael Ward told of getting up at 2:30 a.m. one morning to go over to the administration building to help in a cleanup, only to find Busenhart using modeling clay from one of the schools to build a dike to hold back water entering the building through a lower-level driveway.

On the mornings after all these all-night cleanup ordeals, most men would have been found anywhere but back at their desks. But that's exactly where Busenhart was. On one occasion, he spent an entire night, till about four in the morning, cleaning up water, then went home to bed for a few hours and was back at work at 8 a.m. He also went to a board meeting that night.

BUSENHART GOT paid for none of this extra work. But, Asst. Supt. Dwight Hall remarked, "He's the type of guy who wouldn't even ask for it. I think he's married to the district."

Though quiet and unassuming, Busenhart is appreciated. "We're very fortunate in this district to have a man like J.C.," commented Robert Novy, Dist. 57 board president. "He has a real sense of proprietorship about the district."

Man Found Guilty Of Property Damage

George E. Blackstone, 311 S. Pine St., was found guilty Friday in Mount Prospect court of criminal damage to property but was found not guilty of battery.

Both charges stemmed from a neighborhood incident June 23. At that time, Mrs. John O'Hara, 310 S. Pine St., told police Blackstone allegedly struck her several times with his fists after he kicked in the screen door and front door of her home.

Mount Prospect police had said Blackstone admitted to breaking into the house and "throwing some household items." The items turned out to include an air conditioner. Damage at that time was estimated at $150 by police.

In court Friday, Blackstone was fined $200 plus court costs.

Arson Caused Two Car Fires: Police

Arson is believed responsible for two car fires discovered just before 10:30 p.m. Thursday in the parking lot of the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn, 200 E. Rand Rd.

Police and fire officials said a small napkin fire was also put out in the hotel building itself. They said the two car fires, which caused minor damage, were under the front seats of the vehicles.

The police department has not yet released the names of the cars' owners.

Those planning to attend are asked to bring a one-dish meal. The supper, sponsored by the PTA, will be held in the school gymnasium. Because of limited space, PTA officials ask that children not be brought to the supper. A short business meeting will follow.

"Getting to Know Your School Community" is the theme of the Lions Park School PTA meeting tonight at the school, 300 E. Council Tr., Mount Prospect. Parents are invited to visit classrooms and meet their children's teachers starting at 7 p.m. Afterwards a box chicken dinner will be served.

ACLU Plan Calls For 750 Low-Income Housing Units

by ROGER CAPETTINI

The American Civil Liberties Union submitted a plan yesterday calling for the construction of 750 units of low-income housing in the three-county Chicago suburban area.

The plan, revealed at a press conference in ACLU offices in Chicago yesterday, came in the form of a proposed judgment order in a court case currently before U.S. District Court Judge Richard Austin. No specific sites for the housing were proposed.

Battery Trial Of Teacher Begins Today

John D. Fender, former Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 teacher, will be tried on battery charges today in Cook County Circuit Court, 1454 N. Elmwood, Evanston.

Fender's attorneys, who plan to have a jury trial, say they are prepared to proceed with the case today. Since charges were filed June 9 the trial has been continued twice because defense attorneys said they had not had adequate time to prepare.

Fender is accused of striking a seventh-grade student at Miner Junior High School several times on the head and face. Battery is a misdemeanor and carries a maximum sentence of a $500 fine or six months in prison or both.

FENDER WAS suspended from his teaching position in Dist. 25 June 29 by the board of education, pending his dismissal on Nov. 2. After a five-day hearing in the case, the board upheld their decision to fire the former language-arts teacher earlier this month.

The board charged that Fender was no longer fit to teach because of a continued record of "cruelty and violence in his relationship with students."

Fender had been a teacher at Miner Junior High for 10 years and was chief negotiator for the Arlington Teachers Association (ATA) during the contract talks this spring. The teachers ratified the agreement in mid-June after one of the briefest negotiations sessions in recent history.

Fender is also president of the ATA, and the group has voted to keep him president through the completion of his term next spring regardless of the outcome of the trial.

Village Eyes Expansion Of Landfill Site

The now apparent inevitability of acquiring more land for sanitary landfilling operations was the principal topic of discussion at a committee-of-the-whole meeting last night of the Arlington Heights Village Board.

Although no final decision was made, board members seemed to agree that either acquiring additional land west of the existing landfill or buying a great deal of land north of the existing landfill were the two most attractive options open at this time.

Village Pres. John Woods said he thought additional landfill area would allow the board the luxury of deferring a decision on the construction of a proposed 600-ton incinerator.

"I THINK THIS would allow us to defer installation of an incinerator until a time when we are forced to do it and at a time when technological improvements will have been made so as to diminish current objections to incineration."

The trustees also discussed a schedule of new capital improvements priorities in light of federal revenue sharing which now appears imminent.

Woods suggested the following list of priorities and asked individual trustees to think about other additions. He listed flood control as a No. 1 priority. Other projects included water system improvements, landfill acquisition, parking, traffic and underpass construction, a new police station and courts building, transportation (specifically some kind of mini-bus service), and proposed improvements to the central district.

Woods said he thought revenue sharing would "remove from the category of wishful thinking to the category of reality" many of these and other capital improvement projects.

He cited rising land and construction costs as a reason to proceed with as many projects as possible as soon as possible.

Estimates of the money that would be available to the village under the various revenue-sharing proposals have ranged around $1 million.

Woods said his understanding of limitations on the application of revenue sharing precluded use of the money in federally funded programs.

Boy Hit By Car In Serious Condition

A 12-year-old Arlington Heights boy is in serious condition in the intensive care unit of Northwest Community Hospital, where he was rushed by fire department ambulance after being struck by a car Friday while riding his bicycle.

Daniel Robeck, 10 N. Kennicott Ave., suffered multiple fractures and injuries to his left arm, head and face in the collision at 5:38 p.m. Friday in front of his house.

Police said Robeck was riding his bicycle across the street when he was struck by a car driven by Charlotte H. Davis, 47, 222 N. Salem Ave., Arlington Heights. Miss Davis had just turned onto north-bound Kennicott from Campbell Street when she struck the boy, police said. Miss Davis told police she did not see Robeck until he was in front of her car.

Miss Davis was cited for failing to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Humdinger Of A Bash

It Was Ol' Time Politics

by DAVID MAHSMAN

It was a humdinger of a bash — just like the good ol' days.

In spite of the emergence of media campaigns and Madison Avenue candidates, some of the best times in the politics of yesteryear can still be found. This weekend, Wayne and Sally Kehe, 223 W. Slade St., Palatine, threw a bratwurst and beer bash to raise funds for presidential hopeful George McGovern.

Regardless of your politics, the outdoor party brings back memories of how campaign events used to be run — especially in rural areas. It was a real picnic.

The beer was cold, the bratwurst great, prepared over a huge pile of glowing coals. Carrying your food through the crowd, you had to dodge the kids playing chase around a large evergreen. In the background and protruding into the foreground, a band was playing — a rock band, not the older variety.

Between 50 and 100 people were in the Kehe's yard, next to their large two-story home with attached coachhouse, at any one time. They came and went. And the people looked as different as day and night. Some were dressed in bluejeans and workshirts, others were very chic in painted nails, gold jewelry and pantsuits. The mosquitoes were there, too, but no one seemed to care. What kind of a picnic would it be without one sort of six-legged pest or another?

MOST OF THE LOCAL Democratic candidates were there as well, smiling and shaking hands. Political literature was flowing as freely as the beer, and McGovern T-shirts, sweatshirts, buttons and posters were available for a price.

Suddenly the band stopped playing, and the small-group discussions ceased. It was time for a speech, even though one wasn't in the plans. And what a speech it was.

Roy LaLonde, retired realtor and former politico took to the soapbox and gave 'em hell.

He began by telling of voting for Cal Coolidge in 1924, "the biggest mistake I ever made." He proceeded to boost hopes for underdog McGovern's victory by relating his days as a precinct committeeman when Harry Truman pulled a surprise upset over Thomas Dewey in 1948.

LaLonde's voice rose to a crescendo, climaxing by saying he is for McGovern with all his heart and giving his blessing to the young people in the crowd. Quoting Oliver Wendell Holmes, he gave this advice:

"Believe in something, have a great deal of enthusiasm and work for it."

The crowd loved it. McGovern couldn't have done any better, and probably couldn't have approached LaLonde's enthusiasm.

'Bike-a-Thon' Plans Being Formed Today

Representatives from 19 suburban communities will meet at 8 p.m. today in the Elk Grove Village Hall to make plans for the Northwest suburbs' participation in the nationwide "Bike-A-Thon" for the American Cancer Society Oct. 29.

Thomas Carollo, past president of the Elk Grove Village Jaycees, said members of each community's Jaycee organization or Chamber of Commerce will receive an information packet on organizing and conducting the Bike-A-thon in their community.

In a Bike-a-thon, participants arrange for sponsors who will pay them a certain amount of money for each mile they ride. All money collected will be donated to the cancer society.

Carollo said no definite bike routes had been made. He said the various communities might be divided into two or three areas with each area having a route or each community might have its own small route plus one large overall route for the entire area.

To promote the Bike-a-thon, the Partridge Family is planning a series of network television commercials.

Carollo said arrangements may be made for sports celebrities and local television stars to appear at the Randhurst and Woodfield shopping centers on Oct. 28 to encourage both participants and sponsors to join the Bike-a-thon.

Volkman Calls Storms Coincidence

The reason for this summer's pattern of rainstorms might lie in the stars, or behind the moon or even beyond the sun.

But according to one meteorologist, NBC's Harry Volkman, on present knowledge the numerous storms that have plagued the Chicago area this summer and fall have to be chalked up as a coincidence.

"We are sitting in an area of convergent weather, much more than usual this year. Why it picked out this year rather than any other, we don't really know. But based on our present state of knowledge, we have to say it's coincidence."

Volkman said that the summer and fall's wet weather need not continue as snow this winter.

"The way nature's pendulum swings the weather could go to the opposite extreme and we could have a very dry winter," he said.

Volkman said that he hopes one day weathermen will know more about the effect the sun and moon and a lot of other things have on local weather conditions. But for now he says he has to be content with coincidence as an explanation.

He did, however, offer at least one ray of hope. "The rainy weather is way overdue to break. All the averages say so."

President Nixon.
Now more than ever.

A MISDIRECTED VOTE? Vandals hurled rocks through three large windows Saturday or Sunday night at the Nixon campaign headquarters, located in the old Turf Pool Hall at the northeast corner of Campbell Street and Vail Avenue, Arlington Heights. Damage was estimated at between $500 and $600. Public works employees blocked off the sidewalk Monday to prevent injuries if the glass falls.

Mayors Plan Key Housing Meetings

Twelve suburban mayors will begin meetings next month to convince officials of some 250 Chicago suburbs to join a voluntary plan for low and moderate-income housing.

The group hopes to have a detailed voluntary housing plan for the suburbs within two years.

The mayors, including Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert, will meet for the last time Thursday before talking to officials of other municipalities Teichert said the mayors would practice the presentation they will present to other officials.

The group, representing Cook, Kane, DuPage, Lake, Will and McHenry counties, have been working on the project since December under the leadership of the Housing Coalition of the American Council for Metropolitan Open Communities. The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) has been supplying technical help to the group.

Jack Pahl, former Elk Grove Village mayor and NIPC commissioner who originated the idea for the housing program, said both he and Harry Gottlieb, program director, would be available to help with any presentations. Gottlieb began his duties as coordinator for the program on Sept. 1. He has experience in financing FHA moderate-income housing projects, Pahl said.

The idea behind the housing program is for suburbs to work out a voluntary housing program before it is forced upon them by the courts, Pahl said. A lawsuit has been filed by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) that would require the distribution of 60,000 low-income housing units on a "fair-share" basis. The suit is now before U.S. District Court Judge Richard Austin.

ACLU Calls For 750 Low-Income Units

According to the ACLU plan, no low-income project could be constructed which would include dwelling units for more than 120 persons. Additionally, it prohibits the construction of any new low-income units if that construction would mean low-income units would total more than 15 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

A census tract is an area set aside by the U.S. Census Bureau which may include one or more, or portions of, several municipalities.

The limit for any municipality or unincorporated areas of a township would be set by the proposed order at 4 per cent.

The proposed order also would obligate the CHA to try to agree with other local housing authorities that they will provide the units outside the City of Chicago, making 50 per cent of the units available to the CHA's tenants and applicants. Lezak said preference would be given to local residents.

Form Chess Club At Pioneer Park

Admission to the chess club is free. For those who want to learn to play chess, a class will be held for 10 weeks on Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. beginning Oct. 4.

The class will cost $4, and is open to anyone over nine years old.

Mikva Rips Young For Campaign 'Lies, Distortions'

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

U. S. Rep. Abner Mikva attacked his 10th Congressional District opponent yesterday for "resorting to outright falsehood in his campaign... unethical campaign tactics... attempts to twist and distort my positions."

Republican Sam Young, his opponent, refused to comment on the charges.

Mikva, a Democrat who has served two terms in the U.S. House, claimed Young "has attempted to 'explain' or 'describe' my positions on the issues, and in each case, 'he has been falsifying the facts' on:

—Amnesty. Young campaign literature contends that Mikva favors total amnesty for draft dodgers and deserters. At a recent joint appearance in Park Ridge a questioner, admitting the information came from a Young brochure, accused Mikva of favoring military deserters. "I have always said that I do not support amnesty now and would vote against it if it came before Congress," Mikva said at a Lincolnwood press conference.

—Impeachment of President Nixon. Young speeches and press releases contend that Mikva favors impeachment of the president. "I have said time and time again that I oppose impeachment and would not vote to impeach the President if it came before Congress," Mikva said.

—Marijuana Legalization. Young contends that Mikva favors legalization. "I have never advocated the legalization of marijuana," Mikva said. The congressman said he favors "decriminalization" treatment, not jailing of marijuana users. "There is a vast difference between that and selling pot at the corner grocery," Mikva said.

—North Vietnam. Young speeches criticize Mikva for "refusing to criticize" North Vietnam and calling the Hanoi war "a holy war." "I have criticized North Vietnam's aggression — the death and destruction it creates are no less reprehensible than the death and destruction created by the United States," Mikva said.

—Free Trade. Young contended last summer that Mikva supported the Burke-Hartke amendment to restrict trade. "I have consistently voted to support free trade, opposing quotas and tariff walls and specifically opposing Burke-Hartke," Mikva said.

Mikva called on Young to sign the "code of fair campaign practices" which "condemns use of campaign material of any sort which represents, distorts or otherwise falsifies the facts regarding any candidate." Mikva, and 17 other Illinois Congressional candidates, have signed the pledge which is administered by a Washington-based volunteer organization, he said.

Mikva threatened to lodge a protest with the committee "if these distortions continue."

Sitting before a folder of newspaper clippings, brochures and speech copies, Mikva offered to document the distortion charges. "Almost everything I have said or written is part of the public record. No one needs to invent issues or misrepresent them," he said.

YOUNG STAFF MEMBERS in his Chicago law offices and Skokie campaign headquarters yesterday said Young had no comment.

"When political campaigns no longer are ethical, they no longer inform the public about the candidates' positions on the issues, and the voters and the political process itself suffers," Mikva said. "Some of the things he said, he's dropped, but only after he has spread the poison pretty far."

Mikva said that in 17 political campaigns he has never challenged the honesty of an opponent. "Never — until now," he said.

The congressman contended his opposition to the Vietnam war dates to 1968 "when I first ran for Congress." Young has charged Mikva with supporting President Lyndon Johnson's war escalation.

"In a press release, Mr. Young said that I have never come up with any 'concrete examples' of military waste. That statement is absolutely false."

MIKVA LISTED opposition to aircraft carrier construction and Nike missile bases in Chicago as examples of "military waste. We're the only country in the world building vulnerable, unmaneuverable carriers. On the other hand, I'm very concerned about closing the submarine gap."

Mikva objected to Young's charge that programs he advocates would cost in excess of $80 billion. The Congressman asked for documentation of the total, claiming he ranked 20th of Illinois' 24 Congressmen in 1971 appropriations supported. Mikva has called for military spending cuts and said he has supported appropriation increases in health and education.

A Young press release distributed yesterday before a Northfield Township Republican dinner, again used the $80 billion figure, claiming that "if the Mikva-McGovern plans were translated into real spending, the pressure on the dollar would be unbelievable. Inflation would start soaring again unless there were massive increases in taxation."

Mikva, who was elected from Chicago's 2nd District, moved to Evanston last year to run for a vacant seat in the new 10th District, which includes Maine, Evanston, Niles, New Trier and Northfield townships.

PEER ADVISORS Beth Burgess and Fran Oehlberg talk to Oakton Community College student Kathy Dunn in the college counseling office. The student counseling department at Oakton began using student, "peer," advisors to supplement counseling during registration workshops at Oakton last summer. Six students are to be working as advisors this semester.

New Oakton Program

Advisers Ease Transition To College

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Student advisers are making the adjustment to college life a little easier for freshmen at Oakton Community College.

Six students, specially trained as "peer advisers" at the college level, meet informally with students in the college library, classroom, or student lounge, listening to such problems as, "What job should I train for? What class should I take? Is that a lecture class? Where can I park my car?"

The adviser serves as an "Ombudsman," circulating among the students, listening to their complaints and problems and relaying them to the college administration, according to John P.

Donahue, dean of student personnel. Students often will talk to other students more readily than to counselors, he said.

THE PEER adviser program began this summer at Oakton when students were used as assistants in fall registration counseling. Group counseling was used in registration for the first time last summer by the student counseling office for all full-time students. During the life career planning workshop, a group of 30 students, two peer advisers and a counselor discussed the programs offered at Oakton and the job opportunities available through them. Smaller groups were later formed according to occupation interests with one peer adviser and one counselor for every 15 students.

The use of groups with student advisers instead of "one-to-one counseling" by a staff counselor, helps to "humanize the registration process," said James Bush, staff counselor. Last summer more than 1,300 students were registered in eight weeks.

Peer advisers inform students on college curricula, course prerequisites, financial aid information, college board planning. They are chosen for their leadership capabilities, ability to listen and genuine interest in helping fellow students, said Donahue.

All peer counselors undergo a "sensitivity training" workshop, through which they learn to interpret the actions and words of others. They learn information on everything about college life from buying your text book to drug abuse.

IN ADDITION to workshop training peer advisers are required to devote at least two hours of their 15 hour week to discussions with staff counselors on skills, role playing, psychology, awareness and new class information.

The distinction between a peer adviser and a staff counselor is kept clear, said Bush. Advisers are information givers and listeners but counselors are specially trained to assist the student when he makes decisions about his career, his life style or his approach to learning. The peer adviser can often perceive deeper problems when talking to students, but he never is allowed to counsel, said Bush. Instead he refers the student to one of the staff counselors.

The staff counselor lets the students know he "has to take an active, meaningful part in his education," said Bush, "We don't just hand them a schedule."

The peer adviser gives the counselor more "outreach," said Bush, so counselors "don't lose touch with the pulse of the campus."

PEER ADVISER Beth Burgess said she has been helping students to feel less apprehensive about college. Students are so institutionalized, she said, that they have trouble relating to teachers on a personal level. Many teachers at Oakton ask students to call them by their first name but many students are unaccustomed to thinking of teachers as peers, she said.

Fran Oehlberg, another peer counselor at Oakton, said she tries to introduce students to teachers when they meet informally in the student lounge. They feel more relaxed when they know someone at Oakton and they know there's someone they can talk to, she said.

The life career planning workshop was so successful that student counselors plan to hold another before the spring semester begins.

Peer advisers are classified as student, part-time employees. They work 15 hours a week at $2 per hour.

3 Firms Hit By Burglars

Three Des Plaines businesses, all within a block of one another, were among five local firms burglarized last weekend.

Two of the firms were broken into when the thieves climbed to the rooftops and entered through skylight windows.

Van's Arts and Crafts, 1293 Oakwood Ave., was burglarized for the third time since Sept. 9 when thieves climbed through a skylight window Friday night and escaped with $15. The two previous burglaries netted thieves $1,650 and $580. Thieves also broke into the store through the skylight window the two previous times.

Less than a block away burglars climbed to the roof top and broke a skylight window to enter Mem Lumber Co., 1141 Lee St. Police said nothing was taken in that burglary.

A BLOCK AWAY from Menn Lumber Co. burglars broke into Lee Brake and Clutch Shop, 985 Graceland Ave., and escaped with $30 from a cash box. Police said the burglars entered the shop Saturday night or Sunday by breaking a window.

Items valued at $624 were stolen from a room at the Royal Court Inn, 1750 S. Elmhurst Rd. sometime Friday night. Police said a $400 color television set, a $75 chest of drawers and a $56 chair were among the missing items.

Police said entry was made into the room by thieves who twisted off the door knob. The burglars also attempted unsuccessfully to gain entry to another room in the motel.

An undetermined amount of cash was stolen from the Black Ram Restaurant, 1414 Oakton St. early yesterday morning by breaking through a basement window. Police said once inside the thieves forced open the lock to the office door where the money was kept.

Det. Lt. Lee Alfano of the Des Plaines police said the burglaries at Van's, Menn Lumber and Lee Brake and Clutch, were apparently done by the same person or persons.

The World

The prime ministers of China and Japan pledged to establish diplomatic relations between their two governments, bringing to an end three decades of hatred.

At the United Nations, U. S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers called for tough measures against airplane hijacking and "the export of international terrorism," and then moved swiftly to see that his proposals were acted on in the UN. He proposed a conference to coordinate international action against terrorism.

Despite the opening of political peace talks in England, gunmen carried out successful bomb strikes in one of Belfast's most luxurious hotels and other targets across Northern Ireland.

The State

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott recommended that $1 million in damages that Illinois received in a price-fixing case be spent to fund local drug abuse programs, to set up community lead poisoning treatment centers and to create a telecommunication network for the emergency care of heart attack victims.

Chicago Police Superintendent James Conlisk testified he has changed his mind and now believes police made an adequate investigation into the Dec. 4, 1969, weapons raid in which two Black Panthers were killed.

This Morning In Brief

The War

Three U. S. pilots released from captivity in North Vietnam left by plane for Nanking, China, en route home via Peking and Moscow, Hanoi reports said. The pilots, Air Force Maj. Edward K. Elias, Navy Lt. Markham L. Gartley and Navy Lt. Norris A. Charles, departed after they were reported to have told President Nixon they did not want to return home with U. S. military escorts. They are due to arrive in New York Thursday.

South Vietnamese forces recaptured a central coast hilltop held by Communist forces and pushed southward toward a government outpost that was overrun a week ago.

The Nation

The House Ways and Means Committee tentatively approved President Nixon's proposal to put a $250 billion limit on federal spending this fiscal year. The President pledged that the U. S. "shall not turn inward an isolationist" as it struggles with other nations to revamp the rules governing trade and currency exchange in the non-Communist world.

Sen. George McGovern denounced the "sharks" and "hogs" of big business, saying that they had opened a "revolving door" connecting regulatory agencies to corporate boardrooms. The chief spokesman for the nation's coal industry charged that McGovern's ban-strip mining proposal could mean blackouts in millions of homes.

MGM's Assistant Vice President

Rhoda Cokee: An Accidental Executive

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Had paper, pens, pencils and telephones never been invented Rhoda Cokee would be living a nice quiet existence. Instead her every conversation is interrupted by a request for her signature, a report being shoved under her nose or innumerable phone calls.

Rhoda Cokee, a Des Plaines resident for 10 years, is an executive with MGM Realty, Inc. Her entrance into the real estate world and all that has happened since she smilingly terms "an accident." To one listening to her story it sounds more as if the fates were in control of an innocent bystander.

"As far as I can remember I've always worked — from the time I was 16 years old, in college, always — but I never planned to be a career woman," Rhoda explained.

AFTER SHE HAD her first son 12 years ago, Rhoda worked one day a week at a family-owned company that dealt in real estate, insurance, and sundry other business.

Two years later she quit to have her second son. She settled back to take care of home and family — but not for long.

"One of the owners became very sick and his brothers asked if I'd come back a couple of days a week for a little while. My husband, Jordan, said I would and the little while never ended."

Rhoda worked on and off for the company for 10 years. "When I went back my husband kept bugging me that if I was going to continue working, I should do something challenging," she said. "I was perfectly happy with my job, but I went to school to get a license to sell real estate because he was driving me crazy. I had never sold anything in my life and I gave myself a year to see if I could do it."

THE YEAR HAS stretched to nearly eight. Her first job as a real estate salesman was with a Des Plaines firm. She was the first woman hired in many years and her success led the company to hire several more women.

After a year and a half she decided to move on. "I saw signs for MGM popping up all over the place so I asked if they needed sales help. I went in for an interview and the place was a nut house. Phones were ringing like crazy and people were running all over the place. I told the owner I didn't want to work there at all."

"That night I went back to my company and decided to clean out my desk. By the time I was done I had thrown away everything I had. I sat there and thought, how am I going to work with nothing to work with. So I called MGM and told them I'd take the job, but I was never going to like it."

FOR THE FIRST two months Rhoda was right. She didn't like her new company. "It was a nut house. It was too hectic for me. For two months I went home every night and cried. My husband held my hand the whole time until I got acclimated," she laughed.

For three years Rhoda worked happily in sales. Then one day, while she and her family vacationed in Florida, she got a phone call that the president of MGM had died. She flew back and offered to help out in any way she could.

With her 10 years experience running the one-girl office and handling numerous administrative duties in the family-owned business, MGM's executives took Rhoda up on her offer. She was given administrative duties on a "temporary" basis.

"Every time I decided to go back to sales, they gave me a new title and decided I couldn't. They kept me here with titles," she said.

RHODA IS NOW administrative vice president for MGM — one of the few women in the country who holds an executive position in a real estate firm without either owning part of the company or being the wife or the owner.

She manages the firm's Skokie office and oversees its Niles and Chicago offices, hiring, firing, financing for home buyers and promotions all fall within her domain.

Rhoda is an idea contributor — especially when it comes to promotion. One of her recent brainstormings was the acquisition of a 1972 reproduction of a 1930 Model A Ford Phaeton to be used by MGM's salespersons. Ford's original "sports car" will be used for publicity for the promotion-oriented company.

Rhoda's movement into management has again changed her life. "At times I really miss the excitement that goes with sales," she said. "This job is completely different. When you're in sales, you are responsible solely for yourself; the only one who governs your time is you. Here my time belongs to as many salespeople as we have: my time is not my own."

THE RESULT IS that Rhoda often puts in 12, 14 or 16 hours a day. Social engagements are frequently interrupted by office demands.

"My husband says we lost all our friends since I started in real estate. We can never guarantee we'll be anywhere when we're supposed to be there."

Being a mother, wife and executive has its trying moments, but Rhoda has made it with "my husband's patience and help and a trusted, loving housekeeper" to keep track of her two active sons.

And family fun has not fallen by the wayside. The entire Cokee family are great water skiing enthusiasts, spending hot summer days at their lake cottage and cold winter days in Florida as often as possible.

In a few years Rhoda hopes the family will move to Florida and take year-round advantage of the sun. "My next aspiration is to be a beach bum when this is all over," she said with raised eyebrows. Then returning to reality, "I will probably always work, but I don't think I'll work with this intensity."

"But I wouldn't trade the experiences I've had for anything. And I wouldn't trade the real estate business for anything. It's a people business. I couldn't find so many friendships any place else."

Suburban Living
ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: My mother, and I have been having one of those small, good-humored arguments about the "old days." She says eggs can't compare in taste to those of years ago. My age group looks on statements like this with raised eyebrows, but I admit there might be something to this one. Is there? —Ann Monroe

Your mother is right about there being a change, Ann, but what you don't say is whether she thinks the change has been for the better. I do.

Chickens in modern ranches do not have access to the feeds which cause strong flavors. Moreover, the eggs are gathered so frequently the shells do not get a chance to absorb odors from the surroundings. This is followed through in the marketing — eggs being kept away from foods with strong odors. It's not a bad idea to follow at home. All of us tend to remember the old days with nostalgia and sometimes forget that new methods are really great with some foods.

Homemaker's Fair Is More Than A Hobby Day

Homemakers' traditional hobby day will have a new name, "Homemaker's Fair" when it is held Tuesday, Oct. 3, at the First Methodist Church in La Grange.

Basically it is the same affair in that talented members of the 28 participating units, which includes the many units in the northwest suburbs, will be displaying crafts and hobbies. But special activities chairman, Mrs. Raymond Bond of the Mount Prospect Unit, has added some innovations: units may sell items they have made; profits will be kept in the individual units to help defray increased rental and postage costs. Units will also be giving demonstrations.

Mrs. Bond's co-chairman is Mrs. John

Nelson, Des Plaines, president of Satellite II Unit. Mrs. Bond has also recruited willing workers in Mrs. Joseph Hodges and Mrs. Jewel Grant, Mount Prospect Unit, to prepare sandwiches which will be sold at lunch.

The afternoon session will include a sing-along and a program, "Junking with Peggy." Peggy Schiene hunts garage sales, auctions, flea markets and antique shops, and her program will include slides of creations too large to bring to the Fair and a "show and tell" of other creations.

The church is located at Cossitt and Madison, La Grange, and the Fair is open to the public from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

RIVER TRAILS Junior High School students look like they have more than just a ride in mind as they board their school bus in the morning. With Pat Kase driving, they aren't likely to get too rambunctious, however. Mrs. Kase soon lets it be known that she means business.

Blonde Bus Driver Can Keep Kids Under Control

by MARY HOULIHAN
"Help, I'm getting bombed by sunflowers!"

—anonymous junior high bus rider
Pat Kase, 33, looks the antithesis of the conventional bus driver. Blonde hair piled high on her head, dressed in sporty white bell bottoms and soft blue puffed sleeves blouse, everything about her spells femininity. It's hard to believe that she wheels a bus full of 60 junior high students to and from the River Trails Junior High School in Mount Prospect twice a day.

That is, until you travel her bus route with her.

"Stop! You will stop or you will not get on the bus at all!" a deep voice booms from out of nowhere as the first group of seventh and eighth-graders scramble up the bus steps at the first stop on our trip. The kids stop dead in their tracks and quiet down immediately. You look around to see where the voice is coming from, only to realize that it belongs to Mrs. Kase.

"AS THE KIDS BARREL down the aisle, she yells back, 'Fill up the back first, and remember, only three in a seat!' The kids follow the directions to the letter and order is restored. Soon, everyone settles down and the conversation begins.

"Did you see the way your sister looks at me?" one boy asks his seat companion, his face contorted in abhorring grimace. "Yeah, I saw the way she looks at you. What about it?" the other answers menacingly.

Though the students' comments are amusing their mothers, especially during the first few weeks of school, are even funnier, according to Mrs. Kase.

"The mothers are a panic," she laughs. "their little darlings are going off to school in a great big bus. The first few days, the mothers stand at the stop with the kids. They ask what time the kids will be home. The kids want to crawl in a hole when their mothers start waving good-bye to them."

Mrs. Kase says the kids are usually a little rowdier in the afternoon (they're still waking up in the morning), but are still pretty well-behaved. The principal of the school has a lot to do with maintaining order, she says.

"I think the principal at River Trails sits on them and that makes my job easier," she says.

THOUGH SHE HAS been driving a bus for Dist. 26 for five years, her job has not always been so easy.

"The first morning I drove I was too nice," she says. "But in the afternoon one of the teachers rode the bus with the kids and read the rules to them. Consequently, they realized they had to settle down." She tries to keep things on kind of a teacher-student basis. "They respect me for what I do now," she says.

Mrs. Kase drives one of nine buses owned and operated by Dist. 26. The buses travel to the elementary schools as well as the junior high. Parents pay $20 a year for the service. However, only children who live less than 1 1/4 miles from their school have to pay. All others ride free, according to Janet Hick, secretary for the school district.

And contrary to what most people would think, the majority of the drivers in Dist. 26 are women. There is only one male driver, Mrs. Hock said. Most of the women are about Mrs. Kase's age and all are housewives who live in the district.

Perhaps one of the major reasons why there are so many women is the convenience of the job. "It fits into my kids' schedules and the vacation also fits in well," Mrs. Kase said. Her kids also like the idea. "They think it's great," she said.

SENIOR GIRL Scout Troop 64 of Des Plaines and Cadette Scout Troop 685 of Skokie had a fabulous camping trip this summer to National Center West near Ten Sleep, Wyoming in the Big Horn Mountains.

The Scouts traveled more than 2,500 miles via chartered bus, camping along the way in South Dakota and Wyoming until they reached their 15,000 acre camp owned and operated by the Girl Scouts of America. It adjoins the Big Horn National Forest. Only 9th grade Cadettes and Seniors are privileged to camp there.

Being unable to drive tent stakes into the rocks made tent "putting-up" a bit difficult but after securing the tent ropes to large rocks, the tents kept secure until we had the "Big Blow" as the natives call a dust storm and then we toppled them ourselves.

Horseback riding in the canyons was most enjoyable. The archeological digs were fascinating. Members of the Troop were rewarded in their diggings when they found numerous pieces of Indian arrow heads and two beautiful skinning tools used years ago by Indians. This was the first find in over two years of digging.

Day hikes and back packing brought forth many new vistas. The best day hike was down Allen's Alley into Cook Canyon, where one forded the mountain stream many times and ended up at the huge natural rock amphitheater. If two girls stood at either end of it, and spoke, you could hear them as if they were standing next to each other. Indian photographs are clearly seen on the walls of the amphitheater and in several other caves on the property.

ENROUTE WE stopped in the Badlands, saw the Black Hills, Mount Rushmore, went through the Mount Rushmore Caves and in Mitchell, South Dakota, we were guests at the Doll Museum which had just opened. It was a great trip and we had delightful weather most of the time.

All of the members of Troop 64 have been working and saving for a camping trip for over 3 years. Their first goal was England but their second choice was the Wyoming Trek. This was within their budget and a great choice!

The Scouts wish to thank the many people who have been so very helpful to them with their many projects — paper and glass drives for recycling, cookie and nut sales, etc. so that their dream of a camping trip came true!

Senior Scouts from Des Plaines that went on the trip were: Linda Cook, June Elmermann, Kitty Erwin, Vicki Gilley, Jean Jaderborg, Jeanne Marie Jongleur, Carole Shekerjian, Eileen Szafarski, Carol Warchol, Beth Zalabak. The Senior Adviser was Mrs. Evelyn Milkes, affectionally known as "Mickey."

Another member of our troop was unable to go with us but Estelle Mehegan was in Arequipa, Peru all summer as an AFS Exchange Student from Maine West.

BOY SCOUT TROOP 6, sponsored by Trinity Lutheran Church, held its Fall Parent's Night meeting on Monday, September 18th, 1972, with Thomas Mahan welcoming all parents and friends.

The Scouts made a very good showing as Kenneth Stenstrom awarded 52 merit badges, obtained during the summer months, to the following Scouts: David Callahan, James Enders, Larry Enders, John Kossick, David Lindahl, Mark Lindahl, Tom Mahan, George Mascenic, Larry McCarthy, Glen Rick, David Payne, James Rosner, Tom Swingbeck, James Stenstrom, James Woloshyn and Jay Woloshyn.

Carl Callahan presented the 2nd Class Rank to James Enders, Glen Rick and Donald Steffen. First Class Rank was awarded by Rick Rohn to Larry McCarthy, George Mascenic and David Payne. The advancement continued with Charles Everett giving Star Rank to David Callahan and Larry Enders. Scout James Stenstrom was awarded Life Rank by Ernest Kossick.

Also in recognition for Camping Under Canvas, Bronze medals were given to John Kossick, James Rosner, James Enders and Larry Enders. A Silver Camping medal was given to David Callahan.

ACLU Plan Calls For 750 Low-Income Housing Units

by ROGER CAPETTINI

The American Civil Liberties Union submitted a plan yesterday calling for the construction of 750 units of low-income housing in the three-county Chicago suburban area.

The plan, revealed at a press conference in ACLU offices in Chicago yesterday, came in the form of a proposed judgment order in a court case currently before U.S. District Court Judge Richard Austin. No specific sites for the housing were proposed.

A hearing is scheduled for the proposal in Judge Austin's court Oct. 24.

In its proposal, the ACLU suggests providing an incentive to suburban municipalities to enter voluntarily into agreements to provide housing within their corporate limits.

If such housing is planned voluntarily by the municipality within 180 days of the order, as proposed, it could be limited to 2 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

The proposal includes provisions wherein the Chicago Housing Authority would be forced to "do everything necessary to provide the units," in the suburbs if the local municipalities do not take action within the six-month period.

IF THE HOUSING is planned by the CHA for the individual suburbs, the number of low-income dwelling units could equal 4 per cent of the total number of apartment and single-family residences existing.

Carl Lezak, director of the Illinois Division of the ACLU said at the press conference he does not consider that provision constitutes a threat to the suburbs. "It's not a threat — it's a reward if they (the suburbs) take it positively," he said.

The proposed order calls for the 750 units to be constructed in white areas of Cook (outside the City of Chicago) DuPage and Lake counties in a 6 to 2 to 1 ratio respectively. If ordered by Judge Austin, the plan would not affect the 1,500 units already ordered to be built within the City of Chicago.

In a memorandum filed with the proposal, the ACLU said the "inclusion of suburban areas in the plan is necessary to minimize the risk that the operation of the 1969 court order (establishing the 1,500 units for Chicago) will result in increased flight to the suburbs."

The ACLU said if that "flight" should take place on a large scale, it would produce resegregation and negate the objectives of the 1969 order.

THE ORDER WOULD require that 75 per cent of the low-income units be constructed in white areas.

According to the ACLU plan, no low-income project could be constructed which would include dwelling units for more than 120 persons. Additionally, it prohibits the construction of any new low-income units if that construction would mean low-income units would total more than 15 per cent of the existing number of apartments and single-family residences.

A census tract is an area set aside by the U.S. Census Bureau which may include one or more, or portions of, several municipalities.

The limit for any municipality or unincorporated areas of a township would be set by the proposed order at 4 per cent.

The proposed order also would obligate the CHA to try to agree with other local housing authorities that they will provide the units outside the City of Chicago, making 50 per cent of the units available to the CHA's tenants and applicants. Lezak said preference would be given to local residents.

West, North Runners Close But No Titles

Maine North fell just a hair short and Maine West finished a couple hairs behind when the two schools competed in separate weekend cross-country invitational.

The Norsemen of coach John Anderson traveled to the Rolling Meadows Invitational where they were outscored by winner Elgin, 36-35.

Meanwhile, Deerfield and Hinsdale South finished ahead of Maine West in the 15-school Waukegan Invitational.

Lack of enough competitors to field a sophomore team kept the Maine North Norsemen from capturing the Meadows Invitational.

"If we had enough men to enter the sophomore level — even if we'd finished last — that would have given us two points and pushed us over," said Anderson.

"But that's alright. We're building and there's more years."

While Elgin and Maine North battled for first, Barrington finished third (29), Rolling Meadows fourth (24) and Lake Park last (22).

Maine North finished second behind Elgin in the Varsity "A" race, won the Varsity "B" race and also won the freshman race.

Anderson was most encouraged by the return of letterman Bob O'Donnell who won the "B" race. O'Donnell was injured two weeks ago and hadn't competed before Saturday's invitational.

"He got a little tired in the last mile," said Anderson, "but he looked real good and should help us out." Both varsity races were run on a 2.75 mile course.

O'Donnell's win began a three-place sweep as Norsemen Robin Thompson and Jim Balmes finished second and third in the "B" race. Mark Sikorski finished fifth.

In the Varsity "A" race, North's Bill Fancher finished fourth. He was followed by Mike Sharpe (8th), Brad Furukawa (11th), Bob Lindquist (14th) and Mark Brodie (15th). There was a 24-second split between Fancher and Brodie.

North's freshmen finishers were Kevin Maly (6th), Chuck DiPrima (8th), Jim Karas (14th), Andy Sikorski (16th) and Mike Petykowski (17th). There was a 40 second split between Maly and Petykowski.

The Maine West Warriors just didn't have it on Saturday at the Waukegan Invitational. They finished third with 96 points. Deerfield was far out in front (59), followed by Hinsdale South (70).

"We knew those two powers would be right up there," said coach Bill Barringer. "We were hoping to get by at least one but just didn't make it."

Forest View finished fourth with 126 points.

Dean Erhard of Deerfield won the varsity three-mile course, West's Chip Barbour was second. Erhard is the defending Central Suburban League individual champion.

"Erhard was definitely first in a very decisive win," said Barringer. "And Chip had a very decisive win over Jim Wise of Forest View who finished third."

"We were worried about those two kids. We knew they'd be good."

Although Barbour had an excellent showing, the Warriors were blanked again until Greg Klebe finished 10th. Then a big spread arose between Klebe and Paul Frost (24th). Paul Mademann finished 25th and Pete Farmer 35th.

On the sophomore level, the Warriors delivered a poor showing, ninth. Prospect won the race.

Barringer said his current group of sophomores are the school's weakest in many years. "You can usually count on about 10 runners that have potential," he said, "but there may be only about five there."

"But we're not too concerned because we've got the best junior class in the school's history and it looks like we have a fine group of freshmen."

Also, varsity runner Paul Mademann is only a sophomore.

In the freshman race, Maine West finished second with 77 points behind host Waukegan (64).

Greg Koeller took second place and Howie Biletz fourth but the next Maine West finisher was a long time arriving. Dave Schmitt took 20th, Ed Todd 21st and Scott Swakow 30th.

Maine North competed in the Niles West Invitational on Monday. West's next competition is Thursday when the Warriors host Glenbrook South and Maine East.

Lions Handle Highly-Regarded Lane Tech

Elk Grove, Forest View, St. Viator Win

by MIKE KLEIN
The Super Bowl rematch was no match at all; a group of Falcons did what has been expected; and St. Viator's "Fran Tarkenton" had a field day.

Consequently, Des Plaines' two "entries" in the Mid-Suburban football race came away with victories as did parochial school St. Viator, a 21-12 upset winner over Lane Tech.

In the big Super Bowl rematch — Elk Grove and Hersey — the Grenadiers of Elk Grove punched Hersey all over the field en route to a 20-8 victory.

And over at Wheeling, the Forest View Falcons strode into first place of the Mid-Suburban's South Division with a convincing 28-14 victory.

The Super Bowl rematch was a complete success for Elk Grove coach Don Schnake who last November directed his team to a 7-3 victory over Hersey in the Mid-Suburban championship game.

Friday night, the Grenadiers were locked into a tight 13-8 fourth quarter lead when they triumphantly marched 67 yards in 10 plays for the game-icing score.

Veteran quarterback Jeff Stewart engineered the ground drive, causing Hersey coach Joe Gilwa to comment that Schnake "has the horses again."

Stewart led the victory with his three-yard touchdown run. Gary Adams kicked the extra point.

Statistically, Elk Grove was also a convincing winner. The Grenadiers amassed 222 yards total offense, 212 rushing. Hersey could manage just 117 yards but split it almost evenly, 60 rushing and 57 passing.

Elk Grove took its ground attack right to Hersey, scoring early after a 14-play, 65-yard drive. Halfback Jeff Schroeder burst off left tackle for the three-yard touchdown.

Then, the Grenadiers ran into fumbles, or they could have blown the game open before halftime. Elk Grove advanced to the Hersey seven and 24-yard lines before yielding second quarter fumbles.

Meanwhile, the Grenadiers' defense played superbly and while it held Hersey scoreless throughout the half, also provided Elk Grove with a scoring opportunity that wasn't missed.

After Hersey's Dave Schachner recovered a Grove fumble at the 24, the Huskies offense was completely stymied. A broken punt play gave Elk Grove possession at the one-yard line.

Quarterback Stewart punched it in from there for a 13-0 halftime lead. Adams' kick attempt was blocked.

Hersey put all of its eight points on the board after halftime. With Elk Grove backed up to its own goal line, the Gren-adiers elected to punt but the center snap went awry.

The alert Huskies converged on punter Bill Butler who, it was ruled, recovered the ball and was tackled for a safety, making the score 13-2.

Hersey's contention that it recovered the loose ball for a touchdown was disallowed.

But the Huskies took full advantage of their next offensive opportunity, also provided by fine defense which recovered two of four Elk Grove fumbles.

Mark Zakula passed 30 yards to Matt Loriss who scored Hersey's lone touchdown. Zakula's two-point conversion pass attempt failed, ending Hersey's scoring.

It was on the next drive that Stewart guided the Grenadiers to their decisive game-winning score and a share of first place in the Mid-Suburban North Division.

Forest View, the Mid-Suburban South Division school drawing students from Des Plaines' offset Wheeling's excellent passing (104 yards) with an even stronger rushing attack (282 yards) for its 28-14 win.

All four Forest View touchdowns were scored on rushing attempts. Junior John Kronforst was the game's big hero, scoring on two one-yard runs and a 71-yard gallop. He earned 151 yards rushing on 2 carries for a fine 6.8 average.

Falcon quarterback Bill Millner ran 62 yards on an option play to open the evening's scoring, giving Forest View a 6-0 lead as the kick attempt failed.

Wheeling tied the game at 6-6 in the second quarter when Ed Idrizovic capped a 67-yard drive with his touchdown run from two yards out.

But then Kronforst took over, scoring one touchdown in each of the final three quarters. Forest View's defense white-washed in the third quarter and also scored a safety just after halftime.

Trailing 28-6 and far out of the game, Wheeling got a consolation score with 1:54 remaining when Jim Stoik passed eight yards to Doug Groot.

Stoik's fine passing day (16 of 32 for 194) went for naught as the Wildcats now own a portion of the Mid-Suburban's North Division basement.

It was Stan Bobowski and more Stan Bobowski at Lane Tech as the 185-pound quarterback engineered St. Viator's 21-12 upset win.

"We knew we had to stop the quarterback early," said Lane Tech coach Al Manasin, "and we just couldn't do it."

"He's strong and fast, and even when we started keying just on him, he kept his cool and did pretty much what he wanted to," Manasin said.

Bobowski — a self styled "Fran Tarkenton" — led the Lion rushers with 15 carries for 108 yards as brother Steve had 50 yards in just five carries.

Stan scored on runs of one and 29 yards and his good option taking set up tailback Tom Maher for 92 yards rushing which included a 20-yard touchdown effort.

Lane Tech had a 6-0 lead before St. Viator reeled off two second quarter touchdowns for a 13-6 halftime lead.

Stan Bobowski tied the game, 6-6, with his 29-yard touchdown run and Frank Cliggett put St. Viator ahead for good with his extra point kick.

Later before halftime, Maher used his 20-yard run to give the Lions their 13-6 halftime lead.

That blossomed to 21-6 in the third quarter when Stan Bobowski carried it in from one-yard away. His pass to Mike Cook provided a two-point conversion.

Lane Tech added a fourth quarter touchdown, cutting St. Viator's victory margin to nine points.

Dinner Planned For Al Carstens

Des Plaines, baseball and Al Carstens. A triangular love story.

A tale of a man who did his job so well, he was inducted into the Illinois High School Baseball Hall of Fame.

Of the only man to ever coach state champion teams at two different schools or win nine straight state tournament games.

Al Carstens — the gray-haired Mr. Baseball of Des Plaines for nearly two decades.

In early November, Des Plaines will say thank you to this man who won state titles in 1958, 1959 and 1963. He's only the second Illinois prep coach to win three titles.

On Nov. 3, a testimonial dinner will be held in Carstens' behalf at the Casa Royale, 783 Lee St., Des Plaines. The evening will include a 6:30 p.m. cocktail hour followed by dinner, a three and one-half hour open bar, live entertainment and dancing. Cost is $12.50 per person.

Carstens appeared on the Maine high school baseball scene nearly 16 years ago. During that span his teams have won over 250 games.

He won state titles for Maine High School in 1958 and 1959 and repeated four

Al Carstens
